DON'T PERMIT WAR TO CLOSE UP YOUR PLANT

IT HAS AIDED OTHERS.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

WE WILL

Is there a Chicago industry which has any troubles? Has your supply of bent glass mirrors or rattan splints been cut off by the war? Has the market for the product turned out by your factory been narrowed by the business depression? Want some new line of goods to manufacture for which your machinery is adapted and for which there is a good demand? Want a man who has successful experience in selling the new line?

The civic industrial committee of the Association of Commerce invites you to tell your troubles to Anderson Pace, its industrial commissioner, and the head of its industrial research and service bureau.

The bureau, which has been opened only since the start of the war in Europe, already has found, for instance, more than a thousand new sources of supply for raw or partly manufactured materials used by Chicago industries.

Plan a Success.

In about a hundred cases it has been successful in finding a new line of goods for a factory to make, in locating a man who can sell the new goods, or in some other way helping to keep a Chicago industry busy.

There was one Chicago factory, making heavy machinery, the market for which was practically destroyed by the war. As the result of several conferences a pump of special design was found, which is in increasing demand and which the plant was already equipped to make.

A metal spinning and stamping manufacturer, the demand for whose products was badly cut down, was helped by the discovery of a line of metal toys, hitherto imported from Germany, and has turned a large part of his force into making them.

Finds Selling Agent.

The research bureau was also able to find a selling agent, who was equally glad to be put into touch with a supply of toys for his Christmas trade.

In one interesting case a large shop chiefly devoted to the making of time stamps reported that it would be obliged to lay off most of its men. The heads of the plant were introduced to a man who had perfected a popular priced motorcycle. After a preliminary investigation they turned down the proposition, chiefly because they lacked acquaintance with the selling end of the motorcycle game.

The research bureau happened to have on its books a man who had had successful experience in the distribution of motorcycles to the trade. It brought the two parties together and after a series of conferences the plant is now being fitted for the manufacture of the new cycle.

Keeps Factory Open.

Several manufacturers of automobile accessories complained that they were no longer able to get bent and curved glass mirrors and lamp fronts and that lacking such a supply they would be obliged to stop making their goods. That would have thrown a large number of men out of work. Heretofore these glass shapes have been made in Germany.

The representative of these German factories in Chicago was also agent for a large glass factory located in an eastern state. He was sure, however, that the manufacturers in the east neither could nor would make glass mirrors and lights of the desired shapes.

He was persuaded to make a special trip to lay the case before them and found that if they were guaranteed a sufficiently large amount of business they would be glad to make the new goods. An order for several hundred thousand pieces of the curved glass was at once placed and everybody concerned is pleased with the prospect of running full time.

In several instances the bureau discovered that certain factories which use large quantities of imported materials whose shipments of which are cut off by the war—were combing the world for a new source of supply, but had strangely neglected to make inquiries in Chicago. In one such case a plant on Franklin

Policeman Shot by Man Trying to Break in Saloon

W. J. Rosenstratter May Die of Bullet Wound Inflicted by Supposed Burglar.

BAYNES HOLDS MAN

Policeman William J. Rosenstratter of 1002 Lewis street, detailed at the Chicago avenue station, was shot in the neck and probably fatally wounded early this morning when he attempted to seize a supposed burglar. The latter is said to have broken the glass in one of the front doors of Goldman Brothers' saloon at 500 North State street.

Policeman Edward Baynes, with Rosenstratter at the time, was fired at twice by the alleged burglar before he overtook him and beat him into unconsciousness with the butt end of his revolver. When revived at the police station the man said his name was Charles Williams.

One Policeman May Die.

Policeman Rosenstratter was taken to the Passavant hospital, where physicians said he will die.

The two policemen were traveling together in plain clothes. While at North State and Kinzie streets they heard the crash of glass. Both hurried to the saloon, where they saw Williams trying to get in through a hole broken in the glass of the door.

As Policeman Rosenstratter attempted to seize him Williams is said to have fired one shot, the muzzle of the revolver being less than three inches from the patrolman's face.

Beats Captive Unconscious.

As the patrolman fell back unconscious Williams fled and was chased by Policeman Baynes to Illinois and North State streets before being overtaken. As Williams stopped to shoot again after firing twice at Baynes, the policeman knocked the weapon from his hand and then beat him into unconsciousness.

The police believe that the patrolmen arrived in time to to prevent Williams from robbing the saloon.

At the police station Williams seemed to be intoxicated, the police said. His revolver showed three shots had been fired from it.

Policeman Rosenstratter is married and has been on the police department for five years.

Employe of Athletic Club.

Williams, the police said, is employed at the Chicago Athletic club, and at the time of the shooting was with a man of the name of Carey, who lives at 1904 Indiana avenue, also employed at the club. Carey left the scene accompanied by a young woman after the capture of Williams, and the police did not learn his full name.

CHICAGO GIRL IS ORDERED TO DECAMP FROM DETROIT.

Miss Valentine Smith Found Guilty of Inciting Insubordination at Home for Aged Ladies.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—Miss Valentine Smith of Chicago was tried today on the charge of disturbing the peace, the complainant being the Rev. C. L. Arnold, president of the Arnold Home for Aged Ladies.

She was found guilty, but released on suspended sentence and given until tomorrow noon to depart from Mr. Arnold's establishment.

A year ago two aged women, the Misses Farnsworth of Detroit, went to live in the Arnold home. Last February one of them died and Miss Smith, a niece, came from Chicago to pack the other Miss Farnsworth's trunks and take her to Chicago.

Miss Smith's presence became objectionable to Mr. Arnold, he testified, because she incited the employés to insubordination. He requested her to leave and she refused to do so. Then he instituted ejectment proceedings against her aunt, Miss Farnsworth, and won his case. Miss Farnsworth appealed and with her niece continued to live in the home. Mr. Arnold then procured the warrant charging Miss Smith with disturbing the peace.

HIGH TROLLEY CAR STEPS BLAMED FOR MUCH LUMBAGO.

Physician Tells Osteopathic Society Continued Reaching Also Is Cause of Many Cases of Sciatica.

High steps of street cars are responsible for much lumbago and sciatica, Dr. H. H. Fryette said in a paper read at the monthly meeting of the Chicago Osteopathic society at the Hotel Sherman last night

He said the constant or even occasional reaching for the high car steps causes a twisting of the sacro-iliac (pelvic) joint, which produces a pressure on the nerves, thereby shutting off the regular flow of blood and producing severe pain that eventually develops into lumbago or sciatica.

Dr. Fryette recommended as a remedy lower steps to each car or two steps where the car platform is high

MAYOR HINTS HE'LL RUN FOR OFFICE AGAIN

CHICAGO'S SOUL FOUND

"Chicago" was the subject of optimistic speeches last night at the annual municipal dinner.

Mayor Harrison "reported progress" and looked ahead toward further city progress.

Dr. Shailer Matthews of the University of Chicago apostrophized the city as a center of culture and art. He presented an inspiring picture of civic advance in idealism.

Will the Mayor Run Again?

The mayor said nothing about another term after his four years end in April, but there was read between the lines of his speech an indication of his probable intention to be a candidate for another term.

The hint of the mayor's plans—if there was a hint—was observed in his discussion of future subway planning. It has been suggested since election day among the politicians that such a program was likely—a Harrison campaign for reelection on a subway platform.

Inasmuch as the mayor's term of office has only five months to run and subway planning up to date has been a matter of years, the astute ones said Mr. Harrison had disclosed one of the chief planks of his campaign platform.

How He Stands on Subways.

As an example of the way in which the mayor brought his views of the future to bear upon this point there was this:

"If a plan can be formulated for the construction of central subways to be paid for out of the traction fund, these subways to be used for the surface and elevated roads until such time as the people declare for a comprehensive subway system and at such time to be vacated by these companies; if the continued use of them would not interfere with the successful operation of a comprehensive subway system I am willing to give the plan my support.

Would Support Merger.

"Or if the elevated roads will accept a fair valuation for their property, merge with the surface lines, and agree to construct a genuine rapid transit subway on a financial basis by which the private ownership will be amortized in a reasonable number of years, I am willing to support that plan."

Many of the details of the mayor's address held the attention of the association members and the aldermen and city department heads present, but his subway discussion caused greatest interest.

Joseph H. Defrees, president of the association, reviewed the recent municipal accomplishments and told of the activities of his own organization. The chief emphasis of his address was laid upon the forthcoming electrification report.

Pays Chicago High Compliment.

Dr. Mathews paid Chicago what he termed a higher tribute than he could pay to any other city in the United States. In the rush for commercial supremacy, Dr. Mathews said, Chicago has taken time to develop a culture, an art, and an education quite advanced for an American city.

"As I have listened to these remarkable papers," Dr. Mathews said, "it has been borne in on me that we have in this city of Chicago an illustration of that of which I wish to speak. We have discovered a soul. We have discovered that cities of all times have been something more than aggregations of individuals of great economic activity. They have been composed of people, and those people have been struggling out into something like a new conception, year after year, of what community life really means.

City Men History Leaders.

"To read in books and to listen to many people speak on the subject of cities, one would think that a city was the Frankenstein of social evolution. It has been begotten by human needs and it has escaped the control of those who begat it, and yet as you look back over the history of civilization you see that civilization has always been urban, the very name heathen and pagan is a testimony to the countryman, the man who lived in the heath, the man who lived in the country.

"Poor people have never had that certain high culture that we have associated with the history of the past and which we ourselves would emulate. Poor people have had poets and prophets, but poets and prophets are cheap.

"When you want to get the expressive art of the painter, the architect, the statue maker, there you always have to look to the accumulation of wealth. The men

JOBLESS YALE MAN ENDS LIFE

IT PREYS ON HIS MIND.

Watson Harpham, Fraternity Member and Polo Star, Shoots Self at Father's Home.

Until a few months ago Watson Harpham was an important person. His importance had been growing steadily for four years. At its height he found himself a senior at Yale and an honor man in his class.

Through the four years Harpham had accomplished the almost impossible—the faculty thought no less of him than his fellow students. On the campus and beyond he was noted as the captain of the crack varsity polo team. More than that, he had played second base on the varsity baseball team three seasons and was considered one of Yale's finest all around athletes.

Career Reaches Climax.

Harpham's university career reached a dizzy climax on commencement day last June. He was graduated in the front rank of his class and started his journey to wealth and fame on the shoulders of a flying wedge of admirers.

It was pretty generally conceded around the campus that persons in seats of power in the business world would better hold fast. Harpham of Yale had a habit of winning every sort of game he played. All he needed was a start and there certainly were enough fraternity brothers of Sigma Nu and Skull and Bones running prosperous businesses to provide the right opening.

Before he started westward Watson personally and officially announced that after a short vacation he would begin his attack on the world. And he did.

Sits Before a Desk.

Yesterday morning Harpham of Yale sat in front of a desk in Evanston. There was no set of push buttons on the desk and no waiting stenographer sat at his side. The desk wasn't even his own. It was part of the furniture of his father's home at 931 Maple avenue Evanston.

In front of Harpham was a sheet of paper on which he had written a few lines. Those lines represented his capitulation. They were written for his father, Edwin L. Harpham, a lawyer, who had agreed to pay Watson $25 a week for clerical work "until he found himself."

Watson wasn't sure he was going to find himself. He wasn't sure, either, that the $25 a week was not a disguised form of paternal philanthropy.

Frat Brothers Fail Him.

The fraternity brothers had failed him. At least they had come forward with no offers and the late captain of the varsity polo team was too proud to go to them. To other persons of whom he had asked work the name Harpham of Yale meant nothing.

As Watson sat at the desk his mother was baking a cake in the kitchen—working. The maid was straightening up the bedrooms upstairs—working. His father was in his Chicago office—working. Willard Cobb, his chum at Evanston High school and his roommate at Yale, was in Arizona, teaching in a small college and earning his own way. Another chum was studying medicine, another law, to neither of which professions Watson leaned. Every one he knew had a job or was working toward a set goal.

Hear Pistol Shot.

In the bottom drawer of the desk was a loaded revolver, one of fifty in his father's collection of firearms. Presently Watson put down his pen and opened the bottom drawer.

Mrs. Harpham and the maid, both running, met a minute later at the door of the room in which Watson had started his career as an earner. Both had heard the same sound—a pistol shot.

They found Watson still on the desk. His head had fallen forward. The revolver was still in his hand. Dr. M. C. Bragdon, the family physician, said the bullet, lodging in his brain, had killed him instantly.

Watson left no note of explanation. To his family none was necessary.

"My son had grown despondent because he could not find a position that gave promise of something better in the future," said Edwin Harpham, who served as corporation counsel of Evanston ten years ago and now has a large private practice. "It was to be expected in a boy of his spirit, but I felt he would find a suitable position before long."

Invention of Foreigner Reported from Copenhagen Permits Taking of Picture via Mouth.

[By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Morning Post prints the following from Copenhagen under date of Nov. 4:

"An apparatus which should prove of considerable service to the surgical profession has been invented by M. Schirn Friedrickson. It permits the photography of the interior of the stomach via the mouth, thus enabling doctors accurately to locate cancers, ulcers, and other abnormal affections.

"The apparatus has been tested and is said to have given successful results."

HE'S BACK!

Here Is His Old "Injun Summer" Cartoon.

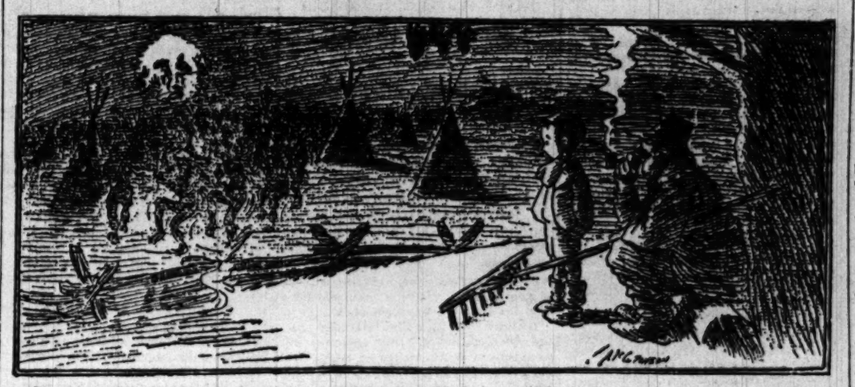
Mr. McCutcheon, Returned from the War, Will Resume His Daily Cartoons in "The Tribune" Next Sunday.

Yep, sonny, this is sure enough Injun summer. Don't know what that is, I reckon, do you?

Well, that's when all the homesick Injuns come back to play. You know, a long time ago, long afore yer granddaddy was born even, there used to be heaps of Injuns around here—thousands—millions, I reckon, far as that's concerned. Reg'lar sure 'nough Injuns—none o' yer cigar store Injuns, not much. They wus all around here—right where you're standin'. Don't be skeered—hain't none around here now, leastways, no live ones. They ben gone this many a year. They all went away and died, so they ain't no more left.

But every year, long about now, they all come back, leastways, their sperrits do. They're here now. You can see 'em off across the fields. Look real hard. See that kind o' hazy, misty look out yonder. Well, them's Injuns—Injun sperrits marchin' along an' dancin' in the sunlight. That's what makes that kind o' haze that's everywhere—it's jest the sperrits of the Injuns all come back. They're all around us now. See off yonder, see them tepees. They kind o' look like corn shocks from here, but them's Injun tents, sure as you're a foot high. See 'em now? Sure, I knowed you could. Smell that smoky sort o' smell in the air? That's the campfires a-burnin' and their pipes a-goin'. Lots o' people say it's jest leaves burnin', but it ain't. It's the campfires, an' th' Injuns are hoppin' round 'em t' beat the old Harry.



You jest come out here tonight when the moon is hangin' over the hill off yonder an' the harvest fields is all swimmin' in th' moonlight, an' you can see the Injuns and the tepees jest as plain as kin be. You can, eh? I knowed you could after a little while.

Jever notice how the leaves turn red 'bout this time o' year? That's jest another sign o' redskins. That's when an old Injun sperrit gits tired dancin' an' goes up an' squats on a leaf t' rest. Why, I kin hear 'em rustlin' an' whisperin' an' creepin' round among the leaves all the time; an' ever once in a while a leaf gives way under some fat old Injun ghost and comes floatin' down to the ground. See—here's one now. See how red it is. That's the war paint rubbed off'n an Injun ghost, sure's you're born.

Purty soon, all the Injuns'll go marchin' away agin, back to the happy huntin' ground, but next year you'll see 'em troopin' back—th' sky jest hazy with 'em and their campfires smolderin' away jest like they are now.

YANKEE WOMAN ON BATTLE LINE

SEES DUEL IN THE AIR.

[By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Nov. 5.—How Mrs. Barton French, a leader in New York and Newport society, watched an artillery duel between the British and Germans at the battle of the Aisne, was told today by herself for the first time.

Mrs. French went to the front on behalf of the American Ambulance association in Paris to make a report on field and base hospitals.

"It was my good fortune to drive several staff officers to the line in my car," she said, "and as a result I happened to see a small slice of the battle of the Aisne.

Officers Move Forward.

"The officers were anxious to watch artillery operations, so I took them to a point which I am not at liberty to mention on the heights overlooking the Aisne, where a battery was engaged with the Germans across the river. The officers apologetically informed me they would have to leave me, as they were going forward under fire, so I remained behind with the chauffeur.

"I could hear heavy guns booming near at hand, and finally curiosity overcame discretion, so, leaving the car hidden in the woods, I started across fields in the direction of the firing.

"Soon I could see shells bursting in the air, and all of a sudden the whole scene of the artillery duel was spread before me from the high plateau on which I was standing.

German Guns Hidden.

"The guns were below me and to my left, and the Germans were hidden on the opposite bank, but tiny puffs now and then rising above the trees showed me about where they were.

"It was so exciting the thought never occurred to me that I was in danger, and even when shrapnel burst a few hundred feet away I was so engrossed in the spectacle that my own peril seemed wholly unimportant.

"I had started back when we suddenly saw a Taube above the German lines and instantly afterwards heard the firing of anti-air craft guns from our side of the battle line. We stood there, the chauffeur and I, gazing breathlessly upward and beheld a monoplane set out after the invader.

"Then we witnessed that most thrilling of all conflicts—a duel in the air."

Drink Taboo in Fourteen States; 4 Added to List

OPTION IN SEVERAL

Fourteen states now have laws prohibiting the sale of alcoholic beverages. The fourteen include four states added to the "dry" list as the result of Tuesday's election. On the face of the returns prohibition has just been adopted by Arizona, Washington, Oregon, and Colorado.

The states which prohibit the sale of liquor are:

1. Arizona.
2. Colorado.
3. Georgia.
4. Kansas.
5. Maine.
6. Mississippi.
7. North Carolina.
8. North Dakota.
9. Oklahoma.
10. Oregon.
11. Tennessee.
12. Virginia.
13. Washington.
14. West Virgina.

Other States Partly Dry.

Alabama at one time adopted a prohibition amendment, but later rescinded it. South Carolina also is largely prohibition under various acts. In addition, a score of states have local option laws.

In Arizona, though that state voted dry Tuesday, there is a question whether the prohibition amendment added to the constitution is self-operative, or will require an emergency act by the the legislature before becoming effective Jan. 1.

Purdy Bullard, the retiring attorney general, put the question up to his successor, Wiley Jones, who said he would not express an opinion until he had taken office.

If an emergency act is necessary to make prohibition effective throughout the state another fight on the liquor issue will be precipitated in the legislature, where the liquor men believe it will be confronted by a hostile majority. In that event a referendum would be certain, with the question again on the ballot at the next general election.

Drys Hit in California.

Not only did the men and women voters of California bury state-wide prohibition on Tuesday by a majority that may reach close to 200,000, but they adopted a referendum amendment prohibiting another vote on the question within a period of eight years.

KAISER BARELY ESCAPES BOMBS

HIS TWO AIDS KILLED.

[By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Nov. 6.—A dispatch from northern France gives further details of the kaiser's narrow escape from death by bombs thrown by an airman attached to the allied army which was occupying the line from Nieuport to Ypres. For five days the emperor was present during the operations on that front, and it was because of his presence that the Germans made such persistent vigorous attacks.

Last Sunday the kaiser, with several aides de camp, arrived in a motor car at a tavern at Thielt, about 5 o'clock. Apartments had been reserved for the party and dinner was ready. The kaiser's personal baggage had already been deposited in his bedroom, which had been prepared for him to spend the night.

The kaiser was in a hurry and did not wait to dress for dinner, but immediately sat down to dine, and after the meal, instead of going to his room, he hurriedly left the tavern with two aides de camp and motored to the other end of the town, where fresh rooms were engaged.

Twenty minutes after the kaiser left the first tavern six bombs fell in the room where his baggage lay and completely destroyed it. The two aides de camp who remained in the tavern were killed. A motor car which was lying in the yard was wrecked.

VICTIM NOT CROWN PRINCE?

Investigator Is Assured Wounded Notable at Strassburg Is the Kaiser's Son-in-Law.

[By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Chronicle's correspondent at Milan telegraphs that the correspondent of Corriere de la Sera, who visited Baden for the purpose of investigating the report that the crown prince of Germany was lying seriously wounded at the royal palace at Strassburg, was assured that the illustrious victim is really the Duke Ernst August of Brunswick Lunebourg, the kaiser's son-in-law.

CZAR NEAR FIGHTING LINE.

Emperor of Russia Reaches Army Headquarters in Eastern Theater of War.

FRANCE HANDS TURKEY WAR ULTIMATUM

RUSS BORDER CLASH.

[By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Nov. 6, 5 a. m.—France has followed the lead of Great Britain and last night declared war on Turkey.

With Russia, Great Britain, and France as its foes Turkey soon may find Servia's war declaration placed on its front doorstep.

Fighting between the Turks and Russians is progressing, but, as was the case at the opening of the war between Russia and Austria, each side claims the advantage.

It is believed here that the clashes are merely "feelers" preparatory to sanguinary fighting which is bound to materialize within a few days.

The Anglo-French fleet continues to bombard the Dardanelles forts, but the Turks say the warships have inflicted no damage. British reports, however, insist that Forts Kumkaleh and Sidulbahr have been damaged.

Formal Declaration of War.

The proclamation, which was signed by King George after a meeting of the privy council at Buckingham palace, reads:

"Owing to hostile acts committed by Turkish forces under German officers, a state of war exists between Great Britain and Turkey from today and all proclamations and orders in council issued with reference to the state of war between Great Britain and Germany and Austria shall apply to the state of war between Great Britain and Turkey."

Persia Announces Neutrality.

Persia appears anxious to remain out of the conflict. An official statement has been presented to the powers announcing its strict neutrality.

The statement says that Persia, "now that the conflagration has extended to its territory," has renewed its assurances of strict neutrality and has asked for the good offices of Great Britain to prevent "the neutral soil of Persia from becoming a theater of war."

Great Britain has been given assurances by the leaders of the Moslems in the Malay states that its war against Turkey will not affect the loyalty of the Moslems to the empire.

According to a dispatch via Paris, American marines have been landed at Beirut, Syria, for the protection of American interests.

How Turks Held Up Refugees.

A dispatch from Dedeagatch in European Turkey, on the Ægean sea, to the Daily News, dated Nov. 3, describes the scenes of confusion which attended the departure of the French and British ambassadors.

The correspondent says Talaat Bey, minister of the interior, had agreed to provide a special train for the British and French refugees. These refugees had their passports vised at the last minute. The military officials countermanded the arrangements, and when the staffs of the two embassies arrived at the station later they were obliged to force their way through a crowd.

The correspondent says the tumult was indescribable. For a moment the situation was serious, but the arrival of the soldiers prevented the train on which the English and French were to travel from being rushed.

Morganthau Takes a Hand.

Henry Morgenthau, the American ambassador, was present to say farewell to his British and French colleagues, and the members of his staff received orders to move among the waiting refugees and tell them their departure would be arranged the next day. On receipt of this information the crowd of French and British who were to leave departed from the station and passed the night as best they could.

The following day Mr. Morgenthau took hold of the situation in an admirable manner and insisted in the strongest manner on the British and French being permitted to leave. He overcame all obstacles and obtained the necessary authority to start the refugees away.

Mr. Morgenthau placed the British who wanted to leave Constantinople under an obligation which they are not likely to forget. His staff also labored with willingness and sympathy.

France at War with Turkey.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—The French government tonight declared that "a state of war exists between France and Turkey." The following official note has been issued:

"The hostile acts of the Turkish fleet against a French steamer, causing the death of two Frenchmen and serious damage to the ship, not having been followed by the dismissal of the German naval military missions, the measure whereby Turkey could disclaim responsibility, the government of this republic is obliged to state that as a result of the action of

Turk Army on Frontier.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 5.—A Turkish army, 90,000 strong, consisting of the Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh army corps, is massed along the Caucasian frontier according to the Novoe Vremya. Many villages have been occupied by the outposts of this army.

This Turkish army, the Novoe Vremya continues, would consist under normal conditions of eighty battalions of infantry, sixty batteries of artillery, containing 230 guns, and forty squadrons of regular cavalry, but to it has been added fifty regiments of Kurd cavalry, amounting to 20,000 men.

Russia's sudden and energetic advance into Turkey is believed in Petrograd to have been meant to disband and overawe the Kurd tribes, who are little interested in the success of Turkish arms and are more concerned in the safety of their own villages. Among the towns occupied by the Russians is Akhty, an important junction of the highways to the upper Euphrates river.

It is rumored in Petrograd that Gen. Sanders Pasha will assume command of the Turkish troops on the Caucasian front.

Buss Report on Battles.

"Concerning the operations during the last twenty-four hours there is nothing important to report.

"Our troops are vigorously clearing the enemy's territory, which is occupied by small bands, the remnant of the Turkish vanguards defeated during the last few days.

"One of our columns has defeated the Turks near Bazygan, routing them and capturing the town. The Turks in their flight threw away their arms and scattered to the villages in the neighborhood.

"Our cavalry attacked to the east of Diyaden three Kurd regiments supported by infantry and threw them back."

Turks Claim Victory.

AMSTERDAM, via London, Nov. 5.—The following Turkish official statement is contained in a dispatch from Constantinople:

"The Russians are now strengthening their positions near the frontier, but have been repulsed completely from the Karaklissa and Teehan districts.

"During the bombardment at the entrance to the Dardanelles the hostile fleet fired 240 shells without causing material damage. Our forts fired only ten shots."

The Constantinople correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung has sent the following dispatch to his paper:

"The Turks attacked and destroyed a Cossack battalion on the Russo-Turkish frontier near Ordulla and then crossed the frontier, taking up a strong position in Russian territory."

BRITISH VICTORS IN BAYONET DUEL AT ARMENTIERES

BY MARTIN DONOHUE.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The tide of war in Belgium has been flowing from the seashore toward the south for two days The Germans have been directing fierce attacks against the allied line, bringing up heavy reinforcements of first line troops from Ghent and Bruges and throwing them at once into the fighting.

The chief German attacks on the line thinly held by the British forces were launched against Armentieres and Arras, two army corps taking part, supported by heavy artillery.

A new type of mortar, throwing a projectile weighing several hundred pounds, was used against the allies at Armentieres, but not with much success. The shells, fired at a high angle, fell into the trenches with precision, but buried themselves deep in the soft soil, doing little damage.

Bombard for Three Hours.

The bombardment continued for three hours, the British remaining quietly under cover of their trenches and bomb-proof shelters. Orders then were given to the Germans to carry the trenches by storm. The British gave no signs of life. As the Germans advanced the British manned the trenches afresh and the British batteries, which had not yet come into action from their hiding places among brushwood in the fields behind, opened fire.

Many German soldiers went down to rise no more. The shells plowed through, making great rents in the oncoming closely packed German ranks. The advance was stopped and the surviving Germans went to work frantically with their intrenching tools, digging themselves into cover. By this time the British infantry had found them and punished them terribly.

Kaiser at the Front.

The kaiser and the king of Saxony were present at the German headquarters and the kaiser repeated his order, "On to Calais."

The German artillery began a fresh bombardment, continuing it for an hour, and then the infantry, which had burrowed into the earth, crawled out and made another attack.

Shrapnel and rifle fire had no difficulty in finding these human targets. The dull-gray German line, urged forward by its officers, came on, leaving behind it at each step a trail of dead and dying. One could not help admiring the bravery of these men, who marched calmly toward certain death. No soldiers who ever faced an enemy could stand against this bullet storm and live. For the second time the German infantry wavered. Then it went down as one man and sought cover.

Germans Are Mowed Down.

The enemy was an easy target for the gunners and riflemen. The minutes went by and it was clear that if the Germans stayed where they were they must be annihilated. Their officers thought so, too, and ordered a fresh advance, but the men who had passed through such a hellish ordeal showed no inclination to rise up and close with the British. Here it was that our chance came. The terrible punishment sustained had practically demoralized the enemy. Suddenly our artillery and rifle fire ceased, a low word of command ran along the trenches. In stained khaki the soldiers appeared above ground. As they clambored into the open other lines followed.

First bayonets were fixed and the khaki swarm swung forward. The coming of the British stimulated the hesitating German infantry into activity. They fired one volley and then sprang to their feet and went to right about. One line sought to cover the retreat. With fixed bayonets they faced the advancing British. A long low murmur of satisfaction ran along our front and the men broke into a cheer as they closed with the enemy and bayonet met bayonet.

Big Mortar British Prize.

There was thrust and parry. The swaying mass of struggling men in khaki and dull gray were at death grips. Now the swaying mass separated and the two lines broke. The men in dull gray were running and those in khaki were cheering.

Back went the Germans, and in pursuit went the British. The enemy rallied round the mortar which earlier had been so active in shelling our position. Here a desperate hand to hand struggle took place, the British devoting all their energies to capturing the gun. Its German defenders had fallen and the prize was in our possession.

French Official Statement.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—The French official announcement given out in Paris tonight merely confirmed the one given out during the afternoon, which says:

"On our left wing the allied forces have made slight progress to the east of Nieuport, on the right bank of the Yser. From Dixmude to the Lys, the German attacks were renewed yesterday, but at a number of points with lessened energy, particularly with regard to the actions of their infantry.

Rival Artillery at Work.

"Between the region of La Bassee and the Somme the day was notable, particularly for an artillery contest.

"In the region of Roye we have maintained our occupation of Le Quesnoy-en-Santerre and advanced perceptibly in the direction of Andechy.

"On the center, between the Oise and the Moselle, there has been a recrudescence of the activity of the Germans, manifested particularly by their artillery fire.

"On our right wing there is nothing new to report."

Germans Claim Advantages.

BERLIN, via London, Nov. 5.—The German general headquarters issued the following statement today:

"Yesterday the Belgians, assisted by British and French troops, made a fierce attack by way of Nieuport between the sea and the inundations, but they were easily repulsed.

"Near Ypres, southwest of Lille, and south of Berry-au-Bac, in the Argonne region, and in the Vosges our attacks are progressing. In the eastern theater of war there have been no material events."

Was Major in Coldstream Guards —Saxon Minister of War Incapacitated by Heart Disease.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Maj. Leslie D'Henin Hamilton of the Goldstream guards and the heir presumptive to Lord Hamilton of Dalzell, it is announced today, was killed in action on Oct. 25.

The Hon. Robert Bruce, master of Burleigh, eldest son and heir of Baron Balfour of Burleigh, and officer in Princess Louise's regiment (Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders) is also named among those killed in action.

Private letters received here announce the death in action of Lieut. Simon Fraser, son of Baron Saltoun, and of Maj. Arthur Percival, son of the Right Rev. J. Percival, bishop of Hereford. The dowager duchess of Dufferin has received news that both her sons, Lord Basil Blackwood and Lord Frederick Blackwood, have been wounded.

The Amsterdam correspondent of Reuter's telegraphs that a message from Berlin says the Saxon minister of war, Gen. von Carlowitz, stricken with heart disease in the French arena of the war, has gone to Nauheim, where he will be cared for.

Prussian Prince Wounded.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 5.—Prince Albrecht of Prussia is reported among the wounded in the latest German casualty list.

German General Wounded.

GENEVA, via Paris, Nov. 6, 12:25 a. m. —Lieut. Gen. Bertholdt von Deimling, the German commander, has been slightly wounded in the thigh by shrapnel on the firing line, according to the Wolff agency. He continues in command of his troops.

TWO FRENCH AIR HEROES DIE IN ACCIDENTAL FALL.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Nov. 5.—The following note was appended to the official communique tonight:

"Accident from some unknown cause resulted today in the deaths of two aviators, Capt. Faure and Capt. Remy, when their aeroplane fell on the roof of a house at Issy-les-Moulineaux. They were two of the army's most distinguished pilots."

Burns to Death in Midair.

ALDERSHOT, England, Nov. 5.—Aviator Busk of the air craft staff, was burned to death in midair today when a biplane which he was testing caught fire.

While about 1,000 feet above the ground the biplane suddenly burst into flames. Busk tried to descend by gliding. He continued this for nearly a mile, the air craft meanwhile blazing furiously. The aviator was burned to death before the machine struck the ground.

Lieut. Murray lost his life in an aeroplane accident at the Avon flying school this morning. It is believed he miscalculated the distance while landing. His machine crashed to the earth and he was killed.

CONDITIONS IN BELGIUM WORSE THAN DESCRIBED.

Official of American Relief Body, Back in London, Says People Have Little to Eat.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Millard K. Shaler of the American relief commission for Belgium arrived in London from Brussels today. He says:

"The conditions in Belgium are even worse than described. I was accompanied by H. A. Johnson, the American consul at Ghent and Ostend, and the Dutch consul at Ghent.

"Between Antwerp and Malines the destruction of the habitations in every town and hamlet was practically universal. Families were living in partially burned buildings or improvised structures, and suffering intensely. Food practically does not exist."

CZAR CONTINUES VIGOROUS FIGHT

TURK GROWING FACTOR

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PETROGRAD, Nov. 5.—Everywhere except in south Poland the Germans have been beaten back to their own frontier and the Russian advance down the Vistula river has broken the resistance of the combined German and Austrian force, which must now retreat or be cut off.

The forward movement of the Russians is now general and it is predicted here that the Grand Duke Nicholas will be in a position to invade Silesia sooner than had been expected. The unlooked for weakness of the Germans in East Prussia and north and central Poland has put Russian prospects in the most favorable light.

The most important result of the rapid pursuit by the Russians will be that Germany cannot carry out her reported plan to send several army corps from the east to reinforce the armies in Belgium and France.

Russians Advancing in Prussia.

In East Prussia the Russians are attacking fiercely and are driving the Germans from lines of defense well within German territory. Lyck has been taken, and Mlawa, used by the Germans for many weeks as a base for operations in north Poland, is now in the hands of the Russians.

The following official statement was issued tonight by the general staff:

"We have continued our progress on the east Prussian front. The Germans are falling back along the whole front, keeping only their fortified position in the region of Werbolowo.

Pursue Austrians in South.

"On the left bank of the Vistula the Russian army is continuing a vigorous offensive and is pursuing the retreating enemy. The crossing of the San by our troops continues successfully. The Austrians are retreating. Austrian deserters, of whom the number is increasing incessantly, state that discord reigns between the Austrians and the Germans. They also declare that the latter have suffered enormous losses."

The German retreat from Poland has resulted in the transfer of Gen. von Hindenburg's headquarters to Czanstachowa, on the Silesian frontier. The new position of the German rear guards at the River Warthe, almost at the frontier and about eighty miles west of the Vistula, indicates the tremendous retreat of the German forces.

The retreat is considered especially important because the Russians have been able to recapture such industrial centers as Lodz, Petrokov, Radom, Kielce, and Sandomier. The Russians have received enormous reinforcements.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

[War Correspondent of The Tribune.]

LAON, France, Oct. 16.—The fate of Manonviller underscored the lesson taught by Liege and Maubeuge.

Manonviller was the newest of French forts and it lasted one day. It cost France $10,000,000 and it was reduced by 147 shots from two of the 42 centimeter German guns, the same guns that were known at Liege as "the Krupp surprise." These two guns were planted nine miles away and not one of their shots missed the fort. Their target—the fort itself, was 800 meters long and 400 meters wide.

Take 1,400 Prisoners.

Fourteen hundred prisoners and munitions for six months fell into the hands of the Germans. The French scouting is said to have been so inefficient that the fortress was surrounded before the garrison knew it. Only one of the prisoners was wounded.

Manonviller lies sixty miles to the east of Laon and some of the German officers on duty here were present at the capture of the fortress.

Finds a Few Forts "Missing."

A German officer who was in charge of observations made around Maubeuge preliminary to the bombardment of the forts Des Sarts and Boussois was much puzzled by his inability to find certain forts and intermediate works shown on the French maps of Maubeuge and its environs.

In the course of the day's scouting the officer repeatedly questioned the old French peasant, who acted as his guide, as to the location of these mysterious defenses. He received only the vaguest relies. At the end of the day, when the German gave the peasant a couple of marks and some cigars for his services, the old man became more communicative.

Forts Never Were Built.

"Those forts," he said, "that you were looking for all day have never been built. They are only staked out. The map lies."

German officers who heard the story said: "It is not improbable that we shall find similar conditions around Antwerp."

The scheme of fortifications in Belgium —including the forts at Liege, Namur, and Antwerp—was projected forty years ago by Gen. Brialmont. His pleas for funds to carry on the work led him into a long and bitter controversy with the statesman Woest, leader of the Catholic party. Woest fought every appropriation for which Brialmont asked, with the result that some were never made and others were materially reduced.

It was Woest's frequent assertion—based, it is believed, on a secret understanding he hoped to have with Germany —that he could "hold Belgium against Germany with eighty Belgium gendarmes."

Reckoned Without Big Guns.

Woest could not have foreseen the coming of the 42 centimeter gun, which nullifies all schemes of fortification, but his antagonism to Brialmont's plans nevertheless saved Belgium vast and, as the event proves, useless expenditures.

Brialmont is dead.

Woest, still a leader in the councils of the Catholic party, is living at the age of 80, and is described by the Belgians as "a wonderful old man."

There is no doubt that the popular mind in Belgium had long held the conviction that in certain inner government circles there was a pro-German faction, and one of the Catholic newspapers was regarded as emphatically pro-German. To that faction the king was known to be opposed. The feeling of suspicion reached its height on the morning when the twelve hours allowed by Germany for Belgium's reply to the German ultimatum were drawing to a close. That reply was not made known to the people until within fifteen minutes of the expiration of the time limit.

Feared They'd Be "Sold Out."

Meanwhile the whisper ran all night long through Brussels that the government was plotting to sell out Belgium to Germany. The more plausible explanation of the delay would have been that the government was making the best possible arrangement with England and France, but anxiety had rendered the public mind credulous and feverish. Events soon proved the baseness of the slander that had gone whispering through the cafés of Brussels on that August night.

BRITISH BRAVE UNDERSEA BLOW

Defeat Off Chile Fails to Shake Belief in Ultimate Naval Victory.

GERMAN SHIPS LOST?

[By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Despite the defeat of the British squadron under Rear Admiral Cradock off the Chilean coast on Sunday, Britishers are confident that their naval supremacy will not be taken from them when the final test comes.

The defeat in South Pacific waters naturally is the most discussed subject of the war in Great Britain. Some critics place the blame on the admiralty, while others point to it as a mere unfortunate incident.

To Wipe Germans Off Pacific.

It is believed that the German boats, victorious in this battle, soon will be wiped off the seas.

As soon as the German fortress at Taing-Tau falls, the British and Japanese warships engaged there will start out in an endeavor to round up the eight or nine German cruisers still roving the seas.

Then, Britishers say, there will be another story to tell.

Expect North Sea Battle.

In the meantime Britishers are momentarily expecting to hear of a clash in the North sea and possibly in the Baltic. It is known that German warships are on the move and they may be expected to strike at the first opportunity.

Another victim of the North sea mines was the sweeper Mary. It was sunk today and only six of the crew of fourteen were saved. Those who landed at Lowestoft said they had heard heavy gun firing off the Yorkshire coast this afternoon It is just possible the British squadron has met up with some German ships sent out to reconnoiter.

German Cruisers Missing.

VALPARAISO, Chile, Nov. 5.—A wireless cry from the British cruiser Glasgow —intercepted by the German victors—was the last word received from Rear Admiral Cradock's squadron following the engagement off the Chilean coast Sunday. There was no reply to the radiogram.

The Germans saw the Monmouth sink and heard an explosion on board the Good Hope which they believe sent the crippled flagship to the bottom. All that night the German cruiser Nurnberg searched the seas unsuccessfully for the Good Hope.

There were about 650 men on the Monmouth when it went down. Rear Admiral Cradock had 900 men with him on board the Good Hope. Whether the Glasgow and the transport Otranto, which escaped destruction, survived the damage suffered is not known.

The whereabouts also of the German cruisers Leipzig and Bremen remains in doubt.

German officers were not backward about commending the bravery of the Britishers in the uneven combat and intimated that an effort to save lives would have been made if the storm, which assumed almost hurricane proportions, had permitted.

BUY A FEW DIRIGIBLES, ARMY OFFICIAL URGES.

Recommends One to Every Thirty-five Aeroplanes in His Report—Holds Latter Best Craft.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 5.—How the aeroplane has wrought tremendous changes in the game of war, as is being demonstrated now on the battlefields of Europe, was pointed out by Brig. Gen. Scriven, chief of the army signal corps, in his annual report submitted today to Secretary Garrison.

Dirigibles as service units, the officer consigned to the "waiting list." He recommends that the aeroplane continue to be the main reliance of the United States army for aerial work, remarking that he was "not yet prepared to recommend that the army take up the dirigible seriously, as its value is still believed to be indeterminate; it requires too many favorable conditions to insure success and its cost is comparatively great."

In order to encourage American manufacturers in endeavor along this line, however, he suggested that a few dirigibles might be purchased for experimental purposes, maintaining a ratio of about one dirigible to thirty-five aeroplanes. As to types of aeroplanes he said the biplane had many advantages over the monoplane for military purposes.

FURIOUS FIGHT AROUND YPRES GOES ON DAILY

Germans Force Britons Back, Only to Be Driven from Positions.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The following descriptive account which has been communicated by an eye witness present with the general headquarters continues and supplements the narrative published Nov. 3 of the movements of the British force and of the French armies in immediate touch with it:

"Nov. 1. In spite of the great losses which they suffered in their attacks last week, the Germans have continued their offensive toward the west almost continuously during the five days from Oct. 26 to Oct. 30. Opposite us it has gradually grown in intensity and in extent of application as more men and guns have been brought up and pushed into their right, and it has developed in the most bitterly contested battle which has been fought in the western theater of the war.

Artillery Brought from Antwerp.

"The German artillery has to a large extent been increased by that transferred from around Antwerp. As regards infantry, it is possible that some of the additional troops now appearing on our front have been rendered available by relaxation of the pressure against our allies to the north of Ypres, caused by the desperate and successful resistance made by the latter, by the harassing nature of the artillery fire brought to bear by our ships against the strip of country along the coast and by the flooding of the area along the river Yser.

"Forces have been massed also from the south, while another of the new army corps has definitely made its debut before us, and though attempts to back, or rather to blast and hack a way through us have been made in other directions, they have for the last few days been most seriously concentrated upon the neighborhood of Ypres.

"On Monday, the twenty-sixth, south of the Lys on our right the enemy attacked Neuvechappele, one of the villages held by us. In the evening advancing under cover of a wood, they managed to gain possession of a portion of it north of the Lys.

"In the center a bombardment alone was kept up and some ground was made by us.

"Near our left the Germans developed a very strong attack on the section of our line to the east of Ypres. Though supported by a great mass of artillery, this was checked, but it had two results. One was that our position was readjusted and the other was that our extreme left alone advanced in conjunction with some of our allies.

Entire Village Captured.

"On Tuesday, the twenty-seventh, the Germans rather focused their principal attention on our right center and right and most desperate fighting took place for the possession of Neuvechappele. In spite of repeated counter attacks by our troops the enemy during the day managed to hold on to the northern part of the village, which they had gained the day before.

"Toward evening we had gradually regained part of the place by step-by-step fighting, when fresh hostile reinforcements were brought up, and the entire village was captured by the enemy.

"They made several assaults against our whole front south of the Lys, but with the exception of their success at Neuvechappele won no advantage.

Shell Kills Eleven.

"North of the river our center was subjected to a heavy shell fire from pieces of various sizes. Our guns were by no means idle, and one of our patrols found eleven Germans dead and one rendered unconscious by fumes in a farm on which they had observed one of our lyddite shells detonate.

"Towards our left the readjustment of our line, commenced on Monday, was completed and some redistribution of strength was effected on the extreme left. The ground gained at Neuvechappele was again the scene of desperate fighting on Wednesday, the 28th. Some of our Indian troops greatly distinguished themselves by a well conducted counter attack, by which they drove the Germans out of the greater part of the place with the bayonet.

"On emerging from the village, however, they were exposed to a concentrated fire of machine guns and had to remain contented with what they had gained.

Germans Lose 200.

"On the left during the morning the enemy made attacks under cover of the usual bombardment, but each effort was repulsed with great slaughter. One of our trenches was carried and then recovered after a loss of 200 dead had been inflicted on the enemy.

"On our center north of the Lys nothing of particular moment occurred. On the extreme left our advance was not pressed, and the enemy remained in possession of Becelaere. A night attack by them was repulsed. The next day the centers of pressure were for the foremost part our two flanks south of the Lys.

"On our right the Germans delivered an assault which failed. In front of one battalion they are estimated to have left between 600 and 700 dead, while not far off a trench into which they had penetrated was captured by us at an expense to them of seventy killed and fourteen prisoners.

Encounter Trench Mortar.

"In the center little took place worthy of especial record. A few Germans came in and surrendered voluntarily. In this quarter we experienced for the first time in the northern theater of the war the action of the minenwerfer, or trench mortar. It has a range of some 500 to 600 yards and throws a bomb loaded with a high explosive weighing up to 200 pounds, being fired at an extreme elevation from the bottom of a pit in the trench.

"About midnight our line was attacked in two places. One of these efforts did not mature, as the ground over which the German infantry had to advance was well swept by our guns.

"In this case the assault was carried out against one of our brigades by a force of some twelve battalions. With self-restraint our men held their fire for forty minutes until the attackers got quite close and then drove them back with a loss of 200 killed. The enemy penetrated into a portion of one of our trenches, but were driven out again, losing eighty men killed or captured.

Recover Lost Ground.

"The really important feature in this day's operations occurred north of the Lys and consisted of an onslaught in great force made in the morning in the direction of Ypres. After a heavy cannonade the assault was driven home and a portion of our front line was forced back. By evening the lost ground was recovered and in some places more than recovered, with the exception of one part to which the enemy clung.

"Our losses were heavy, but not so severe as those of the enemy, who at one spot suffered enormously from the concentrated fire of our massed machine guns."

BRITAIN ANNEXES ISLAND OF CYPRUS, TURK TERRITORY.

Purpose Is to Protect It in View of Annulled Defensive Alliance with the Sultan.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Great Britain today formally annexed the island of Cyprus in the Mediterranean, which nominally formed a part of the Turkish empire.

The defensive alliance between Great Britain and Turkey having become annulled by the outbreak of the war, the British government decided that it was necessary to appropriate the island in order that proper provision might be made for its government and for its protection.

The island, since the Anglo-Turkish convention of 1878, has been occupied and administered by Great Britain, though it had remained under the suzerainty of the sultan.

BRITISH OFFICIALLY DENY BOMBARDMENT OF JIDDAH.

Have Given Word That Holy Places and Shrines in Arabia Will Be Immune from Attack.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The report current in London last night that the British cruiser Minerva had bombarded the Arabian seaport of Jiddah, on the Red sea, is devoid of foundation. The Minerva has not been within 500 miles of the place.

On issuing this denial the London official press bureau published the text of a proclamation circulated in India pledging the British government not to molest the holy places in Arabia.

Orders Hospital Shirts in U. S.

Reading, Pa., Nov. 5.—A Reading firm today received an order for 600,000 hospital shirts for the British army. The contract is for $350,000. It will require nearly 2,000,000 yards of muslin to fill the order.

FULL RETURNS IN; SHERMAN VICTOR BY 14,991 VOTES

Downstate Piles Up Plurality; Roger Sullivan Not to Contest.

Complete returns from every county of the state, the most of which are official, show Lawrence Y. Sherman has been re-elected to the United States senate from Illinois by a plurality over Roger C. Sullivan of 14,991, nine votes less than an even 15,000.

The final totals, as compiled by the Associated Press at midnight, gave:

Sherman 386,229
Sullivan 371,238
Robins 197,604
Sherman's plurality... 14,991

Senator Sherman's election is claimed by the Republican state committee, which received returns from over the state practically identical with the figures reported by the Associated Press.

Roger "Watchfully Waiting."

Roger C. Sullivan, pursuing a policy of "watchful waiting," has not admitted his defeat. It is certain he has no intention of making a formal contest of Senator Sherman's election in the event the final and official canvass gives the plurality which the police return in Chicago and the count as reported from the 101 downstate counties indicate is Sherman's.

The official canvass of the Chicago vote was started in the office of the board of election commissioners, watched and supervised by as formidable a contingent of legal representatives and technical experts as ever guarded a count in Cook county. The formality of the affair kept the speed at the lowest maximum and but three precincts of the First ward were totaled officially. In the three Sullivan made a net gain of four votes over the police returns.

Final Canvass Two Weeks Off.

This morning three "teams" will be put to work, each supervised by one of the three election commissioners. At the rate of speed which has been established the official vote in Cook county will not be known for at least ten days, and the final canvass to be made in Springfield by the state board of canvassers will not be determined in less than two weeks.

John E. Northup, special state's attorney, was present at the beginning of the official Cook county canvass, representing Senator Sherman. Former Senator Thomas J. Dawson appeared as the representative of Mr. Sullivan.

Mr. Sullivan's supporters were buoyed up by the hope that the official canvass in Cook county will increase materially Mr. Sullivan's plurality over Sherman through discrepancies as reported by the police returns. The Democrats did not disguise their disappointment at reports from counties west and south of Springfield normally Democratic.

Sullivan was slaughtered particularly in the Democratic dry counties.

State G. O. P. Ticket Wins.

The Republican state ticket has been elected in its entirety, including the two Republican candidates for congress at large.

For state treasurer returns from 55 out of 101 downstate counties give to Andrew Russel, Republican, a plurality of 28,000, approximately. W. C. Clifford, Democrat, carried Cook county by only 13,000, so that Russel's ultimate plurality is likely to be in excess of 40,000.

Moore, the Democratic candidate for state superintendent of public instruction, obtained a plurality of but 6,087 in Cook county. The net plurality of Francis G. Blair, Republican, in the entire state is expected to go close to 75,000.

Vail In by 25,000.

Charles W. Vail, for clerk of the Supreme court, is elected by a plurality over Alexander W. Crawford of not less than 25,000, and probably much larger, when all of the downstate counties are reported. There is some doubt as to the university trustees, but the indications are that all three of the Republicans have been elected, Mrs. Laura B. Evans, Arthur P. Grout, and Dr. J. T. Montgomery.

Robert F. Carr, Democrat, who ran far ahead of his ticket in Cook county, believes he has done equally as well downstate and has been elected.

B. M. Chiperfield and J. McCann Davis have been elected as congressmen at large, beyond doubt.

At midnight it appeared the Republicans have elected seventy-eight members of the lower house at Springfield and are in position to choose the speaker if the speakership is to be determined in a Republican caucus.

House Dry; Senate Wet.

This condition may be radically changed by a determination by the "drys" that the organization of the house must be determined upon wet and dry lines. Apparently the state senate is in control of the Democrats by a constitutional majority of twenty-six. The house seems to be dry and the senate wet.

RACE IN NEVADA IN DOUBT.

Only Few Votes Separate Newlands and Platt for Senator—Official Count Will Be Necessary.

Carson, Nev., Nov. 5.—Who was elected United States senator in Nevada on Tuesday must remain undetermined until the official count of the votes has been completed. With 182 out of 240 precincts reported tonight, the vote stood:

Francis G. Newlands, Democrat, 7,751; Samuel Platt, Republican, 7,649. ¼

The fifty-eight missing precincts are in remote mountain desert districts, without telegraph or telephone, and the result of their vote will not be known until the ballot boxes have been conveyed overland to their respective county seats.

TWO PARTIES LOSE IDENTITY.

Progressives and Socialists in Rhode Island Fail to Cast Enough Votes to Retain Circle.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 5.—As neither the Progressives nor Socialists cast 2 per cent of the total vote for governor on Tuesday they lose their standing as legal political parties in this state. The Republicans and the Democrats are now the only parties entitled to nominate their candidates through the caucus system.

DEMOCRATS MAY INCREASE LEAD IN THE SENATE

Majority Is Likely to Be Augmented; Three Seats Remain in Doubt.

Additional returns of the election received last night disclose the possibility that the Democrats have made a net gain of more than one seat in the United States senate.

Previous reports showed that the Democrats gained two senators—one in South Dakota and one in California—while they lost one in Colorado. Now it appears that the result is decidedly in doubt in three states.

In Wisconsin the Democrats are claiming the election of Paul O. Husting over Gov. McGovern, the Republican candidate.

The latest figures testify to the closeness of the contest in Colorado, where the seat of Senator Thomas, Democrat, is at stake, and in Nevada, where Senator Newlands, Democrat, is only a few votes ahead of the Republican candidate.

Complete returns establish the election in Kansas of former Senator Curtis, Republican, over Neeley and Murdock, and the reelection of Senator Smoot, Republican, in Utah.

Changes in House Impending.

Many changes in the organization of the house of representatives will be made at the beginning of the next congress. The dwindling of the Democratic majority, which will drop from 145 to 24, will necessitate a general shifting of the working order.

With their slender majority the Democrats, while able to reelect Speaker Clark and retain control of the committees, will be forced to maintain an almost perfect organization. Even with a full attendance in the house, a shift of twelve votes would throw the control to the minority side.

Talk of Bolt by Tammany.

The latest turn to the talk of Democratic insurgency developing from the reduction of the majority to the danger point has been furnished by the Tammany members of the New York delegation.

Tammany, it is reported from Washington, intends to threaten President Wilson with rebellion in the house unless he recognizes Tammany's claims on administration patronage. As there are seventeen Tammany congressmen they would be able, if united, to throw control of the house to the Republicans and obstruct the Democratic program generally.

Tammany has been embroiled with the White House on patronage questions ever since Wilson became president. If the Tammany members make good their threat of revolt in the next congress it will not be the first time Tammany has deserted the Democratic leadership. Representative Fitzgerald and other Tammanyites led the Democratic defection which enabled Cannon to put through his rules in 1909.

Practically complete returns last night gave the Democrats, 229; Republicans, 196; Progressives, 7; Socialists, 1; independents, 1. This would give the Democrats a plurality of 33 over the Republicans, and of 24 over the combined opposition.

Progressives to Lose Posts.

This narrow margin will probably result in a rearrangement of committee representation, the Democrats now holding overwhelming majorities in all of the standing committees. The falling off of the Progressives from sixteen in the present house to seven probably will cut down their committee representation materially.

Democratic leadership in the house will undergo great changes. Representative Underwood was elected to the senate, therefore Representative Kitchin of North Carolina, the ranking Democrat on the ways and means committee, will claim the Democratic leadership by right of seniority, and is expected to have the support of southern Democrats.

Representative Mann of Illinois undoubtedly will retain the Republican leadership, facing the Democrats with formidable support.

In the senate the indicated increase in the Democratic majority was welcomed by administration leaders, who have been hampered during the present congress by the narrow margin of their control.

WOMEN CAN VOTE IN 11 STATES NOW

Nevada and Montana Won to Equal Suffrage; Five Others Reject It.

THEIR EFFECT FELT.

Women now have full suffrage in eleven states and in the territory of Alaska, according to latest returns last night from Tuesday's election, which apparently gave the franchise to women in Nevada and Montana.

Late tabulation of the vote on equal suffrage in Nevada and Montana did not upset the lead previously recorded in favor of the women, but rural and mountainous counties had not reported. These missing precincts might overturn the 300 vote lead in Montana, but probably not the lead of 3,500 in Nevada.

In addition to the eleven states now listed as granting full suffrage to women, they have the right to vote for certain officers in twenty-two other states.

The Eleven Suffrage States.

The eleven woman suffrage states and the years of granting the franchise are:

1. Wyoming 1890
2. Colorado 1893
3. Utah 1896
4. Idaho 1896
5. Washington ..1910
6. California 1911
7. Arizona 1912
8. Kansas 1912
9. Oregon 1912
10. Nevada 1914
11. Montana 1914

The twenty-two states allowing partial suffrage to women are: Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Iowa, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska (defeated full suffrage Tuesday), New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Ohio (defeated full suffrage in 1912 and on Tuesday), South Dakota, Vermont, and Wisconsin.

Despite the claims of woman suffrage leaders that they won the vote in some of the other seven states which voted on the subject Tuesday, late returns bear out early indications that the franchise was denied women in Ohio, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, and South Dakota.

Effects of Women's Votes.

Officers of the National Woman Suffrage association tonight began to recapitulate the results of women's votes in the various states in which they balloted on Tuesday. They contend that the women were instrumental in California in passing the laws that will drive out pugilism and segregated vice quarters and failed in driving out saloons only because of the too drastic provisions of the amendment.

The suffragist leaders also assert that women showed their power at the polls in Chicago by electing as judge of the Municipal court Charles L. Billings, who introduced in the Illinois legislature the bill that gave women the right to vote for many offices in Illinois. Billings would have been defeated by the men's vote.

The leaders also declare that women aided materially in voting prohibition on Tuesday for Washington, Oregon, and Colorado.

MRS. TROUT MAKES DENIAL.

issued a statement yesterday saying she will not be a candidate for president of the national organization when its meets in Nashville Nov. 12 to 17. Numerous rumors have been started to the effect she would run against Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, who is up for reelection. Mrs. Trout is not in sympathy with the policies of Dr. Shaw, and she has been repeatedly urged to run for president. Her statement follows:

"In view of erroneous reports being circulated broadcast throughout the country that I am to be a candidate for the presidency of the National American Woman Suffrage association, I wish to say that I have never been a candidate in the past, and now make this final statement that under no circumstances will I allow my name to be used at Nashville as a candidate for that office."

HE'S YOUNGEST LEGISLATOR.

H. C. Kessinger of Aurora, Elected to State Assembly, Just Passed 25 Years.

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—Harold C. Kessinger, Republican, elected state representative of the Fourteenth district Tuesday, will be the youngest member of the general assembly at Springfield. He has just passed his twenty-fifth birthday, the age a man must reach before he can become a member of the legislature. Kessinger has been dubbed "the Boy Orator of the Fox River Valley." He received the largest number of votes of the three candidates who were elected. In a public announcement he has said he is opposed to county option, but that he does favor state option.

FIGHT FOR GAVEL MAY BE MUDDLED BY SALOON ISSUE

War on Prohibitionists' Legislature May Sweep Away Party Lines.

The wet and dry issue, precipitated yesterday as the decisive issue in the Illinois speakership, seems likely to prevent the election of a speaker by the Republicans of the next Illinois house on strictly political lines.

The latest returns show that the makeup of the house, politically, will be:

Republicans 78
Democrats 70
Progressives 3
Socialists 2

These figures may be changed by subsequent figures, but were believed by the interested legislative leaders as approximately correct.

House Dry by Two.

The house is believed to be dry by not more than two majority, and included in the dry column are at least six members elect, who were not pledged openly to the legislative policy of the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois prior to the election, but who are figured "dry" because they hail from known anti-saloon districts and received the support of saloon foes on the supposition that they would line up with the drys in the next house.

The senate, according to the latest returns, will be controlled by the Democrats by the bare constitutional majority of twenty-six, provided there is no break in the ranks due to factional or personal disturbances, such as marked the Democratic side in the last session of the general assembly.

Changes in Results.

Revised reports showed that these changes have been made in the table of members elect of the house, as printed in THE TRIBUNE yesterday:

H. S. Hicks, Progressive, is elected in the Tenth district in place of Floyd J. Tilton, Democrat.

R. R. Thompson, Democrat, is elected in the Twelfth district in place of George L. Maxeiner, Republican.

D. B. Ellis, Republican, is elected in the Fourteenth district in place of Charles Doetschmann, Progressive.

Robert Howard, Democrat, is elected in the Thirty-fourth district in place of E. W. Green, Democrat.

Owen B. West, Democrat, is elected in the Forty-third district in place of E. W Duvall, Democrat.

Five G. O. P. Candidates.

There will be at least five Republican candidates in the field for the speakership. These are Edward D. Shurtleff, Homer J. Tice, George H. Wilson, Walter M. Provine, and William J. Butler.

On the Democratic side the candidates will be John S. Burns, who made open announcement of his candidacy during the day; Lee O'Neil Browne, W. C. Kane, Michael L. Igoe, and William A. Hubbard.

Mr. Shurtleff, it was stated on the highest authority, will not make an active campaign for the speakership and may not be a candidate when the flag drops, preferring to remain on the floor.

Mr. Tice is figured as the candidate of the Sherman Republicans. Mr. Wilson will run as a straight dry Republican. Mr. Provine is listed as the Deneen Republican aspirant and Mr. Butler, just elected from the Springfield district, is tabbed as a free lance.

RETURN CURTIS TO SENATE.

Kansas Republicans Elect Him, After Absence of Two Years, to Succeed Bristow.

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 5.—Charles Curtis, Republican, is going back to the United States senate after an absence of two years, to succeed Senator Joseph L. Bristow, whom Curtis defeated for the nomination in the primaries. With all counties heard from tonight Curtis has a plurality of 4,782 votes over Congressman George A. Neeley, Democrat.

SCULLY TO CHOP OFF FEW HEADS

County Judge Elect Expects to Retain Most of Election Officials.

BIG PLUMS WILL DROP.

There is not going to be such a violent shaking up of the patronage in the election machinery of Chicago and Cicero after all.

County Judge-elect Thomas F. Scully, according to authoritative information, made his peace with a lot of primary election enemies in the last week of the campaign. It is believed Chief Clerk William N. Stuart will be retained in his position for another four years.

Charles H. Kellerman, president of the election board and one of the big guns in the United Societies, is slated for retention unless Anton Cermak decides that some other Societies man might help the Democrats more politically. Mr. Kellerman, as president of the board, went to the front for "Hinky Dink" Kenna when Judge Owens was raiding the registration lists in the First ward, and for a time Kellerman was slated for summary dismissal by Owens. Since Kenna brought out Judge Scully it is now figured that Kellerman can stay if he wants to.

Taylor Slated for Ax.

Charles H. Mitchell, attorney for the election board, and Commissioner Howard H. Taylor are said to be in danger of the ax. Whether Anthony Czarnecki will be retained as minority member of the board will depend on subsequent developments. Thomas F. Dawson of the Twenty-sixth ward is slated for attorney of the board to succeed Mr. Mitchell.

Peter Reinberg, the new president of the county board, will have several good jobs at his disposal, among them being superintendent of public service, superintendent of the county hospital, superintendent of Oak Forest infirmary, county agent, three civil service commissioners, and a county physician.

W. Francis Corby, who has been serving on the civil service commission, will be retained. The other two places may be given to new experts.

Other Plums to Fall.

Among the other places in which changes will be made, due to vacancies and new men at the head of the appointing offices, are:

City controller to succeed John E. Traeger.

City prosecutor, to succeed James McInerney.

Deputy county controller, to succeed Frank S. Ryan, who moves up to the board of review.

Attorney for the sheriff's office.

Judge of the Municipal court to fill the vacancy caused by the election of Judge Scully to the county judgeship. This will be filled by an election in the spring.

Ald. Patrick J. Carr's election to the sanitary district board also makes a vacancy to be filled in the Fifth ward election in the spring.

In both the sheriff's office and the county treasurer's office a large number of the present employés, it was stated yesterday, will be retained. The biggest shakeup will come in the county treasurer's office, where many of the O'Connell-Dunne men, it was rumored, will be displayed by Mr. Stuckart with new employés.

Doesn't Know He's Candidate; Elected.

Gary, Ind., Nov. 5.—Perry H. Stevens, who did not know that he was a candidate, today learned that he had been elected a member of the advisory board. Stevens was drafted when a vacancy occurred on the ticket, and he failed to notice his name on the ballot when he voted.

WISCONSIN RACE A DRAW?

McGovern and Husting Run Side by Side.

OFFICIAL COUNT NEEDED.

Democrat Has Unofficial Shade for the Senate.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 5.—An official count of the votes cast in Wisconsin for United States senators appears tonight to be the only way of arriving at a definite conclusion as to whether Paul O. Husting, Democrat, or Gov. Francis E. McGovern, Republican, has been elected United States senator to succeed Isaac Stephenson.

Unofficial returns received from every county in Wisconsin by the Milwaukee Journal give Husting 122,315 and McGovern 120,760, or a plurality of 1,555 for Husting.

Inaccuracies in tabulation and various changes in figures sent in from several counties throughout the day caused the advantage to shift several times from one candidate to the other, causing much bewilderment.

In figuring out the results in such a close contest the "second choice" votes may possibly figure in favor of either candidate. However, reports received on the second choice feature from several counties indicate that these votes slightly favor Husting.

THOMAS LEADS IN COLORADO.

Official Count May Be Required to Settle Senatorial Race with Hubert Work.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 5.—The official count probably will be required to solve the contest between Charles S. Thomas, Democrat, and Hubert Work, Republican, for United States senator from Colorado. Late today, with more than 90 per cent of the vote compiled, the count stood: Thomas, 94,033; Work, 89,815.

SMOOT RE-ELECTED IN UTAH.

U. S. Senator Has Majority of 2,727, According to Complete Unofficial Returns.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 5.—Complete unofficial returns give United States Senator Smoot, Republican, a majority of 2,727 over James H. Moyle, fusion.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE.

Of Seventy-five Congressmen Elect Thirty-four Are Signers of 'Tribune' Pledge.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

The middle west sends to the Sixty-fourth congress a large force of volunteers to wage war on the "pork barrel."

Of the seventy-five members shown by the latest returns to have been elected in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin thirty-four pledged themselves to aid THE TRIBUNE'S fight on wasteful expenditures and on "log rolling" and to work for the creation of a budget system of scientific appropriation of the people's money.

The voters of the middle west will watch with interest the record of these representatives in fulfilling their promises to promote a reform which has become of vital consequence to the nation.

New "Pork" Raid Planned.

The fight on the pork barrel has only begun. Although defeated in their efforts to jam through the $93,000,000 river and harbor appropriation bill, the pork hunters are planning another campaign to raid the public till at the forthcoming final session of this congress. Of the thirty-four congressmen-elect who promised to oppose "pork" in whatever form it appears, twenty are members of the present house. Thus they will have an early opportunity of demonstrating their sincerity.

If these twenty members from the middle west adopt a militant opposition to the pork barrel river and harbor and public building bills which the Democratic leaders intend to present in the session beginning Dec. 7 next, the treasury raiders can be routed beyond a doubt.

Sherman Signed Pledge.

Senator Sherman of Illinois, reëlected for a six year term, subscribed to THE TRIBUNE'S anti-pork pledge, which, however, was not submitted to the senatorial candidates in other states.

The representatives-elect who pledged themselves to fight the pork barrel are:

ILLINOIS.
At large—B. M. Chiperfield, Rep.
At large—J. McCan Davis, Rep.
District.

"Lobby" Starts Work Soon.

The first steps taken by the pork hunters to compass at the next session the appropriation grab which they failed to accomplish in the last session will materialize at the river and harbor congress in Washington early in December. This organization was denounced by Congressman Frear, leader of the pork barrel fight in the house, as a stupendous lobby maintained for the purpose of diverting public money to the pockets of dredgers and other contractors for river and harbor "improvements."

The river and harbor congress will endeavor to counteract the agitation against the pork barrel and to clothe the proposed treasury raid with respectability. It will urge congress to pass a "generous" appropriation bill for the improvement of waterways without descending to such particulars as the wisdom of pouring public funds into the southern creeks and bayous which figured so prominently in the $93,000,000 bill.

Issue Then Will Arise.

With this encouragement from the river and harbor congress the pork hunters will proceed to frame the measure which will be submitted at that session.

When the public buildings bill and the army and navy appropriation measures are brought in the pledged foes of pork will have an opportunity to fight the extravagances annually included for the political benefit of senators and representatives.

BEGINS FIRST WORK ON LINK

Board of Local Improvements Starts Spreading Assessment for Boulevard Connection.

Work of spreading the assessment for the Michigan avenue boulevard link was begun yesterday by the board of local improvements.

More than 100,000 pieces of property from the northern city limits as far south as Sixtieth street are to be assessed, and plans for employing an extra staff of clerks were made at a conference between Edward J. Glackin, secretary of the board, and Phillip J. McKenna and Eugene H. Dupee, its attorneys.

It is not expected the work will be completed before the middle of December. Several weeks then will be allowed by the County court in which affected property owners may have a hearing.

Roberts' Resignation Accepted.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 5.—President Wilson today accepted the resignation of George E. Roberts, director of the mint, to take effect Nov. 15, but has not decided upon his successor. Mr. Roberts goes to the National City Bank of New York.

FOURTH FORGAN TAKES PLACE AS BANKING HEAD.

James B. Jr. Enters New Duties as President of the Second Security Bank.

A fourth Forgan took his place among the bank presidents of Chicago yesterday when James B. Forgan Jr. entered upon his new duties as head of the Second Security bank at Milwaukee and Western avenues.

Young Forgan, a son of the president of the First National bank, had been cashier of the Security bank for three years. Before that, for the three years following his graduation from Williams college, he had acquired practical banking experience by working in every department of the First National.

The other President Forgans are David R., brother of James B. and head of the National City bank, and Robert Forgan of the West Town State bank, their nephew.

DENIES WAR WILL DELAY SAN FRANCISCO 1915 FAIR.

President of Exposition Sends Mayor Telegram to Quiet Rumor Afloat in Illinois.

"Notwithstanding the fact that the Panama-Pacific international exposition is 95 per cent completed, that our exhibit space is overapplied for, that participation arrangement by the states is the greatest ever known in exposition history, that notwithstanding the European war we shall still have with us as active participants as many foreign nations as have ever been represented at any exposition, and notwithstanding the fact that all transportation experts agree that the war will actually increase attendance here in 1915, rumors are rife in your state that the exposition because of the war will be postponed.

"These rumors are utterly without foundation. Our loss in exhibits from nations at war will be negligible in the aggregate.

"The exposition will open on schedule time, Feb. 20, 1915. It will be 100 per cent complete when opened."

Owner of Building Says Man Left Apartments in Wreck When He Moved.

The suit for damages to the extent of $25,000 filed by Henry R. Du Pont yesterday against Ignas Schwinn, president of the Excelsior Motor and Manufacturing company at 2200 South Union avenue, is legally described as a trespass on premises. But behind this peaceful title there is concealed much destruction, according to Attorney Angus Roy Shannon.

Holes were in the walls, windows broken, pipes broken, and a total destruction amounting to $25,000 done to his client's large building when the tenant left it, according to the attorney. The havoc will be more fully described at the trial.

Wife Seeks Her Husband.

William Stewart deserted his wife and daughter, Jennie, in Detroit, Mich., twenty years ago. Two years later he returned, but disappeared again a few weks later. Since then his daughter has died and his wife, Mrs. Sarah Laterille Stewart of 282 St. Aubin avenue, Detroit, is seriously ill and destitute. She heard recently that her husband, who is about 60 years old, was working in Chicago as a bookkeeper. She asked that a search be made for him.

G. O. P. LINING UP FORCES FOR 1916 STATE CONTROL

Republican Leaders See a Clean Sweep of Democrats from Illinois Offices.

Both gubernatorial and mayoralty politics moved into the limelight on the local political stage yesterday with the final check up on Tuesday's vote.

Republican chiefs were encouraged mightily by the Sherman vote and half a dozen probable candidates for the 1916 primary battle were discussed at the headquarters. Among the names are:

Col. Frank O. Lowden.
Charles S. Deneen.
E. J. Murphy, former warden of the Joliet penitentiary.
C. J. Doyle, secretary state committee and former secretary of state.
Representative Homer J. Tice of Menard county.
Col. Frank L. Smith, Dwight.

The Republican leaders believe that the state will swing back into the G. O. P. column in 1916 with an old time normal majority. The break in the Democratic stronghold, they insist, came on Tuesday with the setting of the tide back toward the Republican nominees in both the congressional and senatorial districts.

Expect Repetition of 1896.

They look for a repetition of the 1896 turnover in Illinois when the Altgeld administration was overthrown. They predict that the entire state ticket will have a walkaway and it won't matter much whom the candidates happen to be.

Gov. Dunne and his administration, they believe, are in for a fine trimming.

Meanwhile the Republican leaders will again hold out the olive branch to the rank and file of the Bull Moose vote downstate. They intend to ignore the leaders entirely and make an appeal to the voters themselves to close up the ranks and present a united front to the Democrats in 1916.

The Democratic chiefs, however, will make big effort to retain control of the state government, although it is probable that Gov. Dunne may have a formidable opponent for the nomination.

Lay Defeat to Dunne Men.

Sullivan's defeat, on the face of the unofficial returns, will not tend to placate the Sullivan supporters downstate, who were exceedingly angry at Gov. Dunne for the part he and his aids took in the primary campaign. They are held responsible for sowing the seeds of party dissension and prejudice against Sullivan that bore fruit on election day in southern Illinois.

Among the names heard as opponents of Dunne were those of Attorney General Patrick J. Lucey of Streator, Charles Boeschenstein of Edwardsville, Democratic national committeeman from Illinois; Fred Kern of Belleville, chairman of the state board of administration, and Mr. Stringer himself.

The Sullivan forces would be counted on to line up almost solidly behind Lucey if he became a candidate for governor, and in which event Kern and Boeschenstein would not enter the field.

Mayoralty Fight in Spotlight.

Locally, the mayoralty fight will take the center of the stage at once. There are several "available" men for the primary battle.

Former Corporation Counsel Edward J. Brundage.
Judge Marcus Kavanagh of the Superior court.
Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court.
Former United States District Attorney Edwin Sims.

Mayor Harrison.
Roger C. Sullivan.
Judge Richard E. Burke of the Superior court.
County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer.
Former Mayor John P. Hopkins.

Unless Mr. Sullivan himself should be forced into the race by his enthusiastic friends, Judge Burke is considered at this time the "best bet" among the entire list of the "available" ones who might be supported by the big army that backed Sullivan in Chicago in Tuesday's election.

Aids Strong for Sullivan.

In the event of the official returns showing Sullivan defeated beyond all hope of a contest for United States senator his aids are of one voice in declaring that they will make Sullivan run for mayor whether he wants to or not.

They believe that it is a "cinch" for Roger now, in view of the runaway he made of the senatorship fight in the thirty-five Chicago wards. His vote in Chicago proper was within 17,000 of the total vote given both Senator Sherman and Raymond Robins, Sullivan's plurality reaching almost 60,000.

The Moose folks—or the "bosses"—intend now to put a candidate in the field in the spring, but probably as an independent. Ald. Charles E. Merriam is considered their man.

Think Roger Can Sweep City.

The Sullivan people insist that with another Republican-Moose split in the spring, Roger could sweep Chicago with a landslide plurality.

Some of the biggest municipal improvements in the city's history are to come under the next administration, notably the proposed subway and the completion of the outer harbor project.

Mayor Harrison is not talking for publication at this time. Whether he will be a candidate to succeed himself, it is understood, will depend upon his final decision as to the efficacy of the proposed comprehensive subway as the big issue of the coming campaign.

PROGRESSIVE WOMEN SPLIT OVER FUSION WITH G. O. P.

Mrs. C. W. Kayser Says New League Was Organized to Back Ald. Hey for Mayor.

All the women of the Progressive party are not in accord with the efforts of Mrs. Mary Mills to unite the Progressive and Republican parties.

The feud between the Progressive women, which, it is said, is based upon the quarrel between the faction led by Harold Ickes and that led by Thomas Knight, broke out again yesterday when it was reported that Mrs. Mills intended to call a meeting of Progressive and Republican women for the purpose of attempting a reunion of the parties.

Mrs. Mills is head of the Illinois Women's Progressive league. It was organized against the protest of Miss Marion Drake, Mrs. Charles W. Kayser, and some of the other Progressive women, who had planned a similar organization on a different basis.

According to Mrs. Kayser, the league was organized to elect Ald. Hey mayor next spring. She issued the following statement:

"Any proposition made by Progressive women in endeavoring to form a compromise with the Republican party would be an evidence of lack of good faith in the principles for which they have been contending. No self-respecting, true Progressive could for an instant consider a compromise with the Republican organization where a single plank of the Progressive platform has to be rejected."

REJECT FULL CREW LAW.

Missouri Voters Defeat Rail Measure by Majority of About 68,000.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—Missouri has decisively rejected the full crew law, which was passed by the last legislature and which went before the voters on Tuesday. Conservatives claim the bill was defeated by about 68,000. Railroad officials see in the result popular condemnation of the attacks which have made railroad retrenchment necessary.

PLAN TO SAVE CASH FOR CITY

Investment of Sinking Funds in Bonds Is One Suggestion.

ALDERMEN AT WORK.

Three steps for safeguarding municipal funds were approved yesterday by a subcommittee of the city council committee on finance which has been investigating the "split interest" charge developing out of the Lorimer bank crash.

The three are:

An order directing the investment of sinking funds in the bonds they cover.

An ordinance providing that the bond cost of the city treasurer shall be paid by the city.

It was estimated the sinking fund investment plan might mean a saving of $350,000 to the city. The sinking funds now draw interest from the banks ranging from 2¼ per cent to 2¾ per cent, almost all of them being held at the former figure. The city is paying 4 per cent on its bonds. The immediate purchase of these securities would mean a saving of at least 1¼ per cent.

In the investigation of the Lorimer bank crash it was shown that prominent bankers were on City Treasurer Flynn's bond. This fact, it was contended, might influence the depositing of city funds.

City taxes now remain in the county collector's hands for indefinite periods, as they are paid over in installments extending up to December. In this way, the subcommittee held, the city is losing a large amount of interest.

The subcommittee report will be presented to the finance committee tomorrow, including the section on "political banking" in which it is said that aldermen, city and county officials have been bank stockholders during the last three years.

The Severe Tortures of Rheumatism are always aggravated during changing seasons and ordinary treatment seems useless. To relieve rheumatism the body-waste producing uric acid must be gradually arrested and the blood purified.

Correct diet is essential. Abstain from tea and anything containing alcohol; eat meat only once a day and take Scott's Emulsion after every meal.

Scott's Emulsion is the logical and necessary treatment because it creates new blood free from the poisonous products, and its wonderful nourishing properties strengthen the organs to expel the harmful acids that cause the trouble.

Scott's Emulsion will relieve the enlarged joints and stiffened muscles by purifying the blood in a natural, easy manner. Physicians everywhere proclaim its worth and warn against the alcoholic substitutes.

CHICAGO WOMEN respect a paper that refuses to print the fake advertising of business buccaneers. That is one reason why THE TRIBUNE has such high standing with Chicago women.

The Chicago Tribune.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

FOUNDED JUNE 10, 1847.

ENTERED AS SECOND CLASS MATTER JUNE 8, 1905, AT THE POSTOFFICE AT CHICAGO, ILL., UNDER ACT OF MARCH 3, 1879.

All unsolicited articles, manuscripts, letters, and pictures sent to "The Tribune" are sent at the owner's risk, and The Tribune company expressly repudiates any liability or responsibility for their safe custody or return.

SWORN STATEMENT.

Net paid circulation of "The Chicago Tribune," as reported under oath to the United States government under section of 4674 of the postal laws and regulations, being the average from April 1, 1914, to Sept. 30, 1914:

Daily 303,516
Sunday 459,738

The above figures are exclusive of all papers which have been wasted, spoiled, returned, duplicated, delivered as complimentary, in exchange, as samples, which were missed or lost, or were late in arriving at their destination, or that remained unsold. They also are exclusive of papers paid for, but on which money so paid has been refunded.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1914.

OLD STUFF AND BAD STUFF.

An important downstate paper scolds Chicago because two of the three candidates for the United States senate were residents of Chicago and only one of the Chicago newspapers supported the downstate candidate. THE TRIBUNE is the one which supported that candidate, Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman, and it objects to any attempt to vitalize the idea that a candidate for a state office is important geographically.

Sectionalism will determine enough candidacies without the cultivation of its sentiments. The fear outside of Cook county is that Chicago votes by local prejudice and that this must be counteracted by voting by prejudice downstate. In and out of Chicago votes go by favor and favor is shown after acquaintance. That's bad enough in some cases, but deliberately to make politics sectional and to urge sectionalism as a controlling influence is worse. The natural condition will be bad enough. It ought not to be made worse.

THE ANNEXATION OF CYPRUS.

The annexation by Great Britian of the island of Cyprus is little more than a nominal loss to Turkey, but is a substantial acquisition from the British point of view. Turkey loses territory of which she was legally suzerain, but the administration and control have been out of her hands since 1878.

The value of Cyprus to the British empire is, however, very real, owing to the situation of the island on the flank of Egypt and the Suez canal. The island is mountainous and can be well fortified. Its strategic value guarding Egypt and the route to India is considerable.

The later events of the war may be such as to compel England to relinquish the island, but this could be considered probable only in the case of her severe defeat. In any general readjustment among the allies her claims to Cyprus would be superior to any her allies could advance. If Italy and Greece enter the war against Germany their interest in the Mediterranean settlement would be acute, but Cyprus is not within the natural sphere of either. And England holds what she takes. Gibraltar, Malta, Cyprus make convenient stepping stones on the way to the east.

THE FOREIGN LABEL.

Perhaps a psychologist will arise some day and explain why the American nation, which has been successful in ridding itself of so many of the prejudices, of so much of the bigotry and narrowness found in many old world countries, has been backward in freeing itself from the fetish worship of the foreign label. It is a phenomenon that needs explaining. Hard headed business men, millions of sensible, practical people, are persistently humbugged by merchants at home and abroad who are aware of the great American weakness—the love of the word "imported."

A manufacturer, speaking before the committee of the "Made in America" movement in New York, laid bare some of the frauds that are perpetrated upon the unsuspecting American consumer because of this weakness for the foreign label. Goods manufactured in this country, he said, are frequently sent abroad and then reshipped back under an imported label to meet the American craze for the foreign stamp. There is the story of an American musician who sent to one of the oldest cities in Europe for a zither, and when the "made in Europe" article arrived it bore the stamp of an American manufacturer who lived on the same street with the musician. It is an open secret that milliners buy Parisian labels and sew them in the hats made in this country. Of course the price of the home manufactured hat bearing a foreign label is much larger than what the same hat would be without the label.

It is up to the public to free itself from this fetish worship of the foreign label. "Made in America" should be the best recommendation for any article. Patriotism no less than self-respect demands that we cease to slur our own enterprises.

THE NEW REPUBLIC.

In England the "week-end" periodical is an institution. The Saturday Review, the Spectator, and of late years the Nation have had a solid part in the "molding" of British opinion, and today the best thought on current topics of politics, social life, and the arts is to be found in the dignified weekly pronouncements of these and their younger congeners, the New Statesman, the New Witness, the Observer, and others less authoritative.

Our own weeklies have developed on different lines, relying upon illustrations, fiction, and descriptive articles. There was one exception, the Nation, under E. L. Godkin. But after the death of that formidable publicist the Nation faded rapidly from public notice.

We have now the announcement of what may prove to be a worthy successor of the Nation, "The New Republic: A Weekly Journal of Critical Comment," whose editors purpose throwing "a stream of fresh and honest thought on every significant phase of intellectual and practical activity in American life; upon current literature, art, and the drama; upon science, public and private business and education; upon politics, industry, and society."

The editorial personnel is promising, including several of the best of the younger writers on politics and social conditions. Herbert Croly, whose book on American tendencies, "The Promise of American Life," made a marked impression three years ago, is the editorial head of the enterprise. His associates are Walter E. Weyl, author of "The New Democracy," and Walter Lipmann; Philip Littell, Charlotte Rudyard, and Francis Hackett, whose brilliant articles on books in the Evening Post will be remembered. The list of contributors is not remarkable for established names, but this only emphasizes the hope that its editors will draw upon fresh resources of talent, of which there must be a good deal in America not tempted by the conventional type of American weekly.

The New Republic is a welcome experiment, deserving a hospitable reception and a fair trial. Its debut will be Nov. 9.

THE TWO PARTY SYSTEM.

Frederick A. Davenport, defeated Progressive candidate for governor of New York, says that he is impressed by the fact that the country favors a two party system and prefers to better conditions by disciplining first one party and then the other.

A third party interferes with or destroys the effect of discipline. The Progressive party made it certain that the Republican party would be disciplined in 1912. Now the effect of its operations is to protect the Democratic party from discipline.

This result is even more noticeable in local affairs than it is in national. In Chicago, Cook county, and Illinois we have government by a minority because it has been impossible for the majority to make its expressions count.

The majority of citizens will be affected by a party's record. If the record has been bad the majority likely will vote against the party's candidates. The corrective influence generally is exercised by man not party tied. If this body of voters switches from one to another of two parties it accomplishes the result which it seeks. If, in its protest, it divides itself, it is likely to defeat its own purpose and make certain the success of the party it wished to discipline.

A consciousness of this is possessed by nearly every voter who is not party tied. It may not be a clearly defined idea in his mind, but the futility of his effort is demonstrated to him, and the reaction is apt to be in the direction of impatience.

If the Progressive party leaders want an explanation of the dwindling of the Progressive party vote they might find it in part in this reason. Voters want to see results attend their efforts. The abstract right will not hold them indefinitely. They seek a practical way of putting their sentiments into effect. When they see what a bad administration of public affairs has done they want to make an end of that administration.

When they find that a three party system interferes with the doing of this they will try to find their way back to the two party system. As soon as majorities are made ineffective there will be an effort on the part of the majority to regain its power.

FIGHTING PRINCES.

The German princes are old fashioned fighting leaders of warlike peoples. They may be capable or dull, independent or dependent on intelligence at their elbows, but they are line of battle leaders and not headquarters men.

In the German ruling families there has been adherence to the German large family idea. Therefore in the various states of the empire there are many princes. To the war the imperial family has contributed its sons. They have been a little more sheltered than the princes of the states, but exposed enough to suffer wounds, exposed enough to make rumors of the death of the crown prince persist.

A German ruler must lead his people. He is not the monarchical abstraction of British conception. He remains the medieval war leader and where his people go he must go. He may not know how to lead, but he must at least assume the dangers of the enterprise. If he did not know the terrors of war he might lightly have his people risk them. The kaiser is protected, but the majority of the princes must take their chances with any Herr Lieutenant.

The British aristocracy offers the same illustration of devotion and the best in France is at the front, but the Germans offer their royalty to destruction as do the Belgians. Their king has made trips to the firing line.

WOMEN'S SERVICE.

The use of the vote by the women of Cook county has been a substantial aid to good government. In the late election, while it followed in the main the party lines, it saved the only opponents of the spoils drainage administration left from the turn out of four years ago. Trustees Paullin and Clark are the only representatives of protest in the interest of economy and efficiency the taxpayers of the district have left to defend the huge funds and heavy public responsibilities of the district. The women saved them and the acknowledgment of that service should be general.

The defeat of Miss McDowell and Miss Vittum for places on the county board represents a loss to the community which women's votes might have prevented. But there should be no great discouragement over this unfortunate result. Competent women will surely be drafted for civic housekeeping in the future and their influence upon our municipal conditions will not decline, but steadily increase.

SMELTERS FOR BOLIVIAN TIN.

[From American Review of Reviews.]

Probably one of the best illustrations of America's opportunity to develop new industries is afforded by tin. The known American deposits are very small and production from them will probably not be much affected by the present higher prices. The benefit which the United States may obtain from the present situation is stated by George Otis Smith, director of the United States geological survey, in a recent inventory of the mineral reserves of the United States, as lying in the establishment of a tin smelter industry in this country in which Bolivian tin ores may be smelted. Between 30,000 and 40,000 tons of tin concentrates have been shipped each year from Bolivia to Europe for smelting; but the smelting of these ores presents no difficulties that American metallurgists cannot overcome. A few years ago a smelter was established at Bayonne, N. J., in which to smelt Malayan tin ores, but a prohibitive export duty was immediately placed on Malayan tin ores not going to some part of the British empire.

Such a thing could not happen in Bolivia, and indeed only a few days ago Secretary Rosendo Pinilla of the Bolivian legation at Washington stated the desirability of establishing American smelters. "Of all the countries of the western hemisphere," he said, "Bolivia is practically the only producer of tin. The 'barilla,' the tin concentrates, carrying from 50 to 70 per cent of tin, has been shipped heretofore to Europe, finding its way through the Liverpool markets to smelters in England and Germany. These smelters refine the tin and it is sent to the United States, which consumes more tin than any other country. Of 45,000 tons of tin produced last year in Bolivia the shipment direct to the United States was the insignificant amount of only eight tons. It seems now absolutely necessary for the United States to get the raw product direct from Bolivia and smelt it here. This, it occurs to me, is an extremely interesting proposition for the capitalists of this country."

NOTICE.—Whereas my wife, Emma Ladd Bean, has left my bed and board without just cause or provocation, I hereby notify all persons concerned that I shall pay no debts of her contracting after this date. JOHN BEAN.

NOTICE.—I, Mrs. John Bean, contradict Mr. J. Bean's statement in saying that I left his bed and board. In the first place, I board where I am employed and the bed I bought and paid for, as Mr. Bean had only a bedstead and comforter in the room of mattress. Mr. John Bean ordered the rent of his house without any cause on my part, for the third time, and this last time he got into his mad fits, which he is often subject to, and was so gentle and loving as to say that he would accompany me to the foot of the hill for fear I might get hurt. Indeed, that was genuine kindness of my beloved husband. Dear readers of the Standard, I hope you will sympathize with me for having lost such a cozy and empty little mansion of my dear beloved husband with the distinguished neighbors around it. I certainly will get nervous prostration mourning over the loss of such an earthly paradise. MRS. J. BEAN.

THE EAST WINDOW.

IT WAS election night, and the query, "What's the latest?" was persistent. A roomful of men were dining leisurely, and discussing the bulletins that were received every quarter-hour or so. These returns were more or less interesting evidence of a nation's incapacity for wise self-government. Newsboys were crying "the latest" in the streets. I turned to the man at my left, a scientist of international reputation.

"What is the latest? About the stars, I mean. So much that is new is confined to monographs and technical journals, a layman can't keep up with things. We are still getting light rays from suns long since extinct; and no doubt I am still believing in hypotheses that were exploded the day before yesterday."

"The latest?" repeated the man of science, stirring his coffee (as the novelist likes to say when the scene is a dining-room). "Well, the newest notion is that the stars are in two drifts, which are passing through each other at a considerable angle. Singly they are falling in every direction, but each of the two masses has a definite course. It is difficult to picture the thing mentally."

"I can image two swarms of bees," I said. "The spacing is vastly different, but one may picture the swarms. Whither are they swarming?—that I won't ask you. Hitherto the mind has been able to dwell an instant on the black, illimitable space lying beyond our stellar system; but to imagine other swarms in this void, each what we call a universe!...Other drifts are assumed?"

The scientist nodded. "There is a bee in one of our colonies," he said, "that is thought to have come from one of perhaps many other swarms; I have forgotten the name of it—astronomy is only a side issue with me. The terrific pace at which it is moving has set up the interesting question of whence it derived its velocity."

One of the diners rapped on the table. "Gentlemen, another bulletin," he said, and read it aloud. Like the others, it indicated that the human mind—evolution's farthest north on this mustard seed in space—is still in the vegetable state, and that we should not expect a turnip or a squash to reason.

A QUIET DAY IN IOWAY.

[From the Burlington Gazette.]

There was an absolute absence of trouble yesterday, which is rather strange considering that it was election day and the people were consequently aroused to a high pitch of excitement.

THE suggestion, by H. W. L., is a little late; but some local candidate might have run successfully on a platform pledging the elimination of the boobs who amble aimlessly along the Boul. Mich., bumping into promenaders and making of themselves a general nuisance.

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE.

THE government is actively at work fighting foot and mouth disease and before long will have it under control. In the meantime 35 per cent of the Chicago milk is sold raw. Practically all of the milk marketed outside of that sold in Chicago is sold raw. Therefore, there is some reason why the physicians should read of the symptoms of foot and mouth disease in human beings.

From three to ten days after exposure the infected person is attacked by chill followed by general aching. The fever goes to about 103. There is vomiting and diarrhoea. About three days after the beginning of the fever the mouth becomes inflamed.

The most frequent affection in the mouth is a crop of small, clear blisters. These appear on the inside of the lips and cheeks, on the gums and tongue. They seldom appear on the hard or soft palate.

In most cases the crop of blisters is preceded by a fall in the fever. If the fever keeps up it is a sign that a second or even a third crop of blisters will follow, coming at intervals of three to four days.

The worst epidemic of foot and mouth disease on record was one occurring in Berlin and reported by Bergel. In that epidemic there was much swelling of the gums and the tongue swelled so as to protrude from the mouth. Many of the cases of that epidemic died as the result of pneumonia, Bright's disease, and extreme wasting

The disease is usually spread by the drinking of raw milk from infected cows. To settle the point Hartwig drank some infected milk and gave some to his assistants. The disease resulted.

To prevent the disease from spreading Nicolair says that the following procedures should be followed:

All infected and exposed cows should be quarantined.

All infected people should be quarantined.

All milk from sick cows should be destroyed.

The general milk supply should be thoroughly pasteurised.

These are provisions of the German law. That law does not require that butter from infected animals should be from pasteurised milk. In this Nicolair thought the law was faulty.

It is generally agreed that the disease may be dangerous, especially to children. An infected person may infect a susceptible person by contact such as kissing.

REPORT ON SPRINGS.

J. P. writes asking for information about Colfax. Crooke's "Mineral Springs of the United States" gives Colfax Springs as having 97 grains of sulphate of magnesium and sodium and 35 grains of carbonate of magnesium in each gallon.

PROTECTION AGAINST DIPHTHERIA.

Mrs. R. C. W. writes: "There are a great many cases of diphtheria in Terre Haute. Is there any way of preventing my two girls from getting it? They are not in school yet."

REPLY.

The safest plan is as follows: Go to the health department and have a Schick test made. If they are found to be susceptible to diphtheria, have them immunized, preferably by the Von Behring method.

If your children have not been brought in contact with diphtheria, and by careful watching you can keep them from such contact, the above procedure is not advised. Keep them at home; keep them away from the streets, the cars, and all assembling places. Do not neglect their "simple colds."

PROPOSAL IS HARMFUL.

E. writes: "Now that even the wealthiest people cannot go to Europe—and but comparatively few can visit our own springs, what do you think of us stay-at-homes taking each morning before breakfast one-half teaspoonful of Epsom salt in one glass or more of water?"

REPLY.

Do not take Epsom salt each morning. It can and will do harm.

People go to springs for short visits. Nobody would be chump enough to remain permanently at any spring, drinking a purgative dose of water before each meal.

CHIPPEWA SPRINGS WATER.

G. E. D. calls attention to the purity of the Chippewa Springs water.

REPLY.

Analysis shows that Chippewa water contains 2.06 grains of mineral matter to the gallon. This is less than Poland water. It belongs to the class of waters which are used for their purity.

USE OF ALBOLENE.

C. P. S. writes: "Referring to the now famous '16 to 1 for bald pate': What is the pathological action of albolene, used externally as on the scalp? Could not olive oil or any similar oil be substituted? How often and how long did the patient continue treatment?"

REPLY.

1. Albolene is used to dilute the capsicum.
2. Yes.
3. He is still at it.

NOT LIKE CARLSBAD WATER.

V. T. J. inquires whether Thermopolis, Wyo., water is not about the purity of that of Carlsbad.

REPLY.

The analysis sent shows that this water is a hot water [temperature 135], containing about eight grains of mineral matter and a little sulphuretted hydrogen gas. It differs greatly from Carlsbad water.

SHINGLES ON SCALP.

H. L. M. writes: "Will you kindly tell me whether shingles can attack the scalp?"

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright: 1914: By the Brentwood Co.]

THAT Lord Charles Nairne, second son of the Marquis of Lansdowne and for several years past a member of the household of King George as one of his favorite equerries, should have fallen in battle, fighting not only for England but also for France and on French soil, serves to recall that he had in his veins the blood of the kings of France.

The Comte de Flahault, his great-grandfather, was the son of that lovely Adelaide Filleul who was the natural daughter of Louis XV. of France.

Adelaide married a Comte de Flahault, a scion of one of the oldest houses of the French aristocracy. But it is generally understood that the son she bore, and who was afterwards known as Comte Charles de Flahault, was not his offspring, but that of the great Prince de Talleyrand.

This would account, at any rate, for the affection which the Prince de Talleyrand, in spite of his appalling selfishness and egotism, always manifested for Charles de Flahault, whose promotion was extraordinarily rapid. He attained the rank of general in Napoleon's army at the early age of 27.

Charles de Flahault in his younger days was a wonderfully handsome man and the hero of many a feminine romance, the most celebrated of all being, of course, that with Hortense de Beauharnais, daughter of Empress Josephine and queen of Holland by virtue of her marriage with Louis Bonaparte.

There is no secret made of this romance. The pages of the Almanach de Gotha officially describe the late Duc de Morny as the offspring of Queen Hortense and of the Comte de Flahault.

Charles de Flahault was with Napoleon at Moscow, at Leipsic, and at Waterloo. Subsequently he turned up in London, where he won the heart of Lord Keith's daughter and married her, making his home thenceforth in England.

There were no sons born to this marriage, but several daughters, the eldest of whom inherited her mother's baronies of Keith and of Nairne, as well as her Meikelour estates in Perthshire and her Aldie estates in Kinross-shire, married the late Lord Lansdowne and became the mother of the present marquis.

When the late Lady Lansdowne, née De Flahault, died, some seventeen years ago, she provided in her will that her Scotch estates should go on the marquis' death to his second son, Lord Charles Fitzmaurice, and that he should then assume the names of both Mercer and Nairne, as well as the arms of these two ancient Scottish families, from which she had inherited the property in question.

Lord Lansdowne preferred to make over these Scotch estates to his second son during his lifetime, partly because he wished to place on younger shoulders than his own some of the responsibilities and obligations involved in the ownership of his great territorial possessions, and partly, too, because he desired to spare Lord Charles the heavy succession duty which would otherwise have to be paid by him on inheriting the property.

Lord Charles, therefore, after his marriage to Lady Mary Elliot, youngest daughter of the late Lord Minto, obtained permission from the crown to exchange his patronymic of Fitzmaurice for that of Mercer-Nairne, and entered into possession of the Meikelour and Tullybeagle estates in Perthshire and those of Lady Lansdowne in Kinross-shire, embracing an area of some 12,000 acres.

The late Lord Charles was accounted a lucky young man. In addition to these Scottish estates, which had belonged to his grandmother, he received a legacy from his grandaunt, the widowed Marquise de La Valette, amounting to a quarter of a million of dollars, while from another aunt he inherited a fortune of about $50,000 a year.

While it was not possible for Lord Lansdowne to transfer to his younger son his baronies of Keith and of Nairne, which must descend in due course to his eldest son, the present Earl of Kerry, it is probable that Lord Charles, had he lived, would in due course have been raised to the peerage as Lord Meikelour by King George, who was much attached to him.

Lord Lansdowne has been in turn governor general of Canada, viceroy of India, secretary of state for war and of foreign affairs, is leader of the Unionist opposition in the house of lords, and was portrayed by Lord Beaconsfield in his novel "Lothair," in which Lady Lansdowne likewise figures.

Lord Charles leaves a little boy and girl to inherit his extensive property.

Sir Francis Ernest Waller, whose name figures among the officers killed in battle in France, owed his baronetcy, which now passes to his soldier brother, Wathen Arthur Waller of the Northumberland fusiliers, to his great-grandfather, Sir Jonathan Wathen Waller, who was one of the principal members of the household of King William IV.

He must not be confounded with that other Waller baronet, Sir William E. Waller, a native of New York, who owns a chain of department stores in New Jersey, at Rutherford, Madison, Ridgewood, Westwood, Closter, and Hasbrouck Heights, his eldest son being a student at Cornell.

Sir William, when he succeeded to the baronetcy two years ago on the death of his uncle, Sir Charles Waller, at the Hahnemann hospital in New York, retained his American citizenship, along with his New Jersey stores, and continues to live over here, as the ancestral castle in Tipperary is now a picturesque, ivy clad ruin and quite uninhabitable.

This place is familiar to tourists as Cully castle, which was acquired by Gen. Sir William Waller, who distinguished himself in the Thirty Years' war and became one of Oliver Cromwell's principal commanders. It has belonged to the family ever since.

The Sir Francis Waller who has just been killed belonged not to the Irish but to the English Wallers, and included among his ancestors David de Waller, who for over thirty years was master of the rolls to King Edward III., and Sir Richard Waller, who received from King Henry V. the right of adding the French fleur-de-lis to his armorial bearings in memory of the fact that he had made a prisoner of Charles, Duke of Orleans, a royal French prince of the blood, at the battle of Agincourt.

Shrapnel is responsible for so many deaths and terrible wounds in the present war that it may be of interest to mention that it derives its name from an English artillery officer who, while serving as a young lieutenant in the defense of Gibraltar in 1782, conceived the idea of using a shell filled with bullets and a bursting charge sufficient to split it open and release the bullets at any given point, generally about eighty yards before reaching the object aimed at. At the explosion of the shell the bullets and fragments fly onward in a shower.

For this invention Shrapnel received not only rapid promotion but also a life pension of $6,000 a year, and died in 1842 with the rank of lieutenant general.

CARRYING FIREARMS.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Please advise me if a permit is necessary to have firearms in the home for protection. How much does a permit cost and what details are to be given to carry firearms? Where should a person apply for a permit? G. T.

It is not necessary to have a permit to keep a revolver in the home for protection. No permit, however, can be given for carrying weapons, as the state law specifically prohibits any one but a duly authorized peace officer from carrying a concealed weapon of any character, and no one can give a permit to violate the law. A permit is required, however, by ordinance before any one can purchase a weapon from a dealer in Chicago. The fee for same is $1.

CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Please inform me what steps are necessary to be taken relative to condemnation of property. A READER.

There are many steps to be taken in a condemnation proceeding, as provided by law, before the city can get order of possession and open the street. It would take up too much space to go into detail in this letter, but, briefly stated, when the property owners desire a street opened or widened they must sign a petition for the improvement and present the same to one of their aldermen, who will introduce an order in the council directing that proceedings be started by special assessment, and it is then referred to this office. The board then enters an order that an estimate of the cost be prepared. As soon as this is submitted to us by our engineer we proceed to hold the public hearing. If the improvement is ordered at the hearing, unless the property owners delay the proceeding for one year by filing a remonstrance petition within thirty days from the date of the hearing, we prepare the ordinance and send the same to the council for passage.

The next step is to file petition in court, and the court appoints commissioners to fix the value of property to be taken or damaged, and the measure of benefit to be derived by the various pieces of property interested; and after the commissioners have completed this work the roll is filed in court, and in due course application is made for judgment of condemnation.

As soon as the assessment is confirmed it is certified for collection. After the assessment is collected and all awards paid for property taken or damaged, the city gets order of possession and the street department proceeds to remove all obstructions.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

PLAN TO HELP BELGIANS.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 4.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Here is a brief plan for the people of this country to help the Belgians. A great many people have not contributed to any fund because they feel their donations are not large enough and others have been putting it off.

From now until Nov. 30 let every employer and employé pay to the cashier of his concern 10 cents a week. On the foregoing date let each cashier forward to the First National bank in his territory the sum collected. All banks will have received by Dec. 10 the donations of the people and on that date let each bank forward to the president of the United States a check for their receipts. The president will personally advise King Albert that he has so much money for the "people of Belgium from the people of the United States."

At a low estimate this will net $8,000,000 and I sincerely trust that it will meet with the approval of every newspaper in the country and they will lend their efforts to do the job. W. J. NORTON.

FOREIGN REGARD FOR WILSON.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Nov. 1.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Although this letter reaches you from Canada, it is written by a citizen of the United States who has lived outside his own country for the last ten years. During that time my interest in the affairs of my own country has not diminished, but I have been a keen observer of the impressions created on the outside world by American political thought and activity.

The one thing in this respect which is particularly apparent at the present time is the exalted regard with which President Wilson is held by the leaders of thought, the newspapers, as well as the common people of all the civilized nations. I believe that he is more appreciated abroad than he is at home. He is everywhere spoken of as one of the really great men of the world. In this connection I wish to say that Americans living outside of their country are looking with interest to the coming elections. If the American people fail to give President Wilson a tremendous vote of indorsement the people of other countries, who look to President Wilson as an instrument of sterling worth in the ultimate straightening out of the present deplorable war, will be astonished beyond measure. J. W. BROWN.

WASTE OF FUEL.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I wish to add my voice to those of others that I have seen in your paper in an appeal for the needy and against a wicked waste. The railroad logs were burned in great numbers, making immense piles of wood, on the Michigan Southern line last year from Chicago to Erie. Surely the men who control the road ought to be glad to give them to the poor for fuel instead of causing such a willful destruction of material that would bring comfort to many families during the winter.

C. STICHTER.

ARE THE ENGLISH BRAVE?

Chicago, Nov. 1.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—It seems to me that Mr. D. A. R.'s letter about the small number of British prisoners in Germany might be taken to mean that the British fought as well that they were harder for the Germans to capture.

I think that D. A. R. is allowing his personal venom to run away with his common sense. All the supporters of the Germans forget apparently that other countries are also fighting, and direct their attacks at England alone, which might be taken as an admission that they are sore at England blocking their game.

Also Mr. D. A. R. has made a mistake in the number of troops engaged in South Africa, in fact, he has doubled the English force and halved the Boers. There were 225,000 English and 80,000 Boers, to say nothing of the German, Dutch, and Austrian officers who manned the Boer guns and planned their campaign for them. H. NORMAN SMITH.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—It requires a wonderful brain to argue that the presence of only 5,000 British prisoners in the pens of the Germans proves lack of zeal to face the firing line. As a former British soldier, who worked for and with Julian Ralph in that war, inform your correspondent that at no time did the burgher forces in South Africa number less than 76,000 fighting men until the "drive" and blockhouse system brought them in by thousands. I mean forces in the field, and D. A. R. might be interested to know further that the foreign assistance in the shape of legions from Scandinavia, France, Holland, Russia, and Germany increased that number by 15,000 more. Further, at no time in the war did Britain have more than 230,000 men actually engaged, and of these fully one-half were used for communication, hospital, transport, supply, pioneer, railroad guard, and depot service. PAUL E. NEUMANN,

Chicago, Nov. 3.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—D. A. R. says the English are cowards because about 5,000 or 6,000 have been captured. How many Germans have been taken and how? Can he give that answer? If he will read THE TRIBUNE he will find that the British are always in the front ranks. There were not 400,000 English soldiers in South Africa. There were only 200,000, and there were more than 40,000 "farmers" who were opposing them, if he will read history once in a while.

BELGIUM'S PLEA GAINS RESPONSE; FUND IS $35,000

Wealth and fashion came to the aid of the destitute people of vanquished Belgium at the Blackstone hotel yesterday. Contributions of $7,800 were added to the relief fund being collected by Mme. Lalla Vandervelde, the wife of a Belgian minister of state. The fund now totals $35,000 and the needed $100,000 was said to be "practically subscribed."

The appeal of Mme. Vandervelde was followed by a frenzy of activity on the part of the 600 persons, mainly women, who were present in the ballroom. Dainty fingers reached deep into handbags and chatelaines to bring forth bills of no small denomination. Pledges were hastily filled out with little gold pencils.

Rockefeller Fund Inadequate.

Hobart Chatfield-Taylor presided at the meeting. He introduced Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin of the University of Chicago, who, speaking for President Judson, asserted that the contemplated relief of Belgium by the Rockefeller Foundation would be inadequate.

Mme. Vandervelde first outlined the events which led up to the invasion of Belgium by the German forces. She praised the heroism of the Belgian army and the women of the country. One of the instances she related was the action of the women of Liege venturing out into the trenches where their husbands and brothers were fighting under fire, to bring them food and drink.

Prefer Death to Dishonor.

"We prefer extermination to dishonor," she said in speaking of the violation of Belgium's neutrality.

"Picture to yourself our rich country outraged by the ruthless enemy, our fields laid waste and our cities destroyed. Louvain, of which we may only speak in the past. Picture the stream of old men, women, and children, their backs bent, their eyes cast down, leaving everything in the world that they owned, fleeing into Antwerp from Malines during the bombardment. Then you may visualize the horrors of war.

"I have come to the United States, the only country where reason and human kindness prevail today. On the other side the war madness has seized us all. Toleration, equanimity, reason no longer have any meaning.

Primal Instincts Dominate.

"The primal instincts dominate. No one reads books. We have become such barbarians that the news of victory over the murderous Germans is the only thing that longer delights us. You are happy in the possession of peace, the greatest possession on earth. Think of us and think of the lead that your country is to take in the rebuilding of what has fallen."

The following permanent committee was organized to assist the Belgian war sufferers:

H. C. Chatfield-Taylor,	C. L. Hutchinson,
Dr. C. Vermeeren,	Charles Wouters,
Chas. G. Curtis,	Charles F. Harding,
M. D. Follansbee,	Everett L. Millard,
Henry De Jonghe,	Ralph Clarkson,
John Barton Payne,	James A. Patten,
David B. Jones,	F. J. Streyckmans.

Business men to be chosen within a few days are to be added to this committee.

Women Help Out.

As the several hundred women who had filled the ballroom and its galleries filed out they were met by Mrs. Norman Williams Jr., Mrs. John Borden, Mrs. Joseph Coleman, and Mrs. William Odell, each bearing a deep basket into which were thrown pledges, coin, and bills.

Mrs. W. J. Chalmers, who, with Mrs. C. M. Ely, had the afternoon in charge, fled the war zone at the breaking out of the hostilities. Mrs. John Barton Payne and Mrs. Joseph Cudahy assisted.

Some Who Were There.

ROBBER ATTACKS A WOMAN.

Mrs. Julia Page Carried Into an Alley and Robbed of Cash and Watch.

Mrs. Julia Page, 50 years old, a nurse, of 4447 South Wabash avenue, was passing an alley next to 5418 Kimbark avenue last night when a man attacked her. She was carried screaming into the alley, where her assailant threw her against a fence, then wrested her pocketbook from her hand. It contained $2, a gold watch, and her rosary beads. Mrs. Page's screams by this time attracted pedestrians, who chased the robber, who escaped. Mrs. Page was attended by a police ambulance physician.

Ex-State Senator Charles L. Billings was elected Municipal court judge on the Republican ticket. When the early returns came in it was thought that he was defeated along with numerous other candidates not on the Democratic ticket.

But when the late returns from the women's vote came in it was found they had elected Mr. Billings. Flanagan, Democrat, received a plurality of 6,000 on the male vote. The Republican candidate overcame the lead with a plurality of 9,000 on the vote of the women. There were 46,872 women who voted for him.

Mr. Billings believes his popularity with the women voters is due to the mysterious character of his campaign. He did not appear before women's clubs. He attended no social functions. He did not make a speech. But he formerly represented the First senatorial district in the state legislature. He introduced the suffrage bill in 1909, and championed the suffrage cause during his term. It may be that some of the women remembered that.

Mr. Billings, who lives at 242 East Walton place, is a bachelor and is a brother of Dr. Frank Billings.

"WHUT DO DE JUG CONTAIN?" EVANSTON JURIST PUZZLED.

Two Negroes Arrested with Container Said to Hold Whisky Stage a Comedy in Court.

Two negroes, arrested while quarreling with two white men on an elevated train at Foster street, in Evanston, were arraigned yesterday before Justice Boyer. A jug also had been taken into custody. Evanston is a dry town. The complainants failed to appear and the prisoners were discharged.

"The jug is no longer contraband and should be restored," said the attorney for the defense.

"The jug contains whisky," said the policeman who arrested the men.

"What the jug contains has nothing to do with it," argued the lawyer. "To this court it is a jug and nothing else."

"Yeh," interrupted one of the defendants, "whut de jug do contain is irreverent tuh de evidence. An' how do de policemen know whut it contain?"

"Order," said the court. "The jug is in the hands of the chief of police and he probably has his own views on the subject. I'll have nothing to do with it one way or the other."

The defendants trooped off to see the chief, but whether or not they got the jug could not be learned.

VOLIVA THREATENS TO EXPEL VACCINATED FROM CHURCH.

Offers Reward of $1 for Proof of Backsliding in Smallpox Scare—Lace Factory Continues Work.

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, continuing his war on the "dirty, damnable doctors," who are trying to purge Zion City of smallpox, posted placards yesterday warning the quarantined Zionists that those submitting to vaccination will be expelled from his church. He offered a reward of $1 for proof of such "backsliding" on the part of any of his flock.

"Take your choice," ran his pronunciamento. "Be faithful to God and Zion, or yield to the devil and the dirty, damnable doctors, and then at last go to hell for being a traitor."

A number of Zionists who refused to be vaccinated were forced to give up their jobs in the lace factory at Zion. Their places were quickly filled and the operation of the factory will not be interfered with.

Dr. C. T. Roome, health commissioner of Evanston, said that city is in no danger from a smallpox epidemic.

Real Reason for Trouble in Social Settlement Players Said to Have Been Jealousy.

The real cause for division and discontent among the Hull House players, it was learned yesterday, entered with four new actors.

The old actors resented the appearance of "new talent" in their midst, determinedly and spectacularly, according to their temperaments. Then they walked off the stage in a huff.

Mrs. Laura Dainty Pelham, director, said: "Five or six new actors were brought in. A few objected to taking in new players. But a new company was called together. Five of the old players responded; the others didn't come. We are rehearsing twice a week with the new actors and will be ready to play 'The Man of Destiny' and 'How We Lied to Our Husband' in December."

R. Rubright, W. B. Bull, W. J. Crump, James Wilson, Albert G. Sell, J. W. Yard, and D. B. Brewer.

OUTSIDE TOWNS AID RED CROSS

Women of Other Cities Near Chicago Assist in Making Garments for War Relief.

FUND TOTALS $82,000.

The Marshall Field & Co. station of the Red Cross yesterday turned in to Orson Smith, the treasurer, $210.17 to the fund, the contribution of one day.

Large quantities of material are bought every day by the young women all over the county, who, under the tutelage of the Chicago Woman's club, are doing an immense amount of work for the wounded, and especially for the women and children of the warring countries.

One woman from a small city near Chicago ordered 182 yards of gauze, 269 yards of unbleached muslin, and 559 yards of flannel, which will be made into Red Cross garments.

School Makes Garments.

The Francis Parker school at 330 Webster avenue has made up seven dozen nightingales and eighty other garments. Mrs. Marie Burghoffer of 4838 Warner avenue, who has three brothers in the war, appealed to be allowed to help. She will sew under direction of some one from the Chicago Woman's club.

Women of Allegan, Mich., after sending three large boxes of clothing, sent a money order for $96.73, with this message:

"This is the balance left after we made and shipped the clothing. We would like to have it used for the comfort and care of the women and children in any war-stricken country."

Contributions to Fund.

The cash contribution of Chicago was swelled during the day to over $82,000 by these names:

The Belgian Red Cross fund was swelled by $100 from the Adams & Westlake company, $50 from James M. Sherman, and $5 from Jane C. Tunnel, making the total of special funds $5,947.61. This, with the 15 per cent pledged by banks, raises the grand total to $82,191.56.

THEATER BARS U. S. SAILORS.

Four Navy Men, Recuperating from Vera Cruz Campaign, Take Complaint Into Court.

New York, Nov. 5.—Four sailors of the United States navy, who saw service at Vera Cruz and who are now recuperating in the hospital at the Brooklyn navy yard, appeared in a police court here today as complainants against employés of a Broadway theater who, they charged, had refused to admit them because they were wearing uniforms. The defendants were the ticket seller, doorman, and special officer at the theater. The magistrate who heard the case adjourned it for a further hearing on Saturday.

Sues for Death in Blast.

Pebeco or "Acid-Mouth" WHICH?

Take your choice. You can't have both.

Pebeco Tooth Paste

"The poor condition of my teeth almost prevented my passing the physical test for policemen. Besides putting my teeth into condition, my dentist said to me, 'You surely ought to use Pebeco.' The fact that I haven't seen nor felt the first signal of tooth-decay for over a year now proves this advice just what I needed."

Pebeco costs a bit more. Comes in extra-large tubes. No need to put it on "thick." Use one-third of a brushful only.

CHICAGOAN ASKS $125,000 FOR BREACH OF PROMISE.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—Miss Martha E. Randle, a Chicago milliner, in Judge McCormick's court today asked a jury to give her $125,000 because, she said, John F. Humphreys, 76 years old, asked her to marry him and then wedded another woman.

Humphreys says it is not so; that he never proposed to Miss Randle and that if he had proposed he would not have used a hotel lobby as the setting.

Miss Randle testified Humphreys proposed June 20, 1912. The case will be finished tomorrow.

SUE DRINK CURE INSTITUTE.

R. G. Pole and Wife Ask Return of Money Husband Paid for Treatment.

R. G. Pole and Mrs. Alexandra Pole, his wife, of 5920 West Ohio street, are trying to recover $155 which they say was paid the Gatlin institute at 1919 Prairie avenue to cure Mr. Pole of the liquor habit. Judge Fisher continued the case until Nov. 18. The plaintiffs allege that by the contract made with the Gatlin institute, Pole, on payment of $125, was to be cured, and in the event the "cure" failed he was to receive the money back and $10 a day for three days' loss of time.

Judge Ryan Assesses Heavy Penalty Against Mabelle Charlebois, Charged with Assault.

Miss Mabelle Charlebois, 3701 North Halsted street, a manicurist, was fined $200 and costs by Judge Ryan yesterday on a charge of assault and battery preferred against her by Mrs. Adelaide Lyle, 4018 Wilcox avenue.

Mrs. Lyle testified that on Sept. 19, Miss Charlebois struck her in the face when she upbraided her for being in the company of her husband, Lynn L. Lyle.

Mrs. Lyle said that on July 10 last after she told her husband she was going to Indianapolis, she concealed herself in a clothes closet in her room. Her husband returned late at night in the company of Miss Charlebois and she found them in her room, she testified.

"Miss Charlebois knows she is doing an injustice to Mrs. Lyle," said Judge Ryan, "and knows that she is gradually breaking up her home. I will enter a heavy fine here and hope it will teach the defendant a lesson."

Clemency for Letter Rifler.

Federal Judge Carpenter yesterday sentenced Joseph Bumba, a former postoffice clerk, to serve six months in the bridewell and then vacated the sentence and released the defendant on bonds of $500. Bumba pleaded guilty to having stolen 25 cents from a letter last March and $1 in a letter last May. Bumba had been in the service twenty-two years.

DR. ENGLERT MAY WIN FREEDOM ON HABEAS WRIT.

Physician Held for Alienation Judgment Will Get Hearing Before Judge Gibbons on Monday.

Whether Dr. Victor L. Englert, who has been in the county jail in connection with a $5,000 judgment obtained against him by Henry R. Kors in a suit for alienation of Mrs. Kors' affections, is to be released on a writ of habeas corpus obtained yesterday, will not be decided until Monday. Judge Gibbons continued the case.

Bond was fixed at $5,000, and if Dr. Englert can obtain it he probably will be at liberty until the hearing.

Mr. Kors, who is a cripple, was in the courtroom. He obtained a divorce, naming Dr. Englert. The alienation of affections suit followed.

"How does it seem to pay $3.50 a week for Mr. Englert's board?" Mr. Kors was asked.

AUTO TRUCK CRUSHES BOY.

Seven Year Old George Dunn Instantly Killed by Department Store Motor Van.

George Dunn, a 7 year old boy living at 6917 Calumet avenue, was run over and instantly killed last night by an auto truck belonging to Rothschild & Co. The driver, D. A. Kirk of 7259 Vincennes avenue, was held by the police pending the inquest today.

MERCURY SEEN IN TRANSIT ACROSS SUN DISK TOMORROW

The transit of Mercury across the disk of the sun will take place tomorrow morning at sunrise. The "egress of the planet," the moment at which it passes out of the disk, will occur at 8:08, according to Frederick C. Leonard, president of the Society for Practical Astronomy. The transit will be visible through a small telescope or a particularly strong pair of field glasses.

"The next transit of Mercury will take place in 1924, on May 7," said Mr. Leonard last night. "However, that one will not be visible in any part of the United States. After that the next one will take place in 1953 and it will be seen from our continent.

"The transits of the planets are of great interest to the astronomer and are of importance in making calculations of distances. The most important transit to us is the transit of Venus, though we shall not see one in the present century."

Slug Taxi Driver; Now in Cell.

Joseph Keegan and John S. 'I'LL RUN AGAIN,' HARRISON HINTS TO BUSINESS MEN

Mayor Talks of Subway Plans Which Reach Into the Future.

who have signified most in history have been city men. You have only to mention the name of certain great men to see how their career has been identified with the city. You have only to mention the names of such places as Rome and Athens and Venice and Milan and all the other Italian cities to see at once that the problems of civilization have been lifted to their highest answers and highest satisfaction in cities.

An American Invention.

"In most places the city has had its spirit or its soul, its highest ideal superimposed upon it. The idea that a city can evolve a soul is almost an American invention.

"We have been evolving a new attitude toward life, a new conception of the significance of city life, a new conception of the obligations that we as a city owe to one another, and to all those thousands and hundreds of thousands of men and women who are drifting here for the purpose of making homes. In that way Chicago has been evolving a new soul.

"We have got thousands of art students here. We have got thousands of every sort of professional students here. And practically the entire development of all that—at least anything comparable with this present situation—has been in those twenty years, since 1893.

Cites Art and Opera.

"Think only of the rise of our musical organizations, the rise of our art buildings, of our Art Institute, the rise of our art school, our interest in the opera, the development of authorship—why, you know that pretty nearly every author that amounts to anything has to be born here or get his training on a Chicago newspaper.

"But when you gather together all these extraordinary, wonderful developments that have come within these twenty years isn't it perfectly evident that commercialism is for all these things practically the outgrowth of Chicago and Chicago people, that commercialism is actually determined that it shall stand for something more than the mere accumulation of wealth, that it shall stand also for the devotion of wealth to the higher things of the spirit?

Growth of Kindness.

"And out from that simple kindness which is working so tremendously underground in many ways, but none the less working, we are going to pay better attention to those unfortunates in the midst of our city that need to be treated like an example in economy.

"The prisoner who is in our jails or our workhouses, and all the other places where unfortunate people have to be. We are going to see sooner or later that it is not the business of the community simply to make those folks safe. We are going to see where we can help. We are beginning to see it is the business of the city to help those people to live a useful, healthful, and normal life."

Speech of Mayor Harrison.

Mayor Harrison reviewed the garbage muddle of last year when "an effort was being made to sandbag the city either into giving the Chicago Reduction company a renewal of contract or into buying the plant at an exorbitant figure."

"The Chicago Reduction company," he said, "was forced to recede from its figures of $750,000 to $392,000 and finally to sell its plant to the city for $275,000, the figure I had named from the beginning. The plant was reconstructed and is today the best garbage reduction plant in America.

"Even today attempts are being made by private concerns to secure this plant or at least to control its by-products. Chicago should determine once and for all that never again will it permit its garbage to be handled by a private concern."

Outer Harbor Work.

The mayor then told of outer harbor work which "is rapidly progressing. The pier itself is practically completed. The contract for the head house and sheds is let and work on their construction is proceeding.

"Six and one-fourth acres is filled in to the south of and at the western approach to the pier, to be reserved for a convention hall and exposition building, according to the plans formulated by the Association of Commerce. I would suggest that at the spring election authority be asked by the city for a sufficient bond issue to construct such a building. Its value to Chicago would be inestimable."

Should Beaches Be Free?

On the subject of bathing beaches the mayor cited the purchase at Clarendon avenue and efforts to acquire land at Seventy-fifth street for municipal beaches.

"The question has been raised whether the city should make a small charge for the use of its bathing beaches," the mayor said. "Personally I am unconvinced of the desirability of such a charge. To my mind there may be some justice in a trivial charge for bathing suits and towels, though even this is questionable. The dressing rooms certainly should be free for the use of all."

Twelfth Street Widening.

Referring to the Michigan avenue widening, for which the voters on Tuesday approved a bond issue, he said: "Chicago in a brief space will own the most splendid public highway in the world."

"The widening of Twelfth street has reached the point where but a single step is needed to permit condemnation proceedings to be begun—namely, favorable action by the city council on the plan of the Baltimore and Ohio to establish its coach yard at Lincoln and East Fifteenth streets and to install new tracks on its elevated right of way.

"Slowly the old type bridges across the river are being supplanted by modern structures. Along the line of that part of the river which forms a part of the drainage channel the sanitary district has been building new bridges. On other sections of the river the city has finished in the last three years nine concrete fixed bridges at a total cost of $241,832.68 and six bascule bridges at Washington street, Grand avenue, Ninety-second street, Chicago avenue, Thirty-fifth street, and Indiana avenue at a total cost of $1,288,471.94. Contracts have been let for bascule bridges at Lake street, Webster avenue, and Belmont avenue. Plans are being prepared for bridges at La Salle street, Madison street, Franklin street, and Monroe street.

Opposes Private Ownership.

"For years I have been convinced the underlying causes of municipal corruption and of commercialism in politics are to be found in the private ownership of public utilities and in the performance of public work by private contract.

"The legislator is corrupted by the representative of the utility which seeks grants of public rights at no cost or at a trivial cost. The employé is corrupted by the private contractor who seeks excessive pay for poor workmanship and poor material.

"Little beyond the educational can be done in present circumstances to promote public ownership. The cause of direct labor will be advanced by the Marshall boulevard municipal plant which the city is constructing on thirty acres of land bought at a cost of $188,107. The estimated cost of the completed buildings is $1,500,000. This plant is intended to provide facilities for the manufacturing and repair work of all city departments."

I. C. May Electrify.

The mayor dealt at length with the lake front problem. He reviewed the trade between the south park board and the Illinois Central railroad and cited that "under certain conditions the electrification of its lines is agreed upon. To make the agreement effective certain rights must be granted by the city council, certain privileges granted by the federal government. By this trade when finally consummated the Illinois Central will get an addition to its right of way, the people will get the undisputed title to the lake front.

"I have no love for the Illinois Central. I am not an apologist for it. I am moved, however, by an earnest affection for Chicago. The lake front is the people's heritage. From Grant park to Jackson park it should be a splendid public playground, a haven of rest and recreation for its millions who must toil and swelter at home through the hot summer months. Instead it is an eyesore, an unlovely blot upon the landscape.

Counter Exchange Seen.

"Grant that the Illinois Central gets rights worth a king's ransom, what will be the counter value to Chicago of a lake frontage in the possession of its people reaching from the Evanston line to South Chicago? Chicago has already suffered a two and one-half years' delay. In this delay the public loss has already been greater than all the gain the settlement bestows upon the Illinois Central.

"The south park commissioners have asked the federal government for authority to fill in the submerged lands from Grant park to Thirty-ninth street to make its trade with the Illinois Central effective. The secretary of war has refused to issue the permit until the city of Chicago officially, by the action of its city council, petitions him so to do. The responsibility for action in this lake front question is now placed squarely before the city council.

"The council should act one way or the other. If the plan is to be approved, approve it now. If the plan is to be rejected, reject it now."

Lesson in Segregation.

The mayor told of the closing of the levee by the late State's Attorney Wayman and added:

"In this cleanup a lesson has been learned by many of us. In the first place, it has been made apparent that neither in Chicago nor in any single one of the continental cities is there or has there ever been real segregation, real police control, real medical supervision.

"In Chicago's worst days, the years preceding 1911, there were so-called segregated districts on the south side, the west side, along the river on the north side and in South Chicago. Immoral women, however, were settled in all sections of the city. Michigan avenue harbored a half dozen notorious dives operated by leaders of the demimonde.

"Though all the so-called segregated districts are closed and have been closed for months, there is no more vice in the outlying districts than there was during the wide open days.

"The evil effects of so-called segregation upon the police department are apparent, the benefits are nonexistent. The social evil cannot be exterminated; it can be held in check; its evils can be curtailed; its disastrous consequences reduced to a minimum.

"Chicago is today making an earnest, honest effort to clean up its sore spots. The effort is worth the making."

Detail attention was given to subways by the mayor.

"The need of a local subway is twofold—to supply adequate transportation for every section of the city and to relieve congestion in the downtown district, the heart of Chicago," he said.

"Several varieties of opposition to subways have manifested themselves in the last three years.

"There is the opposition growing out of the mistaken belief somewhat in vogue that subways would add immensely to the values of central property at the expense and to the detriment of outlying property and neighborhood centers. Were I convinced that this charge is well founded I would oppose subways myself, for to my mind the most helpful growth of the past decade has been the upspringing of thrifty business centers in all sections of the city. The very life's blood of these centers is good transportation. The better the transportation the quicker the growth, the more solid the development.

Surface Lines Oppose.

"The traction companies, surface and elevated, oppose an independent, comprehensive subway system, because by it dangerous competition with existing transportation facilities would be introduced. This competition ultimately would 'scrap' the elevateds' system.

"In this opposition the traction companies have a certain backing, based on reasons which I may surmise, but which I am unable positively to assert, not being in possession of a list showing the ownership of traction securities. The publication of a list of this kind might at times be most illuminating.

"... third opposition to subways has found root in the desire of certain small bore politicians to prevent the present city administration from accomplishing things.

Cites Ideal System.

"The ideal transportation system for Chicago would consist of a consolidation of existing surface and elevated lines, supplemented by a subway system extending trunk lines into every district. Such a system would provide Chicago with a unified traction service, and one fare would be given real life and vitality. The surface lines would become the feeders for the elevateds and the subway, and would care for the short haul business; the combination of elevateds and subways would provide real rapid transportation by means of which the residents of practically any section of the city would be enabled to seek employment in any other section. Congestion in the central district would be relieved, business centers in all parts of the city would throb with a new activity.

"Attempt has been made again and again to bring about this happy result. The real stumbling block has always been the demand of the elevateds for a valuation far in excess of the value of their properties.

"The city so far has refused. The city, I believe, will continue to refuse to permit millions of dollars to be injected into 'L' values for which no justification in fact can be found. Chicago is willing to deal fairly with these companies. Chicago will decline to be mulcted an unconscionable sum as the price for good transportation.

For Control of Subway.

"An effort is unquestionably in the making to secure a central subway for the joint use of surface and elevated lines. There can be no objections to this plan, if by throwing the proper safeguards about it an insuperable barrier is prevented from being placed in the way of a future comprehensive subway scheme.

Chicago with 191.29 square miles of territory and 2,500,000 of people is told this gigantic city is yet too undeveloped for a comprehensive subway system. Why? Objectors say it would not pay. Let me whisper a secret: The real opposition is based on the fear that it would pay so well as to interfere with the profits of the present traction systems.

Defends His Attitude.

"The administration is criticised for inactivity in that it has not undertaken subway construction. For myself, let me say that while I am ready to aid in the promotion of any subway scheme that will be of benefit to all Chicago, I decline to let the traction companies or their allies tell me what kind of a subway Chicago needs.

"I prefer to lay myself open to the charge of doing nothing to permitting Chicago to be 'done.'"

The mayor also told of the work of the administration in street paving, street lighting, and street signs. He mentioned the establishment of the tuberculosis sanitarium and contagious disease hospital and the plans for a new municipal lodging house.

De Frees on Smoke.

President Joseph De Frees reviewed the work of the association during the last year and called attention to the forthcoming report of the smoke committee. This committee is expected to present a plan for the electrification of the steam railways of the city.

"I venture to prophesy the report will not fail to be an epoch making document. The report will segregate the 17,000,000 tons of coal annually consumed in Chicago between the more important fuel consuming services and will accredit to each service its proportion of the total smoke which pollutes Chicago's atmosphere. It will show the importance of other sources of atmospheric pollution; all with attention to details never before attempted.

Problem of Committee.

"The problem of the committee has been to determine the character of the electrical establishment necessary to perform the functions not only of the through passenger and suburban service, but of the freight and yard switching service. As a basis of its estimates of cost it has determined the power not only by days but hour by hour, required to maintain all the various activities of the greatest railroad terminal in the world.

"Finally, it has not been content to deal with a single system of electrification only, but has included in its study of technical practicability and of cost all systems which may be assumed to be applicable to the Chicago situation."

Among those at the banquet table in addition to President Joseph De Frees, toastmaster, were Chief of Police James Gleason, Health Commissioner George B. Young, John F. Smulski, Angus Hibbard, and other officials of the Association of Commerce.

The dinner was attended by 500 members of the association.

street was just about to close down when the bureau dug up a six months' supply of the missing material in a warehouse within a mile and located on the same street.

At no one place in Chicago can be found such a large collection of information as to where all manner of raw and partly manufactured materials can be obtained as at the office of the research bureau. All the industries in the more than seventy divisions into which the membership of the association is divided are coöperating in the work.

Outsiders Will Be Helped.

Whether a manufacturer happens to be a member of the association or not he is invited to bring his special problems to the attention of the industrial commissioner and they will be given immediate attention.

There is no doubt also that any industry in the middle west which finds itself in difficulties owing to the war or changing business conditions, will be helped to the limit of the bureau's power.

All the strongest agencies in Chicago are united in the effort to keep the local factories open and to furnish work to as many genuine residents of the city as possible. It is already evident that there will be small chance for outsiders to find employment in Chicago during the season.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT ENDS LIFE WITH RIFLE IN HOME.

Victor Miles Leaves Note That Thoughts "Unaccountably Centered on Suicide."

Victor Miles, 19 year old high school student and son of Charles J. Miles, manager of the Dowd Stock Car company, was found dead last night in the furnace room in the basement of his father's home at 6661 Perry avenue.

A bullet hole over one eye and a small caliber rifle beside the body convinced the police that the student had killed himself. A note was found in which the boy asked his father for forgiveness for the act, and said that his thoughts had been "unaccountably centered on suicide."

The father told the police that his son had complained of a headache in the morning and had remained away from his studies at the Parker High school. The father reported finding the body upon his return home at 6 p. m.

Here's Description of Chicago's Soul.

Chicago has a soul, Prof. Shailer Mathews of the University of Chicago believes. He expresses himself thus:

In most places the city has had its spirit or its soul, its highest ideal superimposed upon it. The idea that a city can evolve a soul is almost an American invention.

We have been evolving a new attitude toward life, a new conception of the significance of city life, a new conception of the obligations that we as a city owe to one another, and to all those thousands and hundreds of thousands of men and women who are drifting here for the purpose of making homes. In that way Chicago has been evolving a new soul.

When you gather together all these extraordinary, wonderful developments that have come within the last twenty years isn't it perfectly evident that commercialism is for all these things practically the outgrowth of Chicago and Chicago people, that commercialism is actually determined that it shall stand for something more than the mere accumulation of wealth, that it shall stand also for devotion of wealth to the higher things of the spirit?

AUTUMN FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1914

I don't believe there is another place in Chicago where men—or women who shop for men—can buy things so freely and with so little shopping tension as they can in our stores. When our salesmen see that a man wants to look around by himself they leave him to his own devices, only making sure that there is someone within call to answer his questions. There are lots of people who like to buy this way—and we like to have them do it. It is a sure sign that they feel perfectly at home with us.

It is not merely "shower-proof" but will stand an all-day rain without soaking through. Yet it is not chemically treated nor filled with a solution of rubber—the weave makes it waterproof.

We offer attractive overcoats made from this wonderful material. They do not at all resemble raincoats but we are authorized by the manufacturers to guarantee that they will shed any rain—no matter how hard.

BLINDNESS, THEN ILLNESS, CRUSH HOPE OF FAMILY

Good Fellow.

For the consideration of a Good Fellow:

For about eight years the home of Mr. S. out on the northwest side was a happy place.

He successfully established a profitable little barber shop and conducted his business comfortably. His ambitions were modest and he was willing to "stick to his last."

Of course he did not make very much money, just enough to run the home without close pinching. The wife was as well dressed as the equally humble neighbors, and there would be enough to spare to take care of the two youngsters as they came along.

The savings account did not pile up very fast, but S. did not worry about that particularly so long as he could work and there was plenty of business at the little shop on the corner.

Trouble Overtakes Family.

About a year ago worry began to creep into that home.

The barber's eyes commenced to trouble him. Doctors failed him and finally he had to give up work in the shop. Then as bills piled up and the pressure increased he had to sell the shop for a couple of hundred dollars.

Then Mrs. S. fell ill. On top of that the children were quarantined for a contagious disease and this additional expense made the savings melt rapidly. Their money was soon gone and a lodge to which the man belonged gave assistance, amounting to about $100, over a period of several months. The county agent also gave supplies. The United Charities cooperated with other agencies in giving relief.

Now Mr. S. is blind and the family is totally dependent. One eye is lost forever. There is a chance that the sight of the other eye may be saved—if help comes in time.

Seek Eye Specialist.

Mr. S. has received free treatment at dispensaries and now the United Charities is making arrangements to have the case submitted to one of the best of the city's eye specialists.

The suffering Mr. S. has an excellent reputation and the word of every landlord and acquaintance is favorable. The wife is unable to more than care for the two children.

Meanwhile the United Charities needs for this case:

Rent, $8 a month.
Food, $3 each week.
Milk, $2.40 a month.
Clothes, $4 a month.

The county will furnish fuel. In all, about $27 a month will care for the family until the man's condition is so improved that he can take special training in a school for the blind.

What about it, Good Fellows?

Young Men Band Together.

"I'm a Good Fellow, or rather I will be as soon as you will let me be."

A young man made this his introduction at the office of the Good Fellow department yesterday and outlined a plan.

"There are about half a dozen of us," he said, "all salesmen officing on the seventh floor of the —— building. It had occurred to us, looking over the Good Fellow stories, that we might pool together and do some good.

"We have the notion that the $50 a month we can spare between us might do some good. Reading over the 'case stories' in THE TRIBUNE indicates that about $25 will take care of a family, generally speaking, and I'm here to get a couple of families so we can go out and see what they need.

"It'll only cost us a matter of a few rounds of drinks apiece or cigaret money, if you want to figure it that way, and we think we ought to be doing something."

In a short time this young man and his associate Good Fellows were put in touch with the conditions in a number of families in the northwest and lower north districts of the United Charities and the problems of two households facing tragedy will be solved.

Lots of work for more Good Fellows.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JOHN E. SMITH, sister of John P. Steward of the International Harvester company and of the late Lewis Steward, died of pleuro-pneumonia at Plano, Ill., yesterday. She was 71 years old. She is survived by her husband and six children, Ivan L. and Vernon Smith and Mrs. Marshall Melrose, Plano; Mrs. Otis Turner, St. Louis; Earl V. Smith, Norman, Cal., and Mrs. Inez Smith, Aurora, Ill. The funeral will be held at Plano tomorrow.

BRAMAN LOVELESS died on Tuesday at his residence in Glendale, Cal. Mr. Loveless was born in Saratoga county, New York, in 1839. He moved to Elgin, Ill., in 1853. Prior to moving to California three years ago he lived for thirty years at Wheaton, Ill. He served more than three years in the civil war in the Thirty-sixth Illinois volunteers. His widow, two sons, and a daughter survive him.

SAMUEL D. STERN, a civil war veteran, who died on Wednesday, will be buried today. Mr. Stern was born in Germany and came to Chicago shortly before the civil war. He served under Grant and Sherman. Before his retirement from business he ran a furniture store.

SAMUEL D. STRYKER, western manager of Joseph Benn & Sons, and a resident of Chicago for over thirty years, died Wednesday at the residence of his daughter at Brooklyn, N. Y. He was born in New York in 1835 and came to Chicago in 1884. He retired from active business two years ago and went east.

ALD. HOWARD N. WAGG of the Twenty-fifth ward, who died on Wednesday, will be buried in Skowhegan, Me. Services will be held at the residence, 672 Sheridan road, today at 2 p. m.

HENRY GANNETT, president of the National Geographic society and chairman of the United States Geographic board, died in Washington yesterday after a long illness.

WILLIAM HENRY WALTER MONTAGU-DOUGLAS-SCOTT, sixth duke of Buccleuch, is dead in England, according to announcement in London.

A Good Fellow to Others Is a Good Fellow to Himself.

GOOD FELLOWS come back from their adventures in the poor district happier for their experiences. The Good Fellow plan has made failure and disappointment impossible for the Good Fellow who is in earnest and anxious to help the unfortunates. A charities worker familiar with the families in need is the "introducer" and the interpreter of the needs of the situation. The Good Fellow who follows the plan of cooperation cannot make a mistake. Here are some cases worth attention. If you want to help send your name and address to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

SOUTHWEST DISTRICT.

J.—Who will contribute toward the $28 a month needed for the adequate support of the widow, Mrs. J., and her four children? The eldest is not old enough to work and the woman's eyesight is so poor that it is impossible for her to do even the necessary sewing for her children much less hustle to earn a living or a part of it. Her relatives are poor, although they give in small quantities at irregular intervals all that they can spare. Two quarts of milk a day just about satisfy the needs of the little J.'s, whose condition is one of under nourishment with evidence of tuberculosis, which must be conquered. The little J.'s hardly know what it means to own new clothing. Won't you look at your children's underwear, and if they have outgrown it and it is fit to wear—even though patched—will you give it to these little folks?

CENTRAL DISTRICT.

J.—Mr. J., wife and three children, oldest 5 years and youngest a 6 weeks old baby. Man is an ironworker without steady employment for the last eight months. Little savings which family had are exhausted and the earnings from occasional day's work at odd jobs which man has picked up have gone for food. Family unable to keep up rent. Two months now owing, landlord has served first eviction notice. Until the new baby came woman had helped out by doing day's work when she could get it. This she is no longer able to do with nursing baby to care for and she is as well in a very run down condition as a result of the deprivations and hardships of the last months. Man is of good habits, earnest, and ambitious. Need: Two months' rent, three if possible, to give family a start, and a job for man.

SOUTH CHICAGO DISTRICT.

S.—Mrs. S. is a widow 53 years of age, and for the last six years has supported her family of three by doing washings. She is suffering with a cancer now and cannot live very long. Valeria, who is employed at the laundry for $6.50 a week, is the sole support of the family. Out of this amount she must pay her car fare. Henrietta stays at home to care for the home and her mother. Bertha, aged 11, is in the seventh grade. The family will have to have their rent paid and the girls are in need of clothing.

R.—Mr. R. is a laborer who is employed one day a week. He is fast losing his sight and was in the Illinois Charitable Eye and Ear infirmary for a few weeks. He returned before his eyes were cured in order to resume his day's work a week and do what he could to support his family. R. has agreed to return to the hospital if the United Charities will take care of his family. The United Charities has promised to do this and will need $8.50 a month for rent, $3.50 a week for food, and two quarts of milk daily.

TWO NEW HAVEN MEN DENY GUILT

BILLARD ALSO IN COURT

New York, Nov. 5.—[Special.]—William Rockefeller, whose term of service as a director of the New Haven has been longer than that of any of his colleagues, appeared before Judge Foster in the United States District court this morning and entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment against him charging conspiracy to monopolize interstate commerce.

Mr. Rockefeller, keen, alert, and vigorous in appearance, was accompanied by his counsel, John A. Garver. He was entirely unconcerned, but when it came time for him to speak either to the court or to his counsel his voice was husky and not loud.

Billard Will Claim Immunity.

Four hours later John L. Billard, the Meriden banker, head of the famous Billard firm, appeared and also entered his plea, with the addition of a notification that he will claim immunity from prosecution because of his testimony before the interstate commerce commission.

Mr. Billard, who looks somewhat like Admiral Dewey, was accompanied by Homer S. Cummings, his counsel, who is also state's attorney of Fairfield county, Conn.

It had been announced publicly that Mr. Rockefeller would plead in the afternoon, but the courts hardly had opened in the morning when he made his appearance with his lawyer.

Rockefeller Enters Plea Promptly.

Clerk Leary had only time to call "Mr. Rockefeller" before the man summoned was on his feet.

"Mr. Rockefeller, do you waive the formal reading of the indictment?" the clerk inquired. The financier nodded and his lawyer answered in the affirmative.

"How do you plead to this indictment, which charges you with conspiracy to monopolize interstate commerce?" came the next question.

"Not guilty, your honor," the defendant replied.

Mr. Garver then made the usual motion for delay until Nov. 23 in order to withdraw the plea of not guilty, to enter a demurrer, or to take any other action desired. The bail was fixed at $5,000, which at once was furnished.

COTTON NO LONGER PROBLEM

Reserve Board May Announce Adoption of $135,000,000 Loan Fund Plan Today.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 5.—Adoption of the $135,000,000 cotton loan fund plan by banks and others throughout the country may be announced tomorrow by the federal reserve board. Reports of contributions continued to reach the treasury department today and it was hoped that the fund would be fully subscribed by tomorrow. The success of the plan has been so marked that cotton virtually has ceased to be a subject of international worry.

SEEK TO BUY SEIZED OPIUM.

Wholesale Drug Firms Want to Purchase Drug Confiscated by the Government.

Judge Carpenter yesterday received several letters from wholesale drug firms requesting to be given an opportunity to buy opium from the government.

The requests came as a result of an announcement by Judge Carpenter that he would refuse to order the destruction of about 300 pounds of opium seized by internal revenue agents in recent raids on Chinese manufacturers of illicit smoking opium.

GERMANS SEEK U. S. TUTORS

Want Americans to Fill Places of Ousted English.

LIVE IN BEST FAMILIES.

Teachers Also Can Study at Universities, Says Consul.

The European war has presented an unusual opportunity to American teachers who want to study in German universities. Hundreds of English teachers in the schools and tutors in the homes have been dismissed by the Germans since the war started in their effort to get rid of everything that is English.

Germany now wants these places filled with Americans, for whom they have a high regard, according to the report of Consul Henry G. Seltzer at Breslau, which has just been received.

Teach Adults and Children.

"The European crisis has opened a most unusual opportunity for ambitious American teachers in German," Consul Baker reported. "For years England has supplied almost all of the English speaking teachers and tutors in the homes of the wealthier classes and the nobility. The work consists in instructing German children and adults in the elements of English and in attending the large universities themselves.

"In most cases board and lodging is provided for them. These teachers always have been shown the highest regard and respect and have associated with the best families in Germany.

Requirements for Work.

"Applicants for these positions must be able to teach English grammar, literature, and composition from German-English textbooks."

W. D. Boyce, a publisher, addressed the Advertising Association of Chicago on the trade possibilities of South America.

Their Papa Has Had a Hard Run of Luck.

THIS picture comes from a home of the hardest kind of hard luck on the north side. Last year this family, husband, wife, and three children, the oldest 4 years, moved to the country, where there was prospect of work, a home, and independence. A tornado swept away the property and their hopes. The remnants of furniture were lost in shipment to Chicago. Now they have nothing and the man has no prospects of work. A month's rent and friendly counsel would help.

BLAZE IN STRIKE ZONE

Otherwise Arkansas Is Calm as Troops Near.

SOLDIERS ARRIVE TODAY.

Grand Jury Also Opens Its Inquiry Into Miners' Walkout.

Fort Smith, Ark., Nov. 5.—The apparent calm which fell upon the Hartford Valley coal mining regions when news was received that President Wilson had ordered federal troops into that section to preserve order, was broken today when reports spread throughout the valley that another building on the Bache-Denman properties at Prairie Creek had been burned. The burning was said to be the act of some boys who had been playing about the empty structure.

While this was the only development in the mining valley, the federal authorities in this city were busily engaged getting everything in readiness for the meeting of the grand jury tomorow.

That the state authorities also are keeping in touch with the situation was evidenced when I. S. Simmons, prosecuting attorney for Sebastian county, called upon United States Judge Youmans and R. B. Hull, special assistant to the attorney general, who will conduct the investigation of the mining troubles before the grand jury. Mr. Simmons declined to discuss his mission.

Latest reports received tonight stated that the special trains bringing the four troops of cavalry from Fort Sheridan, Ill., would not reach Fort Smith before late tomorrow morning.

Maj. Nathaniel F. McClure was busy today preparing for their arrival and there will be little delay in getting these soldiers into the valley. The force is composed of twelve officers and about 270 men, including two machine gun platoons.

AMERICAN LEAGUE TAKES A "STAND PAT" PLATFORM

OWNERS TALK ON PEACE, BUT ASK SOLUTION

No Concrete Proposition Offered to Settle War with the Feds.

FARRELL SHOWS IRE.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Polite skepticism regarding the fertility of the eggs on which the baseball dove of peace is supposed to be sitting and a general air of Missouri pessimism characterized the first day of the American league's annual business meeting at the Congress hotel yesterday.

Peace was the chief topic discussed both inside and outside the meeting room apparently. Everybody was for it and nobody against it in the abstract, but as a concrete proposition the visiting club owners exhibited an almost uniform attitude of desiring to be shown how peace between organized baseball and the Federal league could be brought about. An informal discussion of the situation occupied most of the two hour session held by the magnates in the afternoon.

The late arrival of Frank Farrell of the New York Yankees prevented reaching the matter of transferring the ownership of the Gotham team. Farrell missed the fast train he expected to take out of New York Wednesday, and did not reach the city until 4 p. m., after his associates had gone into executive session without him.

Hot Session on Card.

Fire flashed from Farrell's eyes every time he was questioned about the sale of the Yankees, and the flash was followed by an emphatic denial of the report his club was on the market. The forecast is for a warm session today when the New York man is made acquainted with the opinions of the rest of the American league club owners regarding some of Farrell's associates in the ownership of the Yankees. However, Farrell may not like them any better than his colleagues do. You never can tell in baseball.

Hugh Jennings of the Detroit club was not on hand to take the verbal drubbing that was coming to him for violating the enforced secrecy in the matter of waivers on players, so no drubbing was forthcoming. Connie Mack, who had most reason for complaint, refused to make complaint formally against Jennings, and smoothed the matter over with the announcement that he had talked with Jennings by telephone at Atlantic City, and the Tiger pilot had apologized for his indiscretion so nicely that he did not have the heart to blame him, or words to that effect.

Story of Traveling Tale.

If the real facts were known it probably happened that Jennings told some close friends in strictest confidence about the impending Athletic shakeup; then the friend told somebody else in stricter confidence, and pretty soon the whole boardwalk knew about it.

Connie Mack himself substantiated the report that he was through with the three veterans of his pitching staff, Coombs, Bender, and Plank, and created some surprise by the statement that he believed Coombs, as well as the other two, still had some good baseball in his arm. He refused to give his reasons for discarding the trio, but said that he had some good ones. Frank Navin of the Detroit club refused to waive claim to Plank and probably will get the aged southpaw.

Regarding the report that he was going to break up his $100,000 infield, Mack declined to make a specific denial, but declared he had not said he was going to do it. He explained that he had said he intended to make other changes in the Athletics without stating what changes.

Denies Talk with Feds.

The rumor that an emissary of the American league was in touch with Federal league club owners in the city was denied absolutely. President Somers of the Cleveland club, one of the reported messenger boys, not only denied the impeachment but seemed to be one of the most skeptical of the bunch regarding the chances of peace. He was one of the hardest hit by bad baseball conditions this year and was supposed to be one of the most ardent advocates of a settlement with the Federals.

"Baseball will not prosper until existing conditions are remedied," Mr. Somers said, "but I do not see how it is possible to bring about peace at present. I am willing to be shown, however. The player angle looks to me to be the greatest obstacle. Personally, I do not think peace or war would make much difference to the Cleveland club next season or the year after. We have our stars signed up to long term contracts. Most of them have two more years to run and the salaries must be paid just the same whether there is a Federal league or not.

"I had my fill of stars this year. Why, some days it was hard to get into the ball park on account of the players' automobiles that were parked around it. There will be a day of reckoning, of course, but just now I do not see that peace or war in baseball will make much difference."

"Same Here," Other Owners.

The other club owners voiced much the same sentiments. They declared they saw no chance to reduce expenses to any extent next year, whether or not the Federal league disbands or continues the war. All of them admitted a willingness to be shown.

No formal action on the question of peace or war was taken, according to Secretary Harridge, who dispensed the official information of the league's transactions. Each club owner was asked to make an informal expression of his views, but no actual vote on the matter was taken.

What the club owners actually did was to listen to the roll call, hear and approve the report of the treasurer, B. B. Johnson, and accept the report of the directors awarding the league pennant to the Athletics.

The representatives on hand at the roll call were Charles A. Comiskey of Chicago, R. L. Hedges of St. Louis, C. W. Somers of Cleveland, Frank J. Navin of Detroit, Connie Mack and Tom Shibe of Philadelphia, B. S. Minor of Washington, and Joseph Lannin of Boston. Frank Farrell of New York reached the meeting room just before adjournment for the day and found he still had a franchise in spite of missing his train.

The New York ownership and further discussion of the Federal league probably will occupy the attention of the club owners at today's session, which is booked for 11 a. m.

Few Outsiders Around.

There was an unusually small attendance of outsiders, although a number of minor league club owners and officials came to town on their way to the meeting of their organization in Omaha next week.

While the club owners were in session some of the lobbyists amused themselves by having "Mr. Weeghman," "Mr. Gilmore," and other well known absentees paged about the corridors of the hotel.

NO CHANCE FOR PEACE HERE.

CARDS FOR SALE; $500,000 ASKED

Britton Will Turn In Plant and Good Will if He Can Find Buyer.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—Schuyler Britton, president of the St. Louis Nationals, will sell the Cardinals, players, plant, and good will, for $500,000.

This was the price he set tonight when told of the rumored peace plan discussed at the American league meeting in Chicago whereby the St. Federals would be asked to buy either the Cardinals or the Browns.

"Sell? Of course I will sell," said Britton. "I figure the club, which was valued at $350,000 in 1912 when it finished in seventh place, is worth a half million today, with good prospects of being a pennant winner next year. I know nothing of the peace plan, but if it is based on my willingness to sell, I'll sell."

INSURANCE COMPANY SUES C. W. MURPHY FOR $500.

Charles W. Murphy, former owner of the Cubs, was sued for $500 in the County court yesterday by A. F. Shaw & Co., local agents for Lloyds of London, England. The action is the result of an automobile accident, according to Attorney J. A. Bloomington, who filed the suit.

"Murphy's automobile was insured by Lloyds," said the attorney, "and when it was damaged in a collision they paid him under the policy. He gave them a subrogation receipt, entitling them to recovery of damages from the owners of the other car figuring in the accident. Later they learned that Murphy had collected from the other parties, and the suit is brought for the return of the money."

The bill recites that damage to the Murphy car was caused by Emil Noel and E. S. Sheppard. After settlement had been made by Lloyds, it is alleged, Murphy accepted money from both Noel and Sheppard, releasing them from further damage claims.

Mr. Murphy stated last night that he had received no notice of the suit and that his claims had been handled by Attorney George W. McGurn. The accident took place on March 4.

SAYS WEEGHMAN SEEKS CUBS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—That negotiations are pending for the sale of the Cubs to Charles Weeghman, owner of the Chicago Tinx, was admitted today by Harry Ackerland, the vice president of the Chicago Nationals.

"It is true that negotiations are on for the sale of the club to Weeghman," Ackerland said, "but I am not in a position to discuss the matter authoritatively at this time."

"Will you retain your interest in the club if the club passes over to the Federal league magnate?" he was asked.

"I think I will retain it," he replied. "There is no reason why I should sell it. I am satisfied with my investment."

NO SUNDAY BALL IN CAPITAL.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 5.—The Court of Appeals today reversed a ruling of a lower court and held that Sunday baseball in the national capital is illegal.

I. A. C. MEN TAKE CONTESTS IN FIRST MEET OF SEASON.

Tri-color swimmers had no trouble in winning both open events of the first swimming meet of the season at the Illinois Athletic club last night, the only outside opposition coming from the Hamilton club.

Perry McGillivray won the 100 yard event. W. R. Vosburgh, his clubmate, being second, and T. Sheppard of the Hamilton club, the only other starter being third. The time was 0:56. Harry J. Hebner took an early lead in the 440 event, and, going easily, won from C. Brown of the Hamilton club by nearly a length in 5:31. W. L. Wallen of the Hamilton club was two lengths behind. Summary:

200 yard breast stroke—Won by E. Vacin, scratch; F. Barker, 12 seconds, second; S. C. Jensen, 8 seconds, third. Time—3:10 2-5.

440 yard handicap—Won by J. Miller, 12 seconds; D. Thompson, 12 seconds, second; A. J. Evers, scratch, third. Time—6:33 3-5.

100 yard handicap—Won by A. Siegel, scratch; W. S. Roth, 8 seconds, second; J. J. Mehlem, scratch, third. Time—1:05 1-5.

100 yard open—Won by P. McGillivray, I. A. C.; W. R. Vosburgh, I. A. C., second; T. Sheppard, Hamilton club, third. Time—0:56.

440 yard open swim—Won by H. J. Hebner, I. A. C.; C. Brown, Hamilton, second; W. L. Wallen, Hamilton, third. Time—5:31.

Umbrella race—Won by L. Jacobsen.

Yamada Wins from Cline.

Warren, Pa., Nov. 5.—Koji Yamada defeated Harry Cline, 400 to 255, in a Billiard Players' league match tonight. Averages: Yamada, 14 22-27; Cline, 9 21-26.

Boxer Charley White Strong for 'Horseshoe'

CHARLEY WHITE is superstitious. He believes in the lucky horseshoe and thereby hangs this tale of fortune. Two days before the local lightweight battled Willie Ritchie he found a small horseshoe during his final training. Two days later he nearly knocked the crown off the head of the former champion. Since that time he has been returned the victor in all his battles, some of which have ended with knockouts. But the best bit of luck he attributes to a piece of equine footwear was told yesterday in connection with his recent automobile accident. Placed at the bottom of his grip among several liniment bottles was the horseshoe. When the machine took a complete somersault the grip did likewise, as did C. White. During the single revolution the side door snapped open and when Charley recovered he found the grip—and his horseshoe lying beside him. The machine was a wreck, but the grip with every bottle intact was resting beside the aspirant for the championship. Wherever White goes the horseshoe is to be found. But he does not believe it will be necessary to wear it within one of his gloves for "good luck" when he meets Freddie Welsh.

Sir Clifton Pin Knights Roll High Game of 1078

SIR CLIFTON bowlers set the pace for the City last night when they piled up an average of 999 1-3 in the veteran North Chicago, breaking the league record for high game twice in the same series by counting 1,071 in the second game and raising it to 1,078 in the last attack. The Standards lost three games. Steady work on the part of the entire team gave the club its big series, with Marvin Erickson leading with 216 2-3 and Dave Woodbury running down 202 2-3.

Jim O'Leary's speed busters in the South Side league ran a good second to the Sir Cliftons by pounding out 990 2-3 against the South Chicagos and taking a straight series. Scores:

ENGLISH GOLFERS TO COME.

Harry Vardon, six times winner of the British open golf championship, and James Braid, five times holder of the title, are planning to visit America next summer. Vardon stated when here in 1913 that he might come over in 1915, but Braid's decision to make the trip is new.

'MIDDLES' AWAIT CLANG OF GONG

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—With their match generally acknowledged to be for the middleweight championship of the world, Jimmy Clabby and George Chip will enter the ring for their twenty round fight tomorrow night in shape to put up the battle of their lives, according to assertions made today by each.

Tonight the betting is even money, as it has been ever since the men were matched. At that there is not much money in sight, for the fans figure that the men are so evenly matched that betting on the result is like betting on the turn of a dice—just luck.

Hoosier to Weigh 154 Pounds.

Clabby says that he will enter the ring lighter than ever before. He will weigh 154, and says that it is because he has trained harder than ever before.

"I realize that Chip is a dangerous man with a wicked punch," he said, "and I shall be careful, but I am confident of winning."

Chip will weigh 158, and he says that he has had no trouble in making the weight. "I am as fit as ever in my fighting career," he said today, "and am certain that I will be the next middleweight champion."

Limit Bout Favors Clabby.

Opinion here is that if both men are on their feet at the end of the twenty rounds Clabby will be declared the winner. He is acknowledged as the more clever. The Chip adherents are pinning their faith on his ability to land his famous punch and they profess the belief that Clabby's jabbing will not be able to slow him up.

WHITE TO APPEAR AT C. A. A.

Members of the Chicago Athletic association will be treated to their first wrestling show of the season tomorrow night when a big card of bouts will be staged. One of the features will be the appearance of Charley White, the local lightweight, who battles Champion Freddie Welsh in Milwaukee on Monday night. White, it was announced last night, would stage some of his training stunts, such as skipping the rope and bag punching. A Japanese wrestler named Oiogawa will tackle "Mysterious Waffles" in one of the mat bouts. In another, Demetral will meet Ortonobitz, a Hungarian giant. Pat Connolly, the Irishman, is billed to take holds with Ilias Goverica, a huge Servian.

LEVINSKY-MANDELL GO DRAW

Providence, R. I., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—Battling Levinsky of New York and Frank Mantell of Pawtucket, R. I., boxed twelve rounds to a draw tonight.

Melcher Knocks Out Flynn.

WINKLER STARS IN SHOOT.

A. H. Winkler was the star marksman of the weekly shoot staged by the Chicago Gun club at the Kensington traps yesterday. Winkler won first prize in all three events. He led in the 100 target event at sixteen yards with a total of 95, topped the field in the twenty-five target distance handicap with a 24, and in the special fifteen bird event, with a score of 13.

AT THE BILLIARD ROOMS.

Falk [50] defeated Carr [40], 50 to 36, in the three cushion tournament at Mussey's.

O'Neill won the rapid fire three cushion tournament at Weeghman's, Sterling being second and Lamkin third.

Manager Cummings will stage a rapid fire three cushion tournament at Fienner's rooms tonight.

In the three cushion tournament at Robert's Logan Square room, Ackerman defeated Hanson, 50 to 45.

In the three cushion tournament at Conklin & Burdick's, Martin [35] defeated Kline [26], 35 to 26, and Burns [46] defeated Burton [38], 46 to 36.

Bob Lord, the Woodlawn star, defeated Merryweather, 300 to 155, in the first half of their 18-2 match at Adams' rooms. The second block will be played tonight.

Mussey's men won both games in the English billiard tournament at Bland's room. Lucas defeated Chapman, 150 to 135, and Wallace defeated Heaverman, 150 to 120. Mussey's team now leads by 154 points. Tonight at Mussey's Wemp will play Windham and Clover meets Simons.

FIGHTER'S HANDS ARE PRECIOUS; SHOW MUCH CARE

BY RAY C. PEARSON.

How would you like to be the possessor of a pair of hands worth more than their weight in gold? There are two such pairs in Chicago at the present time. The owner of one pair is Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion of the world, while the others are attached to the sturdy frame of Charley White, the local scrapper, who will battle Welsh for the title at Milwaukee next Monday night.

Both Welsh and White are well aware of how valuable their hands are and they are using every means possible to protect them. The promoters of the Brewery City club, which will stage the battle, have taken out accident insurance on White for $10,000 to safeguard themselves in case Charley, while traveling at rampaging speed in his automobile, is damaged so that he cannot make the fight against the champion as called for in the articles of agreement. White likes speed, and so interested is he in his machine that even in the gymnasium he talks nothing but motoring.

White Bandages Hands.

But White doesn't think he is taking any chance of being injured while driving his car on the local boulevards. He thinks there is more chance of damaging one of his precious hands with which he expects to land on Champion Welsh's jaw and score a knockout, thereby copping the world's title. To safeguard his maulies the local battler has his trainer carefully bandage them with tape every day before he starts his training bouts at O'Connell's gymnasium as said trainer tapes them in the dressing room before a real battle in the ring.

White's fighting tools never were in better condition than at the present time. He is hitting well with both hands, but the fact that his right hand was twice put out of commission temporarily in ring engagements has taught him the value of caution. His hands have been in bandages since he started training and there won't be a day without them until after the battle at Milwaukee.

Welsh Also Shows Care.

At Forbes' gymnasium the other pair of valuable hands are being guarded with care. This explains why Welsh has not indulged in any boxing since his arrival in Chicago on Wednesday. A careful inspection of the champion's hands show that his fingers are puffed, due to the punches he landed on Matty Baldwin and Ad Wolgast in the two battles fought only a short time ago. So careful was Welsh of his maulies yesterday that he taped them before punching the bag. He will be ready today, however, to take a whirl with the padded mitts. His sparring partner will be Dick Wheeler, an easterner, who is traveling with the champion.

Welsh performed before as big a crowd yesterday as ever was crowded into a local gymnasium, it being estimated that 400 fans were at Forbes'. The champion shadow-boxed for several rounds, pulled the weight machines and punched the bag. When he had finished work for the day he said that he was in fine fettle.

Charley Shows Speed.

At O'Connell's White cut loose with a lot of "pep." Besides the usual work, such as skipping the rope and punching the bag, Charley tore off five rounds of real boxing with three sparring partners. Mickey Sheridan entertained White for two rounds and it was a merry session with lots of hard hitting. Then Frankie Lyon climbed through the ropes to give Charley some speed work. They went at top speed for two rounds, and the final number saw White mix things with Danny McMahon for one round.

Tom Andrews, promoter in chief, was in the city yesterday looking over the local seat sale. The promoter was perfectly satisfied and said that present indications pointed to a house worth at least $30,000. Andrews had just made this remark when a man handed him a card bearing the name "Max Goldstein, Milwaukee, Wis."

"I'll give you $30,000 for the show," said Mr. Goldstein. "Look me up when you get back to Milwaukee and we'll close the deal there."

Andrews didn't know what to think of the offer, but it's a pretty safe bet that Andrews will run off the bouts as per schedule.

Talk Over Referee Question.

Andrews hooked up with Harry Pollok, manager of Welsh, and Nat Lewis, who looks after White's affairs, during the afternoon. The promoter wanted to have the referee question settled to the satisfaction of both managers. Referees Stout, Duffy, and Ryan were mentioned, and Lewis agreed to take any one of the three. The club wants Stout, the official referee, but Pollok seemed to favor Duffy. Pollok asked for a day to think it over and promised to notify Andrews of his selection tonight.

One of the things settled at the conference was that the boys will meet at catchweights. Pollok took White at his word when the latter said he would battle Welsh at any old weight. The boys will weigh in for the benefit of the boxing commission in their street clothes, but after they do so White intends to strip and get on the scales and show his real weight in an effort to show how much heavier the champion really is.

Welsh's manager yesterday said that Welsh's next battle after that at Milwaukee probably would be against Jimmy Duffy in Buffalo.

JOY IN SANTRY'S ELECTION; GLOOM IN CALIFORNIA VOTE.

Local boxing fans were jubilant and gloomy by turns yesterday. The jubilance was caused by the election of Eddie Santry, who a little more than a decade ago was one of the best featherweight boxers in the country, to the Illinois state legislature.

Santry was the successful candidate from the Third district, and when he goes to Springfield it is expected he will make a fight to secure the passage of a bill which will legalize boxing in the state. Santry made his intention known yesterday when he said that he would make every effort to secure a law that will give the boxers a chance to display their skill. It would be hard to find an exponent of boxing better qualified for the effort than Santry, for he knows every angle of the game.

While the fans were celebrating Santry's election they learned of the killing of boxing in California by the voters of that state. The Golden Gate state always has been the greatest state in the country for the pugilists, and was one of the few in which twenty round bouts were permitted.

BOARD REFUSES REQUEST OF TRIP FOR MORGAN PARK.

Permission was refused the football team of Morgan Park High school yesterday to go to Erie, Pa., to play the high school team there on Thanksgiving day. Only one member of the school management committee voted to allow the team to go to Erie. She was Mrs. Charles O. Sethness.

Supt. Ella Flagg Young spoke against allowing the team to go east on the grounds that members of the team would lose two hours of the school work on Wednesday before Thanksgiving day. The committee previously voted to let the Parker High school close an hour and a half early two days a year for a meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of the school.

A request of President George W. Steffens of the board of athletic control for a stenographer for the meetings also was refused by the committee. There were four women members and two men members of the school management committee attending the meeting.

In the Wake of the News

By RING W. LARDNER

SO WE'RE TOLD.

We never did paint, and we certainly ain't
An expert on pigment and hue,
But people who know assure us it's so
That Maroon—Gray=Blue.

However, Zuppke's boys will have a hard time solving the Midway style of play if it is anywhere near as intricate as the Midway style of correspondence.—"The scrimmage was one of the hardest of the season. The ball was in motion all the time, passing in fierce plunges, and runs and forward passes from positions in front of the goal posts, defended by both elevens."

Very few eastern teams are numbering their players. Harvard doesn't do it, but has a combination signaling and megaphone system which, it says, serves the purpose as well. This system was used last Saturday to keep the press informed as to who was carrying the ball, doing the tackling, etc. We fell for it until the second play of the game, when the announcer told us that Splawn had gone through the line for six yards. We knew that Splawn was not used as a line plunger. As a matter of fact, Maulbetsch carried the ball on five out of every six plays and Splawn wasn't called on more than three times all afternoon except to kick. But as a result of the announcing system, Splawn and Hughitt got credit in some detailed accounts of the game for a great deal of the work Maulbetsch did. The megaphone man simply couldn't believe Maulbetsch was carrying the ball as often as he seemed to be; the megaphone man didn't know Maulbetsch. Nor did he know much about Mr. Whalen, who, he told us, supplanted McHale at guard in the fourth period. Mr. Whalen is nothing more nor less than an end and on last Saturday he was a useless end, for a twisted ankle kept him on the sidelines, where he watched the game in street attire. The numbering system is still our favorite, thank you.

AND DRINK 'EM.

"WAITER - ASSISTANT BARTENDER — Must mix own drinks and make sandwiches; North Side; first class city reference. Address O 291, Tribune."

"Bogus" arises to protest against the amount of free advertising given the "Yale system of coaching." "Why not a little for the Wisconsin system?" he asks. "On their records to date, three of the strongest teams in the west are Wisconsin, coached by Juneau, Wisconsin '04; Nebraska, coached by Stiehm, Wisconsin '10, and Illinois, coached by Zuppke, Wisconsin '06. The Yale system is in vogue at Northwestern, Indiana, and Minnesota. Stagg is a Yale man, to be sure, but don't you think his is the Stagg system rather than the Yale?"

Indications are that the boxing game will be knocked out in California as a result of Tuesday's election. The large cities are for it, but their vote total isn't big enough to offset that of the country districts, which are ag'in it. This is another bit of evidence that you can't fool the farmer.

From the way they're talking about Hugh Jennings one might think he was the only man who'd ever violated the rule of secrecy in regard to waiver requests. As a matter of fact, somebody spills the news every time waivers are asked on a ball player, unless the ball player is so unimportant as to make the news uninteresting.

To have your team beaten four straight by the Boston Braves might drive you crazy, but not crazy enough to trade Eddie Collins for Lute Boone.

Mr. Weeghman certainly doesn't know much about baseball if he thinks any matter connected with it could be settled in half an hour. It would take any two real magnates a week to agree that Cobb's first name was Tyrus.

An article on "Sentiment in Baseball," written by Eddie Plank, Jack Coombs, or Chief Bender, should make interesting reading.

Ad Wolgast is the wise prophet. If White whips Welsh he can say "I told you so" and prove it by showing you Wednesday's H——d. If Welsh whips White he can say "I told you so" and refer you to Wednesday's Trib.

NOTRE DAME MEN LEAVE FOR GAME

Jones, Eichenlaub, Lathrop, Holmes, Elward, Mills, Boujan, Keefe, Stephen, Fitzgerald, H. O'Donnell, Larkin, Bergman, Cofall, Kelleher, Pliska, Duggan, Berger, and Bachman.

The team will arrive at West Point tomorrow noon and the afternoon will be used in practice on the soldiers' gridiron. The Army is one of the undefeated eastern colleges this year. The Gold and Blue is conceded a chance to defeat the soldiers. Notre Dame downed the West Pointers, 35 to 13, last year.

HARVARD ENDS PRACTICE FOR PRINCETON BATTLE.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 5.—Harvard's football practice today, which was light, completed the training for the game with Princeton on Saturday.

It was thought tonight that Wallace, who was injured in the Michigan contest, would not be able to start on Saturday. Bigelow is the most promising substitute for center. He has filled the place well during the week.

YALE PRACTICES IN BOWL.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 5.—Yale's football team had its first drill in the new bowl today. The practice was devoted mostly to catching punts, to ascertain the effect of air currents within the immense amphitheater, and the players experienced practically no trouble. The walls of the oval, fifty feet high, effectively sheltered the playing field from the stiff breeze that was blowing outside. A scrimmage was held on old Yale field, where the varsity scored two touchdowns against the scrubs.

PENN OFF FOR ANN ARBOR.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 5.—The University of Pennsylvania football squad left today for Ann Arbor, where the varsity team will meet Michigan Saturday in its annual game. The entire squad with the exception of Carter, who has been out of the game for some time, is in good condition. Capt. Journeay probably will play at center in Carter's place. The student body gave the squad a rousing sendoff.

VICTORY FOR CHICAGO LATIN.

After submitting to a 27 to 7 defeat last week, Chicago Latin came back yesterday with renewed courage and triumphed over the Francis Parker football team, 14 to 3, at Lincoln park. Latin came from behind by scoring two touchdowns, one each by Mulford and Miller, in the third quarter.

Capt. Charles Brickley Becomes 'Southfooter'

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—Charles Brickley, hero and captain of the Harvard eleven, may be forced to do his punting and drop kicking from the port side if he is able to meet Yale on Nov. 14. His recent operation for appendicitis has made it impossible for him to use his normal kicking foot, for Brickley is not entirely recovered. In the meantime the Crimson leader has been practicing with his left foot and has shown much skill. During the week he made fifteen trials, missing only one from the fifteen yard line. There is a chance that history may repeat itself this season. In 1908 Vic Kennard won against Yale with his left foot. Among other wonderful southfooters was Hutchinson, the former Pennsylvania quarter, who was regarded by Coach Yost of Michigan as one of the most effective kickers in football. Hutchinson was capable of lifting the ball with either foot and could do so while on a sprint. But football has had few ambilateral kickers, so a player capable of performing equally with either foot is regarded as a marvel.

Gossip of the Gridiron.

DARTMOUTH is the only big team which is taking advantage of the forward pass rule. Instead of punting on a fourth down, the Hanover aggregation is instructed to throw the ball out of bounds at least thirty yards down the field. In some cases such action may be termed as intentional grounding of the ball, but it is good play, especially for a team which has a weak kicker.

Kennard, Wendell, and Knox are among some of the old time Harvard players who have helped Coach Haughton prepare the Crimson eleven for its battle with Princeton tomorrow.

Willie Heston, one of the best backs who ever graced a western gridiron, is practicing law in Detroit. Aside from his law practice, Heston officiates in minor football games in the northern peninsula.

When Notre Dame meets the Army at West Point tomorrow the western eleven will be prepared to play either old or new style football. Coach Harper will follow Yost's method of playing old style football if the soldiers play an open defense, and he will instruct his players to play an open game if the Army displays a close defense.

Walter Kennedy, captain of the 1899 championship Chicago eleven, is engaged in the newspaper business in Albion, Mich. Aside from looking after his business, Kennedy coaches the local high school team and acts as an official in minor games.

YOST TO TACKLE TARTAR IN PENN, SAYS ECKERSALL

Quakers Slightly Favored Because of Better Condition of Invaders.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Although Michigan held Harvard to a 7 to 0 score in one of the most important intersectional battles played in the last decade, the Wolverines will be called upon to meet a worthy foe in Pennsylvania at Ann Arbor tomorrow in a game which should attract as much interest in this section as the Notre Dame-Army struggle at West Point and the annual battle between Harvard and Princeton on the former's gridiron.

Despite their unexpected showing against the Crimson, Coach Yost's men will have to play a lot of football to beat the Quakers. The Penn team has been pointed for Michigan since the opening of the season, and its improvement with the playing of every game has been apparent. The eleven has been taught a defense which is expected to stop the Wolverine attacks.

Much Credit in Victories.

Taking into consideration the games which Michigan has played there may be a letdown on the part of the Wolverines. The Ann Arbor aggregation has been sent through one of the hardest schedules in the history of western football. If it wins from Pennsylvania tomorrow and then defeats Cornell on the same gridiron the following week Michigan must be given a lot of credit.

Because of their showing against Harvard, the Wolverines must be accorded an equal chance with the Quakers, although they will not be in the best of shape physically to give battle to a team of Pennsylvania's caliber. On their home gridiron the Wolverines play better than even Yost expects, but it will take their best efforts to hold the invading eleven to an even score.

Play Inconsistent Ball.

Michigan has played inconsistent football this season, but Yost will send his best available eleven against the Quakers. If Splawn, considered to be one of the best kickers developed in Ann Arbor in years, is in form, his ability may be one of the deciding factors. He can boot the oval for an average of fifty yards, and if his ends cover his attempts Michigan should gain considerable ground on the exchange of punts. Aside from being a first class punter, Splawn is also a field goal kicker of more than average ability.

Generally speaking, the teams appear to be about evenly matched, with the odds, if anything, favoring Pennsylvania.

Twist in the Rules.

Can an offside penalty on a kickoff be declined? This is another of the many questions which come up in a football game and which have been referred to the writer. Although the rules state that all penalties except those dealing with forward passes and disqualifications may be declined, the officials should have an understanding with the coaches or captains before the contests as to the strict interpretation of this rule.

In the writer's opinion the offside penalty on a kickoff can be declined, and this has been the general ruling. Some officials claim the ball was not put in play by scrimmage and no penalties can be levied unless the fouls were committed in scrimmage play. The rules are not clear on the subject.

FRESHMEN SHOW MAROONS HOW ILLINOIS PLAYS WORK.

Varsity players at the University of Chicago did not vary from the no scrimmage rule of this week. The nearest approach to action in a real practice game was that of the regulars and the freshmen, the first year men lining up against the varsity in what Coach Stagg called a "defensive drill." The greenies tried to rush the ball past the varsity by using Illinois plays, but they expended more attention on giving demonstrations of the Zuppke formations, and the coaches did not permit the ball to be advanced.

Stagg had all his punters at work. The Midway coaches are fearful of the losses the Maroons will be likely to sustain if any of their kicking talent should be greatly outpointed in a duel with Bart Macomber in the Urbana game.

McConnell, the 199 pound green guard, is recovered from an injury to his leg sustained in an early game this year, according to the coach. Flood is in good shape, and Dolly Gray was out on the field in uniform, although taking no part in the work. If John Albert should get back into normal condition the Maroons would have their strongest potential lineup ready to take the field.

PURPLE END HARD PRACTICE.

Northwestern university football players finished their work yesterday for the game tomorrow with Iowa at Northwestern field. This will be the only conference game played on that date here. Coach Fred Murphy is getting heavy practice out of his men. The squad was put through long practice at receiving punts and making forward passes. Four large arc lights were turned on at night and a scrimmage was held.

Crane Five to Play Clyde.

Crane junior college athletes have organized a basketball team and will play their first contest tonight at the Clyde High school.

CARRANZA SAYS 20 OF 31 STATES WILL BACK HIM

VILLA CONTROLS THE NORTH.

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 5.—Carranza officials claim twenty states out of the thirty-one states and territories in Mexico in the present conflict with the Villa factions which today resulted in actual conflict below Aguas Calientes. The result of the battle was not learned, but it is known strong forces have met almost at the city where a week ago an attempt was made to adjust peacefully the factional disagreement.

The states dominated by Villa form a solid block in the northwest, thus giving the northern chieftain a more advantageous position, especially in view of the border territory he controls and the ease with which war munitions can be shipped from the United States.

Both Sides Claim Zapata.

The only exception to this is the state of Morelos, controlled largely by Zapata, whom the Villa faction claims, but whose troops the Carranza element asserts is controlled by neither side.

Rafael Musquiz, the Carranza consul general to the United States, received today an explanation of the action the "first chief" in rejecting the nomination by the Aguas Calientes conference of Eulalio Gutierrez to serve as a provisional president for twenty days.

The message said:

"The first chief received a message from the convention, informing him that Gen. Eulalio Gutierrez had been made provisional president, without the convention telling him, Carranza, whether or not the conditions which he had imposed upon his resignation had been fulfilled.

Carranza Refuses to Quit.

"These conditions were: Fixing the form of government which shall carry out revolutionary ideals, making an effective retirement of Gens. Villa and Zapata from command of their forces.

"Since these conditions have not been fulfilled and as the convention of generals and governors called by the first chief had no authority to settle the difficulties with Gen. Villa, fix the date of elections and define the social reforms which were to be carried out in the pre-constitutional period, the first chief cannot give up the power to any person designated by the convention without conditions heretofore imposed having been fulfilled."

AVIATOR GLENN MARTIN AND ARMY CAPTAIN HURT.

Fall Nearly 100 Feet in Aeroplane in Southern California, but Both Will Recover.

San Diego, Cal., Nov. 5.—In a fall of nearly 100 feet today Capt. L. E. Goodier Jr., aviation corps, U. S. A., and Glenn Martin, the well known aviator, were so badly injured that they were rushed to a hospital for treatment.

The accident occurred near the army aviation camp on North island, across the bay. The machine was one Martin was demonstrating for the government officers.

It was stated at the hospital that although their injuries are serious both men will recover. The cause of the accident has not been ascertained.

RAILROADS GAIN REVENUE BY EFFECTING ECONOMIES.

Reports for September Show Roads Have Benefited by Following Advice of Commerce Body.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—Indications that the railroads are carrying out the suggestions of the interstate commerce commission for economy in management are to be found in the reports of their rail operating revenues and expenses for the month of September.

The reports show that for the whole United States the carriers' net operating revenues for September, 1914, are nearly $2,000,000 greater than their net revenues for September, 1913, although last year was one of the two best in the history of railroading.

In the eastern district, where the carriers recently were refused an increase in rates, the net revenues were nearly $2,500,000 greater than in September, 1913, although the gross receipts were $6,000,000 less.

JUDGE WADE KNOWS A HORSE

So Drives Peddler's Animal About Loop to Learn Whether It Is Sound—Only Half "Springy."

Judge Wade decided yesterday that a horse in controversy had only one hind leg that was "springy" and that it could work after he had driven it to a peddler's wagon around the loop. The suit was that of Pasquale Nardi against Gaetano Giordano. Giordano insisted the horse he bought of Nardi is "springy in both hind legs and can't do any work at all," and refused to pay a balance on the purchase price.

"Bring down the horse," ordered the judge. "I know a thing or two about horses myself."

ASSAILS RISK RATES IN STATE

WOULD FILE PROTEST.

Col. Edwin Romberg of Gov. Dunne's staff declared at the weekly luncheon of the Chicago real estate board yesterday that the people of Chicago and Illinois are being grossly discriminated against by the fire insurance companies in the matter of rates. He suggested that the board appoint a committee to look into the matter and if the members found the situation to be what he asserted it to be that they file a protest with Gov. Dunne and with Rufus M. Potts, insurance commissioner. Col. Romberg added that he had every reason to believe both of the officials would give the protest a full and fair consideration.

He asserted that insurance is done in Chicago the same as in a small town or village, and praised what he termed the brokerage system in New York, which, he said, had operated to the decided advantage of the insured.

Millions Could Be Saved.

If rates were properly regulated, the speaker declared, it would result in the saving of $2,400,000 annually to the people of Illinois and $1,450,000 to the people of Chicago.

"The same companies which insure you here in Chicago," he said, "insure the people of New York, but in New York they are treated far fairer in the way of an insurance contract.

"Shortly after the Baltimore fire in 1902 rates in Chicago were increased 10 per cent on buildings and 25 per cent on their contents, with the assurance the rates would be reduced within a year.

"They have not been changed yet, twelve years later. In New York the rates never were raised on account of this fire.

Brokerage Plan a Safeguard.

"Had you the New York brokerage system I venture to say that such a state of affairs could never have existed here. The rates probably never would have been increased in the first place, and if they had been, the companies would have been compelled long ago to have withdrawn the excess."

Col. Romberg quoted reports showing the higher rates paid in Chicago as compared not only with New York but with St. Louis, Detroit, Cleveland, Milwaukee, and Cincinnati. Explaining this he said companies doing business in Illinois have found it to their advantage to form various interlocking organizations through which they work jointly in the adoption and enforcement of certain systems of rate making schemes and agency discipline.

Stock Companies Interlock.

"The persistent refusal of stock fire insurance companies to voluntarily grant concessions to the insuring public," he said, "seems to me to be absolutely indefensible, and the concerted resistance of these companies to the enforcement of laws enacted in Missouri, Kentucky, and Kansas, indicates the extent of the mutual understanding existing between all companies and shows also the firmness with which they will resist public demands for relief, or any attempt by the state to control rate making.

"The recent decision of the United States Supreme court conclusively establishes the right and power of the state to interfere in behalf of its citizens and regulate the fire insurance business and entirely disposes of this 'vested right' assumption."

WOODMEN FUNDS TAXABLE.

Bloomington, Ill., Judge Settles Fight Over Order Is Philanthropic.

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—Modern Woodmen grand lodge funds in possession of David Myers, grand treasurer, at Pontiac, are liable for taxes, according to a decision handed down today by Judge Myers.

HERE'S TAXPAYERS' FRIEND

MORTGAGES CAUSE OF IT.

Bell Asserts Holder of Property Lien Escapes All Levies.

Assistant State's Attorney Hayden Bell, in charge of the state's attorney's investigation of tax dodging, made a statement yesterday in which he charged that practically all of the home owners of Chicago who have mortgages on their property are paying from two to three times too much taxes.

"In this city," said Mr. Bell, "the average home owner carries on his home a mortgage amounting to 50 or 60 per cent of its value, so that he, in fact, owns less than half of the beneficial interest in his home.

"And yet he pays taxes upon the full value of his home, thus paying upon his own beneficial interest and also the beneficial interest owned by the mortgagee, while the mortgagee, in most all cases, pays no taxes on his interest in the property at all.

Cannot Be Hidden.

"This improved real estate is not susceptible of being hidden and upon this property taxes cannot be dodged. All the abuses of the tax system practically center on that kind of property which can be secreted in safety deposit boxes.

"The potential fact is that all tax irregularities and abuses which result in the loss of public revenue increase the burden upon improved real estate, represented generally by the home owner.

Why Taxes Are High.

"If the constitutional method of taxation were carried outfaithfully and all persons paid according to the value of what they own, the tax rate would be cut from 30 to 40 per cent below its present level. It has become the rule that bonds, mortgages, and securities generally are not returned for taxation and escape taxes entirely."

Mr. Bell pointed to a number of boxes in his office and said they contained the names of approximately 18,000 property owners whose assessments had been canceled in some mysterious manner or reduced to a ridiculously small figure. He said that the amounts ranged from $800 to $120,000. These will be made the subject of John Doe proceedings before Judge Owens today.

THOUSAND CASES CLOG U. S. COURT

DEADLOCK OVER JUDGE.

District Attorney Charles F. Clyne yesterday resumed his survey of the pending cases in the United States District court awaiting disposition. He discovered that the court is about 1,000 cases behind.

Mr. Clyne and Judges Carpenter and Landis regard this condition as an illustration of the imperative necessity of appointing an additional federal judge in Chicago to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Peter S. Grosscup from the Circuit Court of Appeals and the automatic elevation of Judge Kohlsaat to the Circuit bench.

Judge Carpenter discussed the situation during the day with several other judges. District Attorney Clyne has made the first move to clear the crowded docket of old cases.

Five Hundred on Call.

About 500 of these have been placed on call for the present term of court, but it will require the services of four or five out of town judges to aid Judge Landis and Judge Carpenter in the disposition of them during the next six months.

Meanwhile, delays are constantly occurring by reason of emergency cases coming in daily for immediate disposition. Juries drawing $3 a day per man frequently sit idle several hours each day on account of emergency matters coming up and interrupting trials.

Reports in the federal building indicate that there is a deadlock among those in control of federal patronage over the question of appointing a new federal judge. Senator Lewis and Gov. Dunne are in favor of William A. Doyle. Senator Lewis, it is said, is irrevocably for Doyle for the position.

Doyle's Friends Busy.

Associate Justice McReynolds, when he was attorney general, refused to consent to Doyle's appointment. Whether Attorney General Gregory is disposed to yield is a question Doyle's friends now are trying to have answered.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE.

TEXANS DOOM ONE-CROP PLAN?

Prospect of High Beef Expected to Show Folly of Raising Cotton Only.

YOUNG MEN AROUSED.

The foot and mouth disease will combine with the war to bring the Texas farmer to his senses. You don't see? Nevertheless, Director Bonny Youngblood of the Texas agricultural experimental station does. This is the way he told it to a TRIBUNE reporter yesterday:

"No, we haven't had any foot and mouth disease down our way yet, and I guess we won't have any if the quarantine goes through. What we have got, though, is a lot of farmers who know now that what we have been telling them about 'one crop' farmers is true. The war has put an end to their desire to raise nothing but cotton. That's the first point."

Willing to Try New Crop.

"They're willing enough now to raise something beside cotton, but they don't know just what. We're trying to get them to grow a new kind of hay, Soudan grass, that was brought here five years ago from Egypt. It will grow almost anywhere and is a splendid feed for cattle.

"A lot of the farmers already have seen that the war will boost the price of beef, and the disease is going to send it still higher, we are told. I don't see how the farmers can help but realize now that Soudan grass and cattle are the logical substitutes for a good part of the land that formerly went only for cotton.

Young Farmers Won Over.

Mr. Youngblood estimates that from 20 to 50 per cent of the cotton land will be planted with some other crop this year. He said the young farmers already had been won over to the new idea, while the older men are "fast coming to see the light."

"Another thing they have come to learn from bitter experience this year," he explained, "has been to raise their own food as well as the food for stock. For years they have been dependent on northern farmers for their table supplies; now, when money to buy food is scarce, they see how important it is to raise it.

"Mind, we don't believe for a minute that anything but cotton will ever be the big money crop of the south. What we want them to do is to 'cut down the overhead.'"

RABBI WILL NOT GET ESTATE.

Suicide Note Left by Mother and Daughter Not Legal as a Will.

Rabbi L. Goldstein of 6140 South Morgan street will not receive any of Mrs. Bertha Jasney's property, he has been informed by the public administrator. In a letter left by Mrs. Jasney and her daughter, Sophie, who were found dead from gas in their home at 1634 Taylor street, the former requested that all of her belongings in the house be turned over to the rabbi. The public administrator can recognise only last wills bearing the signatures of at least two witnesses.

It developed at the inquest that Rabbi Goldstein had tried to aid Mrs. Jasney and her daughter in getting husbands. These efforts were unsuccessful, but Rabbi Goldstein said he was sure that this had nothing to do with their deaths.

"It must have been something else," he said. "That incident occurred over a year ago and they had probably forgotten all about that. It was wrongly reported that the incident occurred two months ago."

CONVINCED BODY IS MILLER'S

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—J. C. Robinson, head of the bureau of public safety in Philadelphia, has notified Chief of Police Owen O'Hare of this city that the body of Selden Miller, Philadelphia musician, who disappeared a year ago and whose body was found floating in the Pike river, near Kenosha, has been buried in the Miller family plot at East Laurel cemetery, Philadelphia. He declares that there is no doubt as to the identity of the body shipped to Philadelphia and that the members of the Miller family are satisfied.

SAMPLE CASE THIEF GUILTY.

Barney Riffman Receives Sentence of from One to Ten Years in the Penitentiary.

Barney Riffman, known to the police as "the sample case thief," pleaded guilty to larceny yesterday and was sentenced by Judge Brentano to serve from one to ten years in the penitentiary.

No mention was made in court of the charges recently made by Riffman against the police department. The prisoner asserted he had been permitted to work unmolested.

Riffman is believed to have stolen jewelry valued at nearly $500,000 from drummers after studying their habits as a sample carrier. He was sentenced for the theft of jewelry valued at $40,000.

QUARANTINE ON CATTLE ORDERED IN MORE STATES

NO RISE IN BEEF PRICES.

While the packers, commission men, and state and government officials were considering the interpretation of various quarantine orders issued by the state live stock commission yesterday, the epidemic of foot and mouth disease among cattle took on a more serious aspect.

Cases of infection were discovered in Wisconsin and Ohio and these states were immediately quarantined against interstate shipment of live stock by the department of agriculture. The stockyards at Milwaukee and Evansville, Wis., were shut down for disinfection.

Infected cattle also were found in Iowa, and Dr. S. E. Bennett, in charge of the bureau of animal industry at Chicago, asserted that a quarantine in that state probably would be enforced within twenty-four hours. This will make nine states under quarantine.

Reassurance at the Yards.

Chicago packing firms issued reassuring statements during the day, asserting that meat prices would not be raised, that comparatively few employés would be idle, and that there is plenty of meat on hand to tide over the period of disinfection.

A small army of men were set to work washing and disinfecting the yards and the herd of 600 infected cattle were ordered to be shot and buried in quicklime. The disease was found to have spread among the prize cattle which were exhibited at the National Dairy show, bringing the total number afflicted up to thirty. These cattle, which probably will be killed, are valued at about $90,000.

Pursuant to the recommendations of the live stock commissioners, the packers and the commission men, Gov. Dunne authorized the closing of the yards for ten days beginning Nov. 6. "As there were some arguments as to just when the quarantine was supposed to begin, another order was issued by the live stock commissioners closing the Union stockyards "from Nov. 7 to Nov. 15, inclusive."

Applies Only to Union Yards?

The packers and commission men outside of the Union yards interpreted this to apply only to the Union yards. The packers argued that this did not prevent them from bringing in cattle from uninfected states, unloading them at the killing floors, and slaughtering them. Others maintained that it did not prohibit the receipt of cattle by yards outside of the regular Union yards.

Dr. O. E. Dyson, state veterinarian, upheld the packers in their contentions. C. W. Baker, secretary of the Chicago Live Stock exchange, complained against the order, declaring it to be a plain discrimination against the commission men in favor of the packers. The result was that the live stock commissioners issued another order shutting down every public slaughter house and stockyards in the state. This takes in the large yards at East St. Louis.

Final Order Given.

The last order read as follows:

"Office of the state board of live stock commissioners of the state of Illinois. Nov. 5, 1914.

"To prevent the spread of foot and mouth disease in cattle, sheep, and other ruminants, and swine:

"Notice is hereby given that the receipt of cattle, sheep or other ruminants, and swine at public stock yards and all slaughtering establishments within the state of Illinois having railroad transportation facilities, or to which shipments of cattle, sheep, or hogs from infected areas may be traced, shall be prohibited on and after Nov. 7, 1914, until such public stock yards and all yards, pens, chutes, alleys, killing floors, etc., utilized in connection with such slaughtering establishments have been thoroughly cleaned and disinfected under official supervision and released by order of the state board of live stock commissioners.

"By order of the state board of live stock commissioners,

"B. J. SHANLEY,
"L. F. BROWN,
"RUDOLPH M. PATTERSON."

Find Joker in Order.

Still another joker was found in this order in that it specifies that the quarantine shall be maintained only until disinfection has taken place. The question arose as to whether this order supersedes the previous one or whether both are still in effect. Dr. Dyson said the first order stands as against the stockyards, but that in accordance with the second order the packers may reopen their killing floors and slaughter animals brought directly to their doors as soon as the buildings have been disinfected. The commission men hold that the yards should be opened as soon as the slaughter houses.

At all events, cattle will be received up until the close of business today and the yards of the Union Stockyards and Transit company will be closed until the morning of Nov. 16. It is possible that the packing houses will begin slaughtering again early next week.

Kansas City Offers Aid.

Commission men and stock dealers here have been invited to make use of the Kansas City stock yards during the quarantine. The invitation was extended by the board of directors of the Kansas City Stockyards company.

The offer means that commission men have an opportunity to dispose of the live stock of their customers without waiting until the quarantine is lifted, it is said.

The action is one of reciprocity, dating back to 1903, when the Kansas City yards were incapacitated because of a flood and the local yards offered their facilities.

The herd of 613 infected feeders belonging to Darlington & Co. were appraised at $40,000 and were ordered shot. Three of them were killed and buried in the huge ditch near Forty-fifth stret Wednesday night, and thirty more were shot and buried in quicklime last night.

Declaring that they were unable to obtain details of the exact situation from the government or state officials, exhibitors at the National Dairy show held a meeting at the Saddle and Sirloin club last night, at which they engaged Dr. S. H. Ward, state veterinarian of Minnesota, to represent them and look after their interests.

Eleven animals were found diseased on Wednesday and nineteen more were sent to the foot and mouth hospital at the south end of the yards yesterday. None of these cattle have been killed, but all will be shot as soon as appraised.

The most valuable animal lost is an Ayrshire bull, Red Hills Diamond Star, from the Strathglass farm at Port Chester, N. Y., valued at $10,000. Another animal from the Strathglass farm is under special quarantine.

No Jump in Prices.

The packing firms declared that there was no cause for uneasiness on the part of the public in regard to a scarcity of meat or a jump in prices.

F. E. White issued the following statement in behalf of Armour & Co.:

"There is no occasion at the moment for excitement over the measures adopted by the government and state authorities in the application of the quarantine regulations. The move is intended to quiet rather than alarm the people. While the restrictions are drastic, we all believe that they will prove effective.

"There will be no material slackening of business. Killing floors will be idle for the week, but other departments will work as usual, as we have ample supply of products for all requirements."

No Effect on Workers.

The following statement was issued by Louis H. Heymann, secretary of Morris & Co. and head of the fresh meat sales:

"I do not think the closing of the stockyards will have any appreciable effect upon prices of fresh meats or upon labor.

"Morris & Co. now have a sufficient supply of live stock to keep our killing gangs busy until Sunday at least. There will not be any shortage in the beef supply, as I believe there is enough to go around. Neither should there be any appreciable increase in fresh meat prices to consumers.

"The plants of this company at St. Joseph, Mo.; Kansas City, Kas.; East St. Louis, Ill., and Oklahoma City will continue to kill, and there is nothing to keep a supply of beef from coming to Chicago.

"There is no alarming outlook in the labor situation at the yards as far as the workmen are concerned. We shall continue to slaughter until at least Sunday, after which time most of our men will be transferred to other parts of the plants. We shall do all that we can to keep our gangs busy until this situation is cleared.

"Some of our men in all probability will be shipped to our other plants to supplement the forces which will be needed to care for the increased demand made upon them for supplies of fresh meats."

U. S. Funds Nearly Gone.

The department of agriculture has nearly reached the limit of its resources for battling the foot and mouth disease. Secretary of Agriculture Houston explained the seriousness of the epidemic to President Wilson during the day and told him of the necessity for increasing the estimates of expenditures for the department now being drawn up and which will be sent to congress next month.

Funds set aside for other purposes already have been exhausted, he said. He declared that the department believed it was in control of the situation and that the food supply would not be seriously affected.

KENOSHA JOBLESS GET WORK

City to Use Forty Unemployed Heads of Families on Street Work.

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—Kenosha will attempt to solve the problem of caring for its unemployed today when the first crew of forty unemployed men will be put to work on the streets of the city. In order to provide employment the city will anticipate paving work of next year, and the grading of streets to be paved will be done immediately. It is expected after the plan gets in operation the city will provide jobs for at least 200 men. All so employed are men who have families to support and who applied to the city for aid.

NO, WOMEN DO NOT UNDERSTAND

Matters of Big Business Not for Their Minds, but—

SEE WHAT THIS ONE DID

Mrs. Arthur Miller didn't like the looks of the two men who called at her residence, 407 West Sixty-fifth street, yesterday to see her husband's automobile, which he had advertised for sale.

The two men, who said they were Frank B. Anderson, a contractor with an office in the Fort Dearborn building, and Benjamain F. Cunningham, "a La Salle street broker," seemed overanxious to discuss their own prosperity.

"Women Don't Understand."

When Miller, who at first asked $1,050 for the car, had agreed to accept $875 the prospective purchasers produced a certified check for that amount. Mrs. Miller suggested it was odd the name on the check should be Davidson, instead of Anderson. The "contractor" gently explained there are many things little women do not understand about big business.

"Come back at 7 o'clock then," said Mrs. Miller, taking the transaction out of her husband's hands. "Another man is coming to look at the car at 6 and we may get a better price."

But She Makes Discovery.

As soon as the men had gone Mrs. Miller telephoned to the Union bank, on which the check was drawn. Then she telephoned to the Englewood police. Mr. Davidson had no account in the bank; neither did Mr. Anderson.

When the "broker" and "contractor" returned with their check they were met by a detective and arrested. At the police station the men said they lived at 160 East Superior street, but didn't mention downtown office addresses. A $10 bill was found in Anderson's hat. It was a real one.

SHE THREATENS TO SHOOT.

So Contractor Calls Police During Quarrel Over Hole in Office Wall.

Police yesterday were called to the office of the Economy Hat Bleachery company in the Consumers Annex building at 214 South State street by a man who called on the Main 13 wire and said he was going to be shot by a woman. Detective James Carlin found Mrs. Lulu Manning, manager of the firm, arguing with John Jieger, a general contractor in charge of building operations adjoining that building. Jieger had a permit to drill a hole through the wall of Mrs. Manning's office. The detective instructed Mrs. Manning she would have to let Jieger proceed with his work or obtain an injunction.

PRIEST HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

Father John Mullen Insane, However, When He Killed Agent, Jury Says.

SANITY INQUIRY URGED

Father John Mullen, one-time priest of the Holy Rosary church at 610 North Western avenue, was held to the grand jury yesterday on a charge of murder at the close of the inquest into the death of Thomas W. Patterson, station agent for the Illinois Central at Hillside, Ill., and postmaster of the village.

The coroner's jury, however, wrote into the verdict its belief that Father Mullen was not in his right mind on Oct. 20 when he ran amuck in Hillside and stabbed Patterson. It was recommended that a commission be appointed to fix his mental status.

Companion Tells of Trouble.

Felix Simonini, who owns a fruit store at West Van Buren street and South Kostner avenue, testified:

"Father Mullen and I started to gather mushrooms that day. We left my store in an automobile and went direct to Elmhurst, where each of us had a small glass of beer. At Bellwood later Father Mullen had a soda water and I drank another beer. After going through Mount Carmel cemetery Father Mullen complained he felt ill. I was hungry and we both stopped in Cotuno's saloon at Hillside. I had a glass of beer while waiting for lunch and Father Mullen drank some stomach bitters. When my coffee came he picked up the cup and threw it on the floor."

Testimony Corroborated.

Simonini's further testimony corroborated that of young Joseph Russo, who knocked Father Mullen down when the priest attacked his father. After the fracas, Simonini said, Father Mullen returned to the saloon and threw matches in Cotuno's face. Cotuno ejected the priest, who did not wear vestments. Immediately afterward Father Mullen ran across the street, bumped into Patterson, and stabbed him.

Father Mullen, who sat beside his lawyer, Roy Hackett, said he had no testimony to offer.

NEW ITALIAN CABINET IN.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ROME, Nov. 5.—The new cabinet formed by Premier Salandra was sworn in by the king today. Baron Sidney Sonnino, ex-premier, becomes minister of foreign affairs; Signor Orlando, minister of grace and justice; Signor Carcano, finance minister, and Signor Crippo, minister of education.

The other members of the previous cabinet were all retained except two, Signor Rava and Dari, who purposely relinquished power in order to enable the entry of three followers of former Premier Giolitti to strengthen the new cabinet.

Signor Salandra will retain the portfolio of minister of the interior as well as the premiership.

School Official on Trial.

Witnesses testified before the trial committee of the board of education yesterday that William Haskell, supervisor of painting, passed painting work done by Gottardo Brothers on which only two coats of paint were applied instead of three.

FIRM FINANCES SAVED BIG PANIC, SAYS REYNOLDS

U. S. NOW A MONEY POWER.

Only the fact that the United States was in a better state to meet financial reverses than seven years ago saved the country from the disastrous results of a panic worse than that of 1907, according to George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental and Commercial National bank and director of the federal reserve bank of Chicago, who gave an address at the University of Chicago last night.

Mr. Reynolds spoke to an audience of students and faculty members on "The Effect of the European War on American Credits," in the Harper assembly room.

"The paralysis of business that followed the opening of the European war showed the dependence of America upon the rest of the world," said Mr. Reynolds. "We have just passed through a period of business depression far worse than the one that occurred in 1907, and I may say we have safely passed through it.

"When I tell you that 95 per cent of the business of this country is done on credit you will see that our confidence in each other is the most important factor that goes to make up prosperous business."

Explains High Interest Rate.

Mr. Reynolds said the high rate of interest current at present is due to the fact that stock exchange loans carried at the time the exchanges were closed have not been paid. They cannot be paid, and the securities held by the banks cannot be sold, he continued. Banks in Chicago have $20,000,000 tied up in such exchange loans at present, Mr. Reynolds estimated. This money cannot be touched until the exchanges open.

The "buy a bale of cotton" movement will not work, according to Mr. Reynolds. He said the action called for by the backers of the move was not sound economics. He asserted the only way out of the difficulty in which the southern cotton raisers find themselves is for the "little fellows" to sell what they can for the price they can get and apply the money on their debts. If the system were carried through the banks would be able to extend credit to their southern debtors.

U. S. Banking World Power.

"The new federal reserve system which will be carried into operation on Monday is not perfect," said Mr. Reynolds, "but it has the basis for the best system in the world.

"Forty per cent of the banking power of the world is concentrated in America. We have not the place this power entitles us to in the world's banking affairs. We have not known what a foreign investment looks like. Under the new system we will be able to occupy our place.

"Four hundred and eighty million dollars will be released in Chicago on Monday. The money was formerly required by the reserve. We will be able to do this because the new law will allow a mobilization of reserves in twelve piles, instead of in 25,000, as formerly was the case."

FIRE BOATS START OUT TO RESCUE MAN IN MOON.

Lunar Body, Rising Blood Red Out of Lake, Leads Citizen to Believe Ship Is Afire and Notifies Police.

Desk Sergt. George Gierman of the Sheffield avenue station last night was musing how it was that steel ships could float, when the telephone rang.

"Send help quick," came the voice. "There is a big steamer about a mile off Diversey boulevard and it's on fire. Flame shooting up 100 feet."

The fire tug Graeme Stewart and a police motor boat soon were steaming down the river toward the lake toward the blood red horizon. Those aboard hoped they would be able to save the crew of the ill fated steamer before it went down.

It was Capt. Carland who halted the dash of the rescue boats. It was the red moon, he explained, and no fire at all.

"It's a thing that often fools landsmen," he said, "and sailors, too, sometimes."

JUDGE BALDWIN ENJOINS PICKETING RESTAURANTS.

Holds That Methods of Waitresses and Cooks at Knab's Amounts to Boycott.

Judge Jesse A. Baldwin in the Circuit court issued a writ of injunction yesterday restraining the waitresses' union and the cooks' and waiters' unions from picketing the Knab restaurants. In giving his decision Judge Baldwin said:

"Having reached the conclusion that the law of Illinois as declared by the Supreme court in several cases forbids the practices disclosed in this case, I am left no alternative but to issue the writ."

Judge Baldwin held that the picketing of the restaurants in question seems within the definition of a boycott, and cited Justice Carter of the Supreme court of Illinois, who said:

"By the weight of authority and in accord with sound public policy a sympathetic strike or a boycott must be held unlawful, as not within the immediate field of competition. Persons who have nothing to do with the trade dispute, noncombatants, cannot be compelled by such means to take part in the struggle."

FIRE ESCAPE BURGLAR TAKEN

Negro, Thought to Be Man Who Has Been Robbing Fashionable Hotels, Is Arrested.

CAUGHT WITH GOODS.

Falls Into Hands of Police Just After Taking Valuables from Guests of Windermere.

A negro believed by the police to be the "fire escape" burglar who recently has been terrorizing guests in fashionable south side hotels, was arrested last night and is being held at the Hyde Park station. When taken into custody he was on his way from the Hotel Windemere, 1614 East Fifty-sixth street, with a suitcase containing stolen jewelry and clothing valued at more than $200.

Although they were unwilling to say much about the arrest of the negro, who says his name is George Wilson, the police assert he has confessed to more than one robbery.

Carrying Loot When Arrested.

Wilson was arrested by Policeman George Wise of the Hyde Park station near the Illinois Central tracks at Forty-seventh street. He was carrying a bag, which was later found at the station to contain the property stolen from the Windermere.

When questioned he admitted stealing the valuables from rooms in the hotel. He said he had climbed the fire escape to the second floor, where he ransacked the rooms.

Shortly after his arrest Charles G. Moore, manager of the hotel, reported to the police that rooms of four of his guests had been entered. He was told of the thief's arrest and the guests are said to have recovered their property.

Broker Heaviest Loser.

Among them was James H. Milne, a broker with offices at 175 West Jackson boulevard. Most of the property was obtained from Mr. Milne's room, little being taken from the other three.

A "jimmy" and several skeleton keys were in Wilson's possession. Police said that they believe Wilson is responsible for many of the burglaries of rooms in the large hotels, among them the Drexel Arms hotel, Chicago Beach hotel, and the Hyde Park hotel.

WORK OF FIXING RAILWAY VALUES GOES ON RAPIDLY.

5,300 Miles of Trackage Already Appraised—Gigantic Task Expected to Be Done by 1919.

On March 1, 1913, congress directed the interstate commerce commission to evaluate all railroad property in the United States. The work is now in full swing according to a report just issued by the presidents' conference committee, which has been appointed by the railroads to cooperate with the commission. Fifty-three hundred miles of railway trackage have already been appraised.

C. A. Prouty, formerly a member of the commission and now a director of the government's valuation inquiry, predicts that the work will be completed by July, 1919.

Various estimators have figured that the entire valuation of the 250,000 miles of railroads in the country will cost the government between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000. The railroads have planned an outlay of this amount to furnish the initial survey. The government at the present time has about 800 experts working and has appropriated $1,900,000 for the first year's expenses.

The work of appraising is being pushed on the Rock Island and it will be finished before the others.

BRIGHT YOUNG ATTORNEY GETS "ADVICE" FROM JUDGE.

Gemmill Warns Sydney J. Chanock He's Appearing Altogether Too Often in Criminal Cases.

Attorney Sydney J. Chanock was given some "friendly advice" by Judge Gemmill yesterday when the attorney appeared to defend Ike Kamensky and Abe Rubin, charged with having robbed the home of Edward H. Robinson, 207 West Lake street.

Chanock objected when the court ordered both defendants held in bonds of $7,000 each. He alleged Judge Gemmill was convicting Kamensky only on the evidence against Rubin.

"You are too young and bright a man to be lining up with this sort of criminal work," said the judge. "You have appeared before me in the last few months in altogether too many cases where hardened crooks were concerned."

BRITISH HERO OF KIMBERLEY IN THE BOER WAR A SUICIDE.

Maj. Gen. Kekewich, Who Held City 126 Days Against Foe, Shoots Self —Nervous Breakdown Cause.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Maj. Gen. Robert G. Kekewich, retired, who defended Kimberley for 126 days against the Boer armies, was found dead in his bedroom today from a self-inflicted gunshot wound in the head.

Gen. Kekewich was born in 1854 and entered the army twenty years later. He served in many campaigns and received numerous decorations for distinguished service. For holding Kimberley against the Boers from Oct. 15, 1899, to Feb. 16, 1900, he was promoted to a major generalship.

Engine Kills Section Hand.

Barney Smith, a section hand for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad at Cragin Camp, Ill., was killed yesterday when he was struck by a switch engine in the Western avenue yards of that road.

SCIENCE CURE OF IMMORALITY WILL BE TESTED

"DISEASE AND NOT CRIME."

Steady and scientific advance in handling Chicago's vice problem was promised yesterday at a meeting of the city council committee on health.

A special committee representing the city and the vice commission was appointed to formulate a plan for a morals commission as a part of the city government. The commission it is proposed shall coöperate with the police department in the suppression of the social evil and have power to prosecute in the event the regularly established departments for law enforcement fail to do so.

Seek Immorality Cure.

But in addition to these duties the great responsibility shall be to study all phases of immorality and find ways and means of curing them. It shall investigate causes and devise methods of prevention. It shall prepare plans for caring for fallen women. It shall draft legislation for city and state, keep police and prosecutors alert, and rouse the citizenship to an unceasing battle against the evil.

The committee to outline an ordinance creating a commission with such powers includes Health Commissioner George B. Young, Ald. W. O. Nance, chairman of the health committee; Chief of Police Gleason, Assistant Corporation Counsel George L. Reker, and three members of the vice commission, Dr. W. A. Evans, Prof. Graham Taylor, and Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal courts. They were requested to report next Thursday.

Old Plan Modified.

The proposed ordinance is a modification of the morals commission ordinance recommended in the report of the vice commission in 1911. That ordinance provided specifically that the commission should suppress "bawdy and disorderly houses" in the city and within three miles of the city limits and prosecute violations of any laws and ordinances against such places.

Since the report was presented the morals division, under the second deputy superintendent of police, has been created. Consequently in recent debates the argument has been raised that the ordinance as originally suggested would result in a division of authority and responsibility between the police and the commission. It was this contention that a week ago led the committee to reject the ordinance. At the same session the action was reconsidered and representatives of the vice commission were asked to present their case on behalf of the ordinance.

Views of Vice Opponents.

The modification was a result of the appearance of these representatives. They denied the creation of the second deputy's office had covered the ground of the commission's recommendation. While they praised unqualifiedly the activity of the present police heads, they said there was no guarantee of its continuance when they leave office; and they laid emphatic stress on the contention that the police department could not handle anything but the executive end of the task.

The police department, they argued, is administrative. It cannot look into the medical phase of the problem. It cannot delve into the psychopathic angles. It cannot formulate and carry through legislation. For these purposes, they said, a commission of public spirited men willing to serve without pay should be placed in an advisory capacity in which they might supplement and go beyond the work of the police department.

Aldermen Are Convinced.

The net result of this discussion was the appointment of the special joint committee, but by the time this action was taken the aldermen had indicated their belief in the necessity for a morals commission. They also admitted it could operate without interference with the Funkhouser morals division and without a lessening of responsibility on the police department.

The speakers who brought about this result were Dr. Evans, Prof. Taylor, Judge Olson, and Dr. Abram Winegardner Harris, president of Northwestern university. Dr. Evans was the official spokesman for the vice commission.

Need Still Exists.

"It is the judgment of the commission," Dr. Evans said, "that the needs of the vice situation have not been met by the creation of the second deputy's office.

"We have done away with the segregated districts, but that is as far as we have gone. That is just the beginning. We have gone. That is just the beginning.

"We haven't begun to deal with the assignation house and the lawless hotel. We have done nothing toward meeting the medical problem. We have done nothing to consider scores of other phases of the question on which even the vice commission after a year of study was unable to formulate recommendations."

During some questions by aldermen the commission was spoken of as a "new department."

"There was a time when the health department was a part of the police department," Dr. Evans said. "Then the health department was created to take care of some diseases just as now we contend this department should be created to take care of this disease of society."

Funkhouser Overburdened.

Prof. Taylor argued that full responsibility for the suppression of vice is too great a burden for the second deputy.

"It is no criticism of Maj. Funkhouser," he said, "to say that no one man should be held responsible for such a titanic task."

New Skirts Six Yards Around.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—To impress upon the feminine world that skirts are to be "of a fullness" at the hem, some of the couturiers are showing them five and six yards around the lower edge. In billow after billow they ripple before, beside, and behind the devotees of fashion as they walk. A band of fur invariably edges the hem, and makes five yards look like ten.

Until one sees one of these skirts actually making its way down the street, one does not realize how aggressively voluminous they look.

There is a philosophical support, however, in the knowledge that to impress upon the feminine world at large that full skirts are to be popular this season designers are forced to inaugurate the change from tight to full skirts with impressively voluminous ones. There has never been a revolution without the shedding of some conservative blood. After the first shock of the voluminous skirts has had its psychological effect and has impressed upon femininity that to be tight skirted is to be hopelessly out of date, the designers will undoubtedly feature skirts of a moderate width.

I have seen so many of these unbeautiful skirts lately that it was a pleasure to me to come upon a suit with a moderately wide skirt. There was a tight underskirt, edged with fur, and a long tunic of ample dimensions, also edged with fur. With it was worn a short jacket with long tabs extending across the hips like a sash. A novel feature of the sleeves was the innumerable buttons which outlined the center seam of the sleeve from neck to wrist.

The couturiers themselves are warning their customers against too full skirts, but at the same time they are making skirts fuller and fuller for their models to display. If women would only study fashions philosophically they would be saved many dollars and many moments of unhappiness.

Lillian Russell's Beauty Secrets.

BY LILLIAN RUSSELL.

Don't Appear Stupid.

[Copyright: 1914: By Lillian Russell.]

THE woman who is not interested in things in general or something in particular is an uninteresting companion. No matter how beautiful she may be, her charm will be minimized or of short duration.

The victim of ennui, or indifference, victimizes everybody about her. Her friends may look upon her and admire her beauty, but she is decidedly uninteresting, and even a little bit of her society is generally an overdose.

To be blasé is not to be interesting. If you are weary of everything in life, you need the attention of a physician; there is something wrong with you, mentally and physically.

Something new and interesting in this world is cropping out every minute. The most interesting people are those who see things and get all possible pleasure out of them.

An exhibition of indifference to things about you is not an evidence of intelligence. Intelligent people are the ones whose eyes are open. That is the way they become intelligent. Such people are the most interesting. Sometimes they are so interesting that even if they happen to lack beauty that fact is forgotten in admiration for their intellect.

Some one has said that everybody should ride a hobby. If you have a hobby, you are at least interested in one thing or subject. But enthusiasts are often bores. Their interest is likely to be so centered on their own point of view that they are wearing on the nerves.

There is a happy medium in everything. It is impolite and unkind to bore people with things in which you are interested and about which they do not care, but you are just as impolite and unkind if you show indifference to the things in which they are interested.

If you get plenty of fresh air, exercise, and rest, you will take an interest in people and things.

Remember: You are doubly blessed if you are interesting as well as beautiful; and to be interesting you must show an interest in the people and things about you.

Lillian Russell's Answers.

MURIEL: The question of wearing earrings is one which must be left to the individual taste. Women with round faces should wear the long, hanging kind, and those whose faces are inclined to be long and thin should adopt the round or flat earring.

M. E.: Adopt the healthful regimen which encourages flesh making. This is the surest foundation on which to build and eventually possess plump, rosy cheeks and shapely, well covered wrists and hands. In addition to that, local applications of nourishing creams and oils will encourage flesh builders, and also warm baths of oil, olive or almond. Rub gently but thoroughly into the pores of the skin. Lay the hands directly in the oil and then rub it in. The hands, of course, must be perfectly clean.

MRS. J.: I certainly would not advise you to take vinegar for reducing your weight. This would be injurious to the health. A sensible diet and exercise will do more good. The epsom salts treatment will reduce flesh on different parts of the body. This is an external application, and is perfectly harmless. I shall gladly send you dietary and exercise for reducing flesh if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

HAZEL: I am sorry but I cannot possibly give you advice regarding becoming an actress.

Doris Blake Says

"Some wives' faith is such that they'll believe the husbands who tell them hey don't play cards for money, but the men they play with do."

Give and Take.

ASK every happy and contented married person you know if the most essential need in married life is not the spirit of give and take, and I'll warrant every reply will be in the affirmative. I speak from experience as well as from observation. Without this leavening spirit no two mortals can live under the same roof for any length of time. The sooner this truth is borne in upon newly weds the sooner the clouds that threaten domesticity will be cleared away.

The following experience from a correspondent may help the uninitiated to see the truth of my assertion:

"There are certain difficulties every woman must meet when she marries. And always when one drops from the hill of romance into the workaday valley of reality the fall is something of a shock. I got up from it bruised and heartsick.

"My husband, whom I supposed lived for me alone and loved me above his own life, suddenly stood before me as he was—a creature of whims and fancies to whom a well cooked meal seemed to mean more than a loving wife's embraces.

"We plowed along through two very rough, very unhappy years before we each learned by a series of hard, illuminating knocks to give and take. Since then we have adjusted our lives until now our first thought is of the other rather than of self.

"Today, my husband is not what I dreamed that he was before we were married. He is more! He is a dear, devoted comrade. In our years of married life we have grown very near. But the real romance in our lives came with the discovery of the give and take policy."

He's a Stranger.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young man, not quite 20, and I have not lived in the city long. Can you tell me some proper forms of amusement to offer a young lady of my age? JOLLY."

With the consent of the young lady's mother, you may take her to the theater, or to tea in the afternoon if you are free during the day. It would be courteous of you to invite the young lady's mother to go with you to the theater, but she probably will refuse, for chaperonage at the theater is not considered so important as it used to be.

Marion Harland's Helping Hand

By Marion Harland

Helps in the Kitchen.

"I AM offering the following items as being of value to many readers of your household department: First, much labor is saved in the matter of cleaning gas stoves under the burners, caused by spilling or boiling over, by placing an ordinary pie plate under each burner and then covering this with an ordinary paper plate such as you get from the bakery. It is only necessary to remove the soiled plate and replace it with a clean one to keep your stove in a tidy condition. Second, to clean milk bottles, where the soiled part is in any degree tenacious, use your pot chain scraper and you will be surprised at the result. HILDA."

"Each item has value to the working housekeeper. It is by heeding such that she becomes mistress of her profession by easy degrees.

Pork Cake Recipe.

"Several years ago I clipped from your Corner a recipe for pork cakes, also one for sauerkraut. I lost my book, in which they were pasted, while moving. As they were both excellent I should appreciate it very much if you could give them to me again. I regret that this happened and that I have to bother you for them. MRS. ISABEL T."

To make pork cakes—Chop one pound of fat salt pork free from lean meat or rind so finely that it looks like granulated lard; pour upon it half a pint of boiling water, and mix next with it two cups of dark brown sugar, one of New Orleans molasses, one teaspoon of baking soda stirred into the molasses, a pound of raisins, a pound of chopped dates, and a quarter pound of minced citron rind. Stir into the mixture sifted flour until you have the consistency of good cake batter. Season with a teaspoon each of cinnamon, cloves, allspice, and nutmeg—all ground, of course. Bake in a moderate oven. This is a Yorkshire recipe, and is, I think, that to which you allude. I am sorry I cannot reproduce the formula for sauerkraut you mention in the same sentence. I have none I can conscientiously recommend. Will our German or Dutch housemothers tell us of the most approved method of compounding a national dish?

Called "War Mein."

"Would you please tell me if you know how the Chinese make the dish called 'war mein'? I thank you in advance, as I know you always try to help everybody. I am only sorry that at present I can be of no help to the H. H. C., but hope to be in the future. MRS. H."

Referred. The name is unfamiliar to me. The recipe will be forthcoming. You may rely upon the intelligence and kindness of the family.

Request for a Song.

"Has any one the words and music of 'Where the River Shannon Flows' that she no longer cares for? I should like to have it. LOIS H."

Referred. Your address is in our books.

To Amuse Children.

"I am writing you concerning some toys which M. B. has to give. I've three children under 3 years and it takes much management to keep them playing so as to get my work done. Anything that might amuse children will be gladly accepted. I have a number of recipes, such as salmon balls, green tomato mince meat, green tomato pie, etc., if you think the Corner would like them? MRS. L. J. R."

The toys of which you speak were given away before we had your letter. I am laying it before our juniorest members—the favored children who are pretty sure of getting new stocks of toys at Christmas. Will they not clear out closets and nurseries of the old to make these little ones happy and give the mother time to work? Will happy mothers who do not have to labor so hard encourage the bairnies in the good work? Let us have the recipes by all means. The Corner will be enriched thereby.

Economical Housekeeping

By Jane Eddington

Staples.

PART of the glory of southern cookery came during the days when, with nothing but staples in the house—a little corn meal, some dried peas or beans, some rice, and some hoarded bacon—the far famed hospitality never ceased, but remained as cordial as formerly. Though profuse abundance no longer crowned the board, the hungry stranger or guest was fed and did not find the entertainment lacking.

We have come to regard canned goods as staples. It is a mistake economically, and we have lost in consequence much of our skill in cooking the real staples. Most canned goods are just poured out of the can and heated up. This may be a great help in times when a hurried meal must be put together, but it is a terrible and costly mistake to make all meals hurried meals.

Considering the cost, it can be proved easily, taking into consideration the amount of nutriment obtained, that the content of a can cost from ten to twenty times as much, in the case of beans and peas, hominy, etc., as the same quantity of the staple article cooked would cost. In the case of the very expensive canned goods the expense may be fifty times what some good dry split peas, finely cooked, would have been.

There is nothing we need to learn more or to get back to than our knowledge of staples. Those who are ready to give their money to help the poor need to learn this, and if the poor could be taught it, perhaps many of them would not be in need of help.

A poor child was recently described as having nothing to eat but some bread and jelly. The bread may have been very poor in the first place, because our loss of skill in cooking staples has meant loss of nutriment in our bread, but whether the bread was good or bad, the child was likely to have the nutriment reduced at least a half because he was eating it with jelly. Probably he would like to eat the jelly by itself, and if it was good enough jelly to eat, palatable as it ought to be, he could eat it that way. The combination is not a nourishing one.

Think of the first cost of the bread and jelly, and realize how very poorly fed a child would be if he had nothing besides, and then consider that on a pea or bean soup alone, or on the thick purée of peas or beans, heated up, he could have been quite completely nourished, and then ponder carefully how we shall spend the money we are giving to help the poor.

A bushel of peas or beans, made up into purée, as they may be made up, made into molds, and wrapped in paper after they are cold, would furnish a meal for several hundred poor people at from one-tenth to one-twentieth of what the poor boy's poor meal of bread and jelly cost.

We have all heard of the query of the queen, when the people were crying for bread, and she was told there was no bread for them. "Then why do you not give them cake?" she said. Too much of our money spent to help goes for supplies as expensive as cake compared to bread. The staples might be our economic salvation in this matter, and the more expensive of these, especially those old favorites, sugar and coffee, might be sparingly bought.

As to the can, it has been one of the extravagant modern agents of shiftlessness and incompetency. Splendid in case of emergency of any sort, it is an extravagance in normal living.

Rented Rooms ARE Money Makers

For the first ten months of this year The Tribune has printed 88,044 advertisements of furnished and housekeeping rooms to rent, which is 17,816 more advertisements than were printed by the other morning papers combined and 22,171 more advertisements than were printed by the first evening newspaper, for the same period.

If you have a spare room—a room that you can make attractive and homelike for some young man or young woman—you can more than likely find an occupant for your room within the next week if you make your offer right now in the "Rooms to Rent" classification of The Sunday Tribune.

Place your want ad today or tomorrow before 4 P. M. and reap the benefit of The Sunday Tribune's enormous (over 500,000) circulation. Don't let another week pass without this small effort to increase your revenue from the renting of a spare room. Some one may be looking for the very room you have to rent.

PHONE CENTRAL 100

or bring your Want Ad in person to the Women's Dept. of The Tribune Business Office, Madison and Dearborn Sts. We allow accommodation charge accounts if you are a telephone subscriber.

Music and the Theater

"CONSEQUENCES."

Rosalind Collins	Mary Servoss
Freddie Finchman	Leonard Mudie
Mrs. Collins	Winifred Harris
Mr. Collins	Hubert Druce
Benjamin Lipski	Elliott Dexter
Bernard Lipski	Horace Braham
Gladys Lipski	Fania Marinoff
Mr. Lipski	Gaston Mervale
Mrs. Lipski	Saba Raleigh

BY PERCY HAMMOND.

Of Mr. Rubinstein, author of "Consequences," it may be said that he is a whimsical Jew who regards as an absurdity the traditional objection to the intermarriage of the people of his race with Christians. His attitude in the matter, fortunately, is that of an instructive satirist. His flail is a gentle though an effective one, and he wields it with a grin. One fancies that even the most orthodox could view with pleasure the amusing presentment of his heresies, for the play is bright, hilarious, and well composed, and the cloven hoof of prejudice is not visible in its progress.

Indeed, I suspect that "Consequences" is quite the most spirited and sophisticated exhibition that has undergone the board of representation at the Fine Arts. Worthier works, no doubt, have adventured there under other, more imposing auspices, but they seemed to be material for the inspection of experts rather than entertainment for the ungainly. "Consequences" is merely a quick witted comedy, keen, literate, adroit, roguish, pretty well acted, and adapted to the possibilities of the average intellect.

Why, it may be asked, is it said that the comedy is only pretty well acted? Well, praise from this quarter is qualified by the conjecture that Mr. Elliott Dexter, player of the leading man's rôle, had insufficient information regarding the nature of his surroundings. He thought he was in burlesque instead of satire. Either that or he lacked faith in the value of his part and in the intelligence of his audience. The extravagance of the character—that of a fluent and unjelled sociological wanderer—suggested a reticent impersonation instead of a flamboyant one. Mr. Dexter's effort was a confusion and is played in the manner of Mr. De Wolf Hopper, as if he were in comic opera. In view of the excellence of other members of the cast Mr. Dexter's florid buffoonery should have depressed even if it did not.

Mr. Dexter, described as one of the "chosen persons," is imbued with emotions of social uneasiness, having an outlet in conversation until he meets a fellow revolutionary in Miss Mary Servoss at a suffragist meeting in Hyde Park. Miss Servoss has manifested her displeasure with the existing order by kicking a policeman in the abdomen, being imprisoned therefor in Ludlow street jail. Both have a passion for upsetting things. She is a Gentile and he a Jew, so they mistake iconoclasm for romance and decide to be married. They wed, not for vulgar passion, they explain, but for a cause.

So long as there is opposition they are happy, emitting garrulous manifestoes of independence to their respective households. The first shock comes when the young woman's family suddenly acquiesces with the discovery that the Jew's father is a prosperous leather merchant. The next jar, completing the subtle joke, occurs when the young man's family learns that his bride-to-be is an eminent sportswoman, proficient at hockey, and opens its arms to her. Anarchs with no rules to despise, they become thoroughly miserable; and they balk, hating each other, when they get to the registrar's office to be married. By that time Miss Servoss is of the opinion that marriage is only an outlet for the beastly minds of respectable people.

This news, precipitated upon an already restless gathering of the two families, is followed by the announcement that the young Jew's sister has already been married to a Christian youth, the former suitor of the Gentile revoltee. Thus Mr. Rubenstein's ingenious inventions continue to the end and his half serious prank closes with delightful consistency. It is a trig bit of satire, written wittily and constructed with skill and assurance. I wish I might write at length about Mr. Gaston Mervale's picture of a dignified Jew, so immaculate an impersonation is it in every aspect. Also of Miss Saba Raleigh's opulent portrayal of his wife, almost a faultless piece of acting. There is excellence, too, by Miss Winifred Harris and Mr. Hubert Druce as the Gentile parents, by Mr. Horace Braham as the impetuous young cynic of the Jewish family, and by Miss Fania Marinoff as the sister.

MISS FANIA MARINOFF in "CONSEQUENCES"

MISS MARY SERVOSS in "CONSEQUENCES"

Miss Fania Marinoff of the cast of "Consequences," recently became the wife of Carl Van Vechten, well known as a writer about music and the drama in New York, and a brother of Ralph Van Vechten, vice president of the Continental and Commercial National bank. Mr. Van Vechten has been music critic and London correspondent of the New York Times and dramatic critic of the New York Press.

"Popular" Concert Proves Tuneful.

BY RONALD WEBSTER.

This first concert of the "popular" series of six on the schedule of the Chicago Symphony orchestra took place last night at Orchestra hall.

There are two possible meanings of the word "popular" as applied to concerts: That the prices are within reach of all, or that the appeal is general. Last night's concert was popular in both senses. Things like the "Nutcracker" suite of Tschaikowsky and the "Scenes Neapolitan" of Massenet are not to be scorned by mighty intellects. The fact that any one becomes tired to death of them is probably because they have been considered worthy of reproduction on the phonograph.

With the exception of the "Spring Song" of Mendelssohn, which has been made famous by every æsthetic dancer, and some who weren't æsthetic, there was no reason why every one in the hall should not have enjoyed everything.

The danger of listening to a popular program is, of course, that after having heard the orchestra play the Bach-Gounod "Ave Marie" decidedly well, you may be compelled to listen to an old "record" of it played with a dull needle on a neighbor's sound producing machine.

Mr. Stock knows the list of the compositions which are alive enough to interest every one. He did not make a mistake last night. Besides the numbers mentioned were the overture to "Furmanthe," the andante of Beethoven's Fifth symphony, the perpetuum mobile of Ries, "Voices of the Forest," from "Siegfried," Godard's adagio pathetique and a Strauss waltz.

Why the bright and rapid Ries number should be called perpetual motion is unexplained. The term might be much better applied to tiresome pieces which never come to an end.

The one fact unpleasant to chronicle was the size of the audience. There were many vacant seats on the main floor. The next popular concert is arranged for Thursday, Dec. 3. The program is interesting.

Priest Will Speak to Non-Catholics.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

The Rev. Paul James Francis, superior of the Society of the Atonement, Graymoor, N. Y., will give on Sunday evening a series of addresses to non-Catholics in the Holy Angels' church, Oakwood boulevard, near Vincennes avenue. Father Francis was formerly a minister in the Anglican church.

"The purpose of the mission," Bishop A. J. McGavick, pastor of Holy Angels' church, said in making the announcement, "is to explain to earnest and truth loving souls the doctrines and practices of the Catholic church. The mission will be conducted without controversy."

An introductory conference on the subject "Where Is the Church of Christ?" will be conducted before the sermon. The sermon will be on the subject, "The Valley of Destruction."

Monday evening the subject of the conference will be "Has the Church a Visible Head?" and the subject of the sermon, "The Devil's Gospel of Delay."

Other conferences are on the subjects, "Why Say Hail Mary?" "Why Go to Confession?" "What Is Transubstantiation?" "Why Exalt the Cross?" "Is There a Purgatory?"

Elected Dr. Stone's Assistant.

The Rev. David Clark Beatty has been elected by the vestry of the St. James Protestant Episcopal church, Cass and East Huron streets, assistant minister to the rector, the Rev. James S. Stone.

He served the church last summer when Dr. Stone was on his vacation and after Dr. Stone's return continued as assistant minister, to which position he has now been formally elected.

Father Beatty was educated for the law before entering the priesthood. He was admitted to the bar in South Dakota. He is a graduate of the University of the City of New York.

On Sunday, Nov. 15, the St. James church will celebrate the eightieth anniversary of its founding. It is one of the oldest churches in Chicago and has continuously held a position of influence in the church life of the city.

U. of M. Alumnae to Meet.

Miss Jane Addams and Mrs. Ella Flagg Young will be the guests of honor at a luncheon of local University of Michigan alumnae to be held in the tower room of the Union League club tomorrow at 12:30.

News of Clubs and Societies.

There will be a meeting of Our Own City Poor club tomorrow morning at the Congress hotel for working on the plans of the cotton cotillon which will be given at the Congress Nov. 28. The proceeds will be used to buy Christmas dinners for poor people. The baskets, with toys for the children, will be distributed by the investigating committee of the club at a central point.

The committee on public affairs will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the Chicago Woman's club.

The Argus club will hold a board meeting this afternoon at the Hotel La Salle. Special committees will be appointed to raise money to establish a number of rest rooms for working women.

A talk by Karlton Hackett on the Century Opera company will be given this afternoon at the meeting of the Arché club in Lincoln Center. The civics and philanthropy class will meet in the morning. Mrs. John C. Bley will speak on municipal markets, and Wallace Clark on the sanitary district.

Bright Sayings of Children

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The stories may be sent in either by children or their parents. The only condition is the story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, "Tribune," Chicago.

When my little daughter Marjorie was nearly 4 years old the girl that had worked for me since before her birth had to leave me and a new girl took her place. One day Marjorie informed me she did not like the new girl as well as she had liked Dorcas. "Well, darling," I said, "you mustn't say anything about it to her; it would make her feel bad." "I won't," she answered, "and I do like her some, but, mudder, it's just like it is about the sirup. I like the red sirup, too, but the white is the goodest."

MRS. F. F.

Harriet had been mean to her little niece, Maxine, age 3, whereat she cried and told her grandmother. Of course Harriet was scolded, but that didn't seem to satisfy Maxine, for she said:

"Grandma, does grandpa shave?"

"Yes."

"And has he a strap?"

"Yes. Why?"

"Well, then, why don't you whip Harriet with it?"

Elizabeth, aged 5, had been taught politeness and self-denial with her friends. While visiting her grandparents she was given an ice cream cone, and, as usual, was dividing it with all present. She came to grandpa last, who acted as though he would eat the balance. Elizabeth interrupted politely, saying: "Don't take too large bites, grandpa, it's cold."

At a children's party one game they played was called spin the bottle. Sumner's friend was elected to kiss a girl, but was bashful and hung back. Sumner, aged 5, spoke up and said: "I'll kiss her for you this time."

McCutcheon Tells Hoosiers About War.

Five hundred Hoosiers attended the luncheon of the Indiana society in honor of John T. McCutcheon at the Hotel La Salle yesterday. Mr. McCutcheon described some of his experiences in the European war as artist correspondent for THE TRIBUNE.

"Having intended to join the French forces," he said, "it was strange that the fortunes of war should carry us into the German lines. We were caught between the German and Belgian lines and observed the occupation of Louvain. The

"We did not see any evidence of German discourtesy toward the Belgians, and on the surface there was no deep hatred of the Germans by the residents."

Mr. McCutcheon's remark that "it did not seem to us that the Germans had been getting a square deal from the newspapers," evoked applause.

"The people abroad in the countries involved in war think more of the United States than formerly. It occupies a higher position in their thoughts than ever before. Everywhere there is the desire to win the regard of the American people. The Germans are aware of the fact that much of the American sentiment is against them, but they hope to have the situation changed with the larger knowledge of the facts and causes of the war."

Plan More School Penny Lunches.

Steps are to be taken to install penny lunches in eleven more schools if the board of education approves a plan adopted yesterday by its school management committee.

Mrs. Florence Vosbrink, chairman of a subcommittee on penny lunches, made a report recommending that penny lunches be installed in the following schools: Jackson, Montefiore, Washington, Kosciuszko, Hayes, Talcott, Jenner, Froebel, Seward, Keith, and Langland.

The board has not money to install the lunches at present, but the proposition will be taken up when the budget for 1915 is made up. The cost for equipment is $150 a school, and the cost of maintenance—management, dishwashing, and cooking—is $40 a month per school. It was estimated that the total cost for the additional lunches for next year would be about $10,000.

The cost of the food will have to be raised by subscription. Ralph C. Otis was the first one to volunteer a donation.

The trial of William Haskell started yesterday by the trial committee of the board. Haskell, who was employed in the architect's department, is charged with making false reports. A. F. Hussander school architect, brought the charges.

Witnesses against Haskell were James J. Spain, engineer of the school; Cornelius Lamb, clerk of the works, and Robert Hood, an analytical chemist. All asserted that in cases where the specifications called for three coats of varnish only two were put on. Hood said he had made microscopic tests. The paint and varnish work was done by Gottardo Bros.

Calls Clean Press Moral Aid.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 5.—Clean newspapers are more and more becoming one of the greatest factors in the moral rebirth of the young men and young women of America, according to Edward W. Peck, state secretary of the Minnesota Y. M. C. A., Minneapolis, who spoke before the international purity congress here today.

"There is a kind of psychological mysticism about the other kind—yellow journals," he said. "The editors of such papers apparently believe their readers prefer dirt to diamonds. They cater to the tastes of the lowbrow and feed the brainless mind."

That social workers are largely responsible for the pessimistic view which the average individual holds regarding the life of the race, was the charge made by William A. McKeever, professor of child welfare, at the University of Kansas.

"Too many speakers have been guilty of eugenic calamity howling," he said. "Our American stock is essentially sound. But we can accomplish nothing toward a cleaner race until we create a spirit of optimism with regard to human tendencies."

Aid Archer Avenue Day Nursery.

The directors of the Archer Avenue Day nursery, 239 West Twenty-fourth street, are conducting a rummage sale for the benefit of the nursery fund. The sale will continue until tomorrow night in a store room at 2618 Wentworth avenue. All of yesterday the shop was thronged with residents of the neighborhood who are able there to get at nominal prices—and without charity—clothing and all manner of household articles, at the same time enlarging the fund which enables the Day nursery to care for the working women's little children. Mrs. Lorado Taft, president of the nursery, is in charge of the sale.

Says War Broadens Grocer.

A banquet was tendered to John S. Pillsbury, vice president of Pillsbury Flour Mills company, at the Grand Pacific hotel last night by the employés of the Chicago branch. Mr. Pillsbury spoke of the effect that the European situation had had on the Chicago markets and stated that the outlook for business throughout the country was greatly improved.

"The war has made the retail grocer keener concerning business," he said, "and it has brought him into more intimate relation with trade expansion movements, thus broadening his views."

E. H. CALVERT, MISS HELEN DUNBAR, BRYANT WASHBURN
ESSANAY

"HIS DEAREST FOES."

Essanay.

Col. Calhoun	E. H. Calvert
Esme Calhoun	Helen Dunbar
Gerald Calhoun	Bryant Washburn
Fajah Allen Shah	Lester Cuneo
Dr. Graham	Harry Dunkinson

THIS picture is a family party, with the mother the heroine and the son the villain—only a near-villain, to be exact, for he brings the film to a close of rosy glory by an anticipated Canadian reform. Until that moment, however, he furnishes a mass of gloom for home consumption that is distinctly depressing for the fond parents.

Besides being depressing, the atmosphere is military, provided by short-waisted, richly braided English uniforms in which, by the way, E. H. Calvert looks particularly well. His at-home-ness in military things is easily understood when the fact is made known that he was one of the products ground out of West Point, after which he spent ten years captaining in the United States army. To his work in pictures this military discipline contributes a dignity of bearing that is especially satisfying in stories like this of official setting.

Bryant Washburn, the "regular villain," has an opportunity here to be only a semi-one, and he makes a convincing, if somewhat discomforting, characterization of the weak young coward, easily led astray and then cringing at the inevitable.

The mother, portrayed by Helen Dunbar, puts into the celluloid depiction a rarely effective illustration of feminine love for both son and husband, neither overdone nor stilted, simply natural and sincere.

The story is the regulation one of the son with no particular principles who cannot help drinking and gambling and whose parents struggle to pay up his debts even at the sacrifice of their own comfort. To the father this is a particular grief for the dishonor it brings to the uniform which both he and his son wear, the one as commander, the other as subordinate officer.

When the son, after his mother's intercession, stakes a valuable ring she has given him, in a game and attempting to retrieve his losses, cheats, his father's impatience is exhausted and he assigns him to a messenger mission which practically means death.

This naturally doesn't appeal to the son, and the scene between the two is very effectively handled. True to his type, the son yields to the temptation of the bottle, and while he should have been galloping across the country, he sleeps drunkenly in his room.

There the father, doubting his trust, finds him and undertakes the mission himself. When the wife discovers his absence she obliges Gerald, who has roused himself, to bring horses so that they may follow the colonel and in case of disaster be with him.

So they gallop over the roads, while other people, soldiers and natives, gallop at other points. From the progress of the costumes and the events, the observer judges the setting to be in India, though in these outdoor scenes distance apparently is annihilated, for India assuredly looks more like Illinois than anything else I ever saw.

The colonel is found wounded, but alive, and is taken home, where his wife cares for him and to them comes the son, purified by the fire of remorse into a firm decision of reform, to bid them farewell before he departs for Canada, where he intends to make a new start. How he succeeds the film does not reveal, but he leaves a most hopeful pair of parents behind him, and we observers trust that their hopes may be justified.

Film Notes.

Mary Fuller is mourning a sad, sad loss. Her small dog, Toby, whom she loved, is dead and that is the wherefore of her grief. She found him in the country and when she brought him back to town with her an unfeeling hotel clerk would not welcome him along with his mistress. The tale goes, then, that he pined away from the sorrow of separation. Anyway, the fact is that he is dead and Mary mourns him.

Sophie Clutts and Mustang Pete, who cavort so enliveningly through the life of Essanay's Snakeville, are a pair of fond parents when they return to the more sedate atmosphere of their Niles bungalow. Recently they entertained at an elaborate birthday party for their small daughter, Margaret, who has reached the eleventh milestone. Besides the company of little folks, Kewpies, big and small, as decorations and favors made the party most festive.

PROFIT TAKING CAUSES BREAK

LIVERPOOL MART FIRM.

In spite of the big export business reported the previous day there was not much speculative demand for wheat futures yesterday and the market had a reactionary tone. Resting prices were ⅞c to ⅛@1c lower. Longs took profits and in the latter part of the session there was selling by early buyers, who bought on the reports of big export sales at the seaboard.

The situation continues bullish so far as the export demand is concerned, but many traders still are unable to enthuse on the buying side until the actual clearances reflect the big sales reported or until the movement from the country lessens. The volume of outside business is not at all broad and on the swells there is free selling. Commission houses were credited with buying wheat on the setback and there was some increase in short selling, so that many traders were disposed to reinstate lines on the late break.

Cash Prices Relatively Strong.

The cash sales here reported were small, but there were plenty of bids at the highest relative prices so far. No. 2 hard wheat at the gulf was 4¼c over Chicago December free on board Galveston, or about ⅝c higher than on Monday. This indicates the urgency of the foreign demand. New York reported sales of upward of 1,000,000 bu, with difficulty in obtaining freights the only thing in the way of much larger sales. Pacific coast reports were extremely bullish, and advices from all grain markets of the country indicate the offerings in every section are being eagerly accepted.

Receipts here were 1,013 cars, with 627 cars inspected yesterday. Primary arrivals were 2,674,000 bu, against 1,259,000 bu a year ago. Clearances were 615,000 bu. Northwestern points had 900 cars; last year, 641 cars; and Winnipeg arrivals were 433 cars, compared to 892 cars a year ago.

Cargo Values Advance.

Liverpool was 1d higher for futures, and cargo prices have advanced sharply in the last week, reflecting the big demand abroad. French reports were less favorable as to seeding. Broomhall reports the prospects brightening for a continued big import business, especially for flour. With the outlook for a war of long duration the necessity for laying in future supplies is being realized by foreign buyers and there is no reason to look for any letup in the demand so long as we have any wheat to spare and the shipping is unimpeded.

Snow estimates the winter acreage at 39,000,000 acres, an increase of approximately 10 per cent, compared to last year's record acreage. Argentine shipments were estimated at 80,000 bu.

Corn Loses Early Advance.

Corn showed a fairly strong tone early, but was affected later by the weakness in wheat and there was considerable profit taking. Prices at the close were ⅝@¾c lower, the December being under especially heavy pressure. Offerings of corn from the country were moderate, but arrivals of new corn are increasing and there was a car of new No. 2 yellow corn in the market from Illinois.

The cash demand was fair and there were sales of 365,000 bu, including 250,000 bu new corn, for export. Private estimates of the corn yield all indicated bigger yields than were estimated a month ago. These estimates ranged from 2,684,000,000 bu to 2,765,000,000 bu. All agreed that old stocks of corn on the farm were less than half as much as a year ago.

Liverpool cables were ⅛@¼d higher at the close. Argentine shipments were estimated at 4,675,000 bu for the week. Weather conditions in the South American country were more favorable for corn. Receipts here were 244 cars, with 213 cars inspected yesterday, and primary arrivals were 392,000 bu, against 285,000 bu a year ago. Weather conditions continue mild and generally fine over the corn belt, with no indication of immediate change.

Oats Longs Take Profits.

Reports of big export sales of oats failed to stimulate buying, as in wheat, and resting prices for the day showed the result of free realizing last quotations being ⅛c to ⅜@½c lower. Offerings from the country were light and receivers were disposed to look for a break in the heavy receipts. Arrivals were 401 cars, with 242 cars inspected yesterday. Primary arrivals were large, however, at 970,000 bu, or 217,000 bu more than a year ago.

Local cash prices were steady to ½c higher, and sales were 225,000 bu. The seaboard reported a good demand for oats and Pacific coast reports were bullish.

Strong Products Market.

A big advance in hog prices at the yards, following the announcement the yards would be closed for nine days, caused a moderate jump in provisions prices. Later hog prices lost about half of the 50c advance and the market on the floor here was far from being excited. Packers were credited with buying lard. The cash demand for lard continues good and there is an improving trade in meats for shipment south.

Hog receipts were 21,000, with 14,000 estimated for today. Western points had 82,700, against 75,400 a year ago. Liverpool prices were advanced 1s for lard and 6d for hams. Receipts of products here were 21 cars, and shipments were lighter at 93 cars.

Rye Prices Rule Higher.

Barley ruled steady, with sales of malting grades at 63@77c and feed at 59@61c. Receipts, 57 cars.

Timothy seed was quiet, with country lots nominally $4.00@5.50. Clover seed steady with cash lots $10.00@14.00 nominal.

Duluth flax closed 3¾@4c higher, with cash on track $1.43¾; November, $1.41¾; December, $1.42, and May, $1.47¾. Receipts, 50 cars. Minneapolis was up 3⅝c, with cash on track $1.40⅝@1.43⅝. Receipts, 47 cars. Winnipeg was 1¼@4¼c higher, with November, $1.22; December, $1.21, and May, $1.26½. Receipts, 16 cars.

NEWS AND GOSSIPOF BOARD OF TRADE.

A local house had a bid for 800,000 bu wheat yesterday for December and January shipment, but did not make the sale. Prices for wheat at the gulf were the highest on the crop, No. 1 hard being 4@4¼c over Chicago December f. o. b. Galveston. Foreign buyers were willing to pay these prices, but offerings were reported light. Relatively prices at the gulf are ⅛@⅜c higher than Monday. Local sales were reported light, owing largely to the fact that shippers are sold up for the present and are disposed to hold what wheat they have. New York reports claimed sales in all positions of 1,000,000 to 1,200,000 bu. St. Louis and Kansas City prices were higher with a good demand.

Old corn in the sample market was ½c higher and new was unchanged to ½c lower. Offerings from the country generally were reported light, but quite a little new corn is coming in and receipts are expected to increase gradually from now on. There was a car of new No. 2 yellow corn in from Illinois, showing 14 per cent moisture. Oats were steady to ½c higher and there was a fair local demand. Corn sales here 365,000 bu, including 250,000 bu for export, and oats sales were 225,000 bu. The sale of 200,000 bu oats to go to storage was reported.

Minneapolis wired Ware-Leland that Pacific coast houses were buyers of wheat in North Dakota. This is considered most unusual and indicates the urgent demand for wheat on the Pacific coast. Australia and New Zealand are credited with having bought a lot of wheat on the Pacific coast and in western Canada recently.

Snow's November estimate of the corn crop indicated a yield of 2,754,000,000 bu, compared to 2,447,000,000 bu a year ago. Farm stocks were placed at 62,000,000 bu, against 138,000,000 bu a year ago. Quality of corn is below an average. Winter wheat acreage is placed at 39,000,000 acres, an increase of about 10 per cent.

The Armour Grain company estimates the corn crop of the United States for the year 1914 at 2,684,000,000 bu, or 20,000,000 bu more than they estimated Oct. 1. They place farm reserves of corn at 55,000,000 bu, against 138,000,000 bu a year ago.

McKenna-Rodgers had New York advices saying the only thing in the way of a stupendous business in wheat was the difficulty in obtaining freights. Big demand was reported also for oats.

Clement-Curtis' estimate the corn crop is 2,719,000,000 bu. This is an increase of 58,000,000 bu over the estimate of last month and 43,000,000 bu more than the government estimated.

Slaughter had a cable from Buenos Aires saying: "Prospects of wheat crop are generally favorable. In Bahia Blanca there was some damage from frost."

A private Liverpool cable said wheat was advancing owing to strong demand. Hard winter wheat was quoted 9d higher per quarter than on Monday.

Joseph D. Lewis has made application for membership on the Chicago board of trade. Lewis C. Doggett has posted his membership for transfer.

Bartlett-Frazier had reports from New York saying there had been some business done in oats and about 100,000 bu new corn for export.

Charters were made for 300,000 bu corn to Buffalo at 1c and 700,000 bu oats to Port Huron to load and hold for winter storage at 1⅝c.

Seeding of wheat in France has been disappointing, according to cables received yesterday.

Exporters were said to have cleaned up the tables of cash wheat again at Kansas City.

COFFEE AND SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Today's cables reported a reaction of ⅜d in the rate of Brazilian exchange on London, but there seemed to be very little coffee offering for sale in the cost and freight market, and the spot market continued steady, with prices unchanged at 6⅝c for Rio 7s and 10½c for Santos 4s. There were renewed rumors of European purchases in the local market, and advances in war risks have unsettled the import situation, but the visible supply is now about 100,000 bags in excess of last year, and buyers appear to be waiting for fresh developments. CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—SUGAR—The following prices were quoted by wholesale dealers per 100 lbs. Cut loaf, H. & E., $7.25; powdered, standard, $6.70; eastern granulated, $6.15; beet, granulated, $5.75; extra "C," $5.00; ordinary, $5.50.

EARLY MATURING ISSUES SOUGHT

Demand for Short Term Securities Strong Despite Money Stringency.

CITY BONDS IN FAVOR.

Chicago investors and bond houses are remarking on the unusual strength of high grade short term securities. Current prices, even in the present stringent money market, are as high, if not higher, than a year ago, when the local ruling interest rate was 6 per cent instead of 7, as at this time. In this strength there is considerable significance as indicating the trend of sentiment toward the security situation.

Buyers of short term notes and short bond maturities wish to have a temporary investment which may be readily disposed of in order that a little later anticipated bargains in stocks may be availed of. It is expected that within a few months the stock markets will be again in operation and a free market for both stocks and bonds established. It is to be prepared for this situation that bond dealers find their customers making short term purchases.

Buying Not Localized.

Such buying is not confined to Chicago. The demand in New York is equally strong, and it is reported that any desirable security maturing within six months or a year is eagerly sought.

Locally the favorite issues are Chicago city bonds and sanitary district issue. Cook county paper sells, perhaps, on a little higher basis than either, but is also scarcer. The demand for sanitary district bonds and city of Chicago issues is such that it is difficult to buy them on a 5 per cent basis. At 4⅞ per cent, however, sellers may be found. But generally those who have the short term obligations are holding them for the same reason that others wish to buy them. The short term notes at current quotations are considered to be as good as cash.

Local Bond Prices Improve.

The market for local bonds other than those having near maturities has improved within the last week. The stock exchange removed the minimum price barrier from five issues. The low prices established, after this was done, have been succeeded by higher quotations and a broader demand. The appended table shows the bid and asked prices yesterday, together with the sale prices recorded one week ago:

	Bid.	Asked.	Low sales.
City Railway 5s	95⅞	96	95¼
Chicago Telephone 5s	97	97½	97
Commonwealth Edison 5s	98⅝	98⅞	98

New York More Optimistic.

The favorable change in sentiment is recorded in New York by the Wall Street Journal. It says:

"Compared with a month ago, there are evidences of a vast improvement in banking sentiment. There is more disposition to be cheerful about the outlook, although there appears to be a tendency to be more or less guarded in estimating future possibilities.

"Undoubtedly trading in bonds has become pronouncedly more active in the past few days, which is the big development of the week. Most bond houses report an increasing number of trades and a large number of inquiries on hand. This varies as between different houses, but on the whole it is safe to say the turnover of bonds is now near 25 per cent of normal.

"One of the largest bond houses reports business in bonds for the last two or three days as well up to normal. Thursday's business with this house was said to have equaled an average day's business in normal times, and several other houses even report considerable sales of bonds for shipment to London. There are pronounced evidences of inquiries from that quarter.

"Bankers are generally looking for easier money conditions in the near future, some going so far as to predict 4 or 4½ per cent money. This may be brought about by the accumulation of funds caused by the shrinkage in business and the intensive economies being practiced by all corporations and individuals. The best indication that bankers have the money situation in better hand is indicated by the loan made to France, which would hardly have been entered into unless the banks were in position to successfully take care of their commercial and other requirements."

Money Returning to Chicago.

Movements of currency in Chicago for the month of October showed receipts at $16,338,161 to have been nearly double the shipments. The outgo was the smallest since last February, due to the fact that the heaviest drain on the banks was last August, following the tightening due to fright over the war. Since August the shipments have decreased, while receipts have grown.

For the first eleven months of the calendar year there has been an excess in receipts over shipments of $11,129,749. This compares with an excess of $24,945,920 in shipments over receipts for the corresponding period last year. The figures follow:

Reserve Bank Appointments.

Charles L. Powell of the law firm of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt was yesterday elected counsel for the federal reserve bank of Chicago by the board of directors. While Mr. Powell will be actively in charge of the legal work of the bank, he will remain a member of the law firm.

The directors also confirmed by election the following previously named by the executive committee:

Charles R. McKay, deputy governor; Bently G. McCloud, cashier, and W. F. McClallen, secretary. The latter is also deputy reserve agent.

Mr. McKay has been in charge of the transit and general books department of the First National bank, while Mr. McCloud has been an examiner for the local clearing house association.

Dividend Declared.

The American Cotton Oil company has declared the regular semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent on the preferred stock, payable Dec. 1. Books close Nov. 12 and reopen Dec. 4. The matter of a disbursement on the common stock was not considered.

Money and Exchange.

Money rates were unchanged in Chicago at 7 per cent on collateral, 7 per cent on commercial paper, and 7 per cent over the counter. New York exchange sold at par. Chicago bank clearings were $61,383,618.

Subtreasury Operations.

The New York subtreasury gained $8,101,000 from the banks on Wednesday and since last Friday has gained $7,341,000.

Gold to the amount of $75,000 was exported to Canada. Of this, $50,000 was in coin and $25,000 in bars.

Moline Plow Earnings.

The Moline Plow company has issued its report for the year ended July 31. Gross sales fell off $1,702,658 and net income decreased $856,854. The result of operations after the payment of the common stock dividend was a deficit of $1,016,451, against a surplus the previous year of $322,402, making the total loss in the surplus account $1,338,853. BRIEF BITS OF NEWS IN FINANCIAL WORLD.

Sales of United States Steel common stock were reported at 48. This is an advance of three points since last Monday and about five points from the low quotation following the closing of the exchange. The advance is attributed to the favorable effect which the elections had on public sentiment.

It was announced in New York that the large transfer of gold coin and bars from the Denver mint to New York City was due to the decision of the treasury department to have available in New York a large supply of gold in connection with cotton pool financial arrangements.

It developed at a meeting of the board of directors of the American Cotton Oil company that the annual report for the fiscal year will show earnings on the common stock considerably smaller than the previous year, when something over 3 per cent was shown.

The retirement by New York banks of emergency currency on Wednesday was $9,800,000, making the total retired by New York institutions since the middle of October more than $18,000,000.

At a meeting of the directors of the Chicago Railways company Henry A. Blair was reelected president and chairman of the board. The other retiring officers were also reelected.

Steel Foundries Makes Deficit.

The American Steel Foundries company will close down its works at Sharon, Pa., because of scarcity of orders from railroads. The Franklin and Granite City works have already been closed.

The report of the company for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1914, shows a deficit of $75,816. The statement follows:

COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The Liverpool cotton exchange will open tomorrow for restricted trading, it was announced in an official cablegram received here today by the New York cotton exchange. Trading will be in May-June deliveries. The operations will be confined to the liquidation of old contracts and new buying. New selling will not be permitted.

Rapid progress was reported today in the plan for reopening the New York cotton exchange. It is expected that the officers of the exchange will announce the date of the reopening of the local market immediately after receiving a court order permitting the sale at 9 cents a pound to the proposed corporation of bankers of cotton owned by the suspended firm of S. H. P. Pell & Co. This order, it is believed, will be obtained tomorrow.

The decision of the London Cotton association to open the exchange was regarded in trade circles here as a step toward the resumption of general business in the futures market, which has been closed since the end of last July.

The outstanding interest in the English market was originally concentrated into January-February, but was transferred into May-June this morning, and it is anticipated here that the acceptance of new buying orders will greatly exhilarate liquidation, particularly as the minimum price fixed for American cotton is considered far under a parity with prevailing values in the south, and should consequently prove attractive to buyers.

No progress was made today in the settlement of the straddle interests. Cables received from Liverpool reported that 100,000 bales had been liquidated there by ballot on Tuesday, releasing 50,000 bales of the straddle interest for ballot locally. But the price in Liverpool was equal to only 7 cents for December here under the old agreement and local traders have decided not to ballot below 7.51 cents.

Complete liquidation of the straddle, however, is not considered necessary to the resumption of business under the corporation syndicate plans of taking over old contracts. December contracts were quoted at 7.55@7.58c on the local curb. New Orleans spot quiet, 7 3-16c; sales, 1,340 bales.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 5.—COTTON—Spot quiet; sales, 210 bales; middling, 7 3-16c.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 5.—COTTON—Fair business done in spot; prices unchanged. Sales, 12,000 bales, including 9,400 American, on the basis of 4.55d for middling. Imports, 700 bales, all American.

Sharply advanced prices were made in all branches of the live stock trade at Chicago yesterday, due to the orders of government officials closing the yards for a period of ten days beginning at midnight Nov. 6 and lasting until midnight, Nov. 15.

Big packers, who have slaughtering plants at western packing centers not affected by any of the quarantine orders so far issued, did little buying at the inflated prices, but smaller killers, less fortunately situated, were anxious to get as much of the available supply as they could handle and they paid the prices until filled up.

Hogs opened at an advance of 40@50c under the influence of spirited buying by small packers and speculators.

Speculators Have Bad Day.

Nearly all of the fresh hog receipts of 18,000 head were cleared at the full upturn, but many of them remained in the hands of speculators, and when the latter tried to resell they found their only outlet to be the big packers, who refused to pay within 30@40c of the prices in force at the opening. The market closed on the bottom with all the early appreciation eliminated.

Cattle trade was decidedly uneven. Some of the sellers claimed to have made sales of beef steers at 40@50c higher than was obtainable for corresponding stock Wednesday. Others found they could not secure better than firm prices. Most of the cows and heifers sold 10@25c higher for the day while veal calves advanced 50@75c, topping at $11.00. Receipts of 5,500 cattle and 1,000 calves were well cleared.

Highest prices of the year were made in the sheep house when two double decks of fed western yearlings were sold at $8.00. Sheep were mostly 10@15c higher for the day while lambs advanced 25@35c, topping at $9.25. The trade was active and receipts of 18,000 head cleared long before noon.

Receipts for Nov. 6 were estimated at 5,000 cattle, 16,000 hogs, and 10,000 sheep, against actual arrivals of 1,910 cattle, 22,714 hogs, and 17,480 sheep for Friday, Nov. 7, 1913.

J. V. FARWELL CO. REVIEW.

The John V. Farwell company's weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade says:

"During the last few days cotton has advanced materially on account of liberal buying. Gray cotton goods are 3 to 8 per cent higher. Sales of wool dress goods made during the last year, and especially during the last three months, gives additional proof that Chicago is the leading distributing center of wool dress goods. This result has been brought about by the liberal purchases made by Chicago distributors, who were not affected by timidity and uncertainty in regard to the working of national policies at Washington, but realized that wool dress goods would be no cheaper.

"The strong demand for broadcloth continues and supply in medium and better qualities is becoming scarce. Roadmen out with wool dress goods for spring are finding merchants conservative in buying for next season, but keen to pick up novelties and any fabric that shows strong indications of being a quick seller. The big demand during the last two summer seasons for palm beach fabrics for men's wear has created similar demand for this class of merchandise in fabrics suitable for ladies' wear.

"As predicted some two months ago, the demand for black and colored velvets, velveteens, and corduroys is unprecedented. The choicest fabrics are becoming scarce."

Columbia Gas and Electric.

A. H. H., Beloit, Wis.—The Columbia Gas and Electric company is a holding company with respect to a number of corporations and also owns leases of gas rights, etc. No dividends have been paid on the $50,000,000 stock. The company has outstanding $10,212,000 of first mortgage bonds, besides $2,464,300 of debentures. The first mortgage bonds have a sinking fund provision. The company's report for the year 1912 showed a deficit of $82,922 after paying interest and $81,006 to the sinking fund, according to the Financial Chronicle. In 1913 there was a surplus of $124,116. For the first six months of this year the net earnings showed a gain of $242,653. If the earnings continue to increase the bonds will be in a strong position after a few years. They were quoted at about 70 in July on the Pittsburgh stock exchange.

Brief Answers to Correspondents.

M. W. L., Kankakee, Ill.—Sears, Roebuck & Co. preferred stock pays 7 per cent and the common pays the same rate. A purchase of common shares would be speculative. The dividend on the $8,000,000 preferred is protected by that on the $40,000,000 common stock, but even with this protection a purchase of preferred shares would be a much less secure investment than a good mortgage bond.

E. J. S.—The Inland Electric company refuses to give any information about its affairs. An investment in its stock under such circumstances would be trusting to chance.

STOCKS RISE IN NEW YORK

Investment Demand Reflects Election Results.

LIVERPOOL GOOD FACTOR.

Cotton Exchange Announcement Creates Optimism in U. S.

New York, Nov. 5.—The result of the recent elections was reflected today in a broader inquiry for investment issues and general advances in the prices of listed securities being traded in outside the stock exchange.

Another helpful factor was the announcement that the Liverpool cotton exchange is to reopen on a restricted basis of operations tomorrow. The news created a feeling of optimism in local cotton circles, where it was felt that the New York cotton exchange will soon be reopened.

Deny Stock Market Rumor.

Stock exchange authorities lost little time in denying reports that the representatives of the British government now conferring with American treasury officials and bankers had suggested the advisability of an indefinite suspension of regular market operations here. It is a fact, however, that at this time not even an approximate date for the reopening of the local exchange has been set.

Improvement in sentiment was most pronounced in the steel trade, despite the belief that the October statement of the United States Steel corporation, to be issued next Tuesday, is likely to show another large decrease in unfilled orders. Manufacturers in other lines, including textiles, also expressed a more hopeful view of the immediate future.

Another advance in rates on Paris was the feature of the foreign exchange market, both bills and checks rising materially as a result of the reduced supply of bills. The London market was a shade easier, with additional offerings of commercial bills, because of the termination of the moratorium. Exchange on Montreal rose again, the most plausible explanation in that connection being found in the heavy purchases made here by Canada for the account of the British government.

London Gets More Gold.

An increase of over $38,000,000 in the gold holdings of the Bank of England was the outstanding feature in that institution's statement for the last week. Substantial gains in total and liability reserves were also noted. The Imperial Bank of Germany added about $7,500,000 to its store of gold and increased its holdings of emergency and other bank notes by over $36,000,000.

Closing: Mercantile paper, 6@6½. Sterling exchange steady; sixty day bills, 4.8716; for cables, 4.9065@4.9085; for demand, 4.90@4.9025. Bar silver, 49⅞c. Exchanges, $251,784,520; balances, $19,002,976.

FOREIGN BANK STATEMENTS.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes:

Dealers Figure Meat Embargo Will Increase the Demand.

EGGS HIGHEST IN MONTHS.

Butter Has Steady Undertone; Potato Values Remain Unchanged.

Influence of live stock quarantine restrictions was reflected in the produce market at Chicago yesterday by a broader and more aggressive demand for live poultry. Dealers in the latter apparently figured the crippling of the meat industry would result in more general use of poultry, and they paid ½@1c a pound higher for hens, spring chickens, and roosters. Receipts of 5 cars and 1,443 coops sold briskly at the upturn and the market closed strong.

Egg prices made a further gain of ½c a dozen, selling higher than at any previous time in several months. Receipts were 4,532 cases. Cold storage stocks of eggs were reported at 2,388,000 cases, showing a decrease of 497,000 cases since Oct. 1, but standing 489,000 cases in excess of reserves a year ago.

Butter market had a steady undertone at unchanged prices. Receipts were 5,931 tubs. Cold storage holdings were reported at 54,478,000 lbs, against 60,894,000 lbs a month ago, and standing 5,055,000 lbs short of reserves a year ago.

Potato market was without change. Receipts were 40 cars, the bulk of which sold at 32@35c a bu on track.

Have YOU a ledger problem?

Like this one? Haberdasher and laundry agency—6000 accounts—but very active, requiring daily itemized postings. For the first ten days of the month, work very heavy. Two bookkeepers absolutely necessary.

The problem was to "split up" the ledger so that two clerks could work on it during the "rush" period.

The solution: Mr. Haberdasher bought a Library Bureau card ledger and an L. B. unit record desk with two posting boards (see illustration). Cards in three of the trays were turned around to face one operator, cards in the other three trays faced the other operator. This arrangement enabled both clerks to work at the same time without interfering with each other.

Louis Quitman to Operate New Five Story Woodlawn Hostelry.

ANNUAL RENT, $19,000.

A large hotel lease in the outlying south side has been closed, comprising the Calumet hotel now in process of construction on the east side of Cottage Grove avenue, just south of Sixty-third street. The building is a five story and basement structure, occupying a lot 125x150 feet, and will contain five stores on the ground floor and 140 guest rooms on the upper floors, nearly all with baths.

There will be a restaurant, banquet hall, etc., and the cost of the building is placed at about $225,000. It has been leased by Thomas Gaynor and Frank Slaber to Louis Quitman for a term of twenty-five years at a reported annual rent of $19,000, or $475,000 for the term.

The apartment house property in Ellis avenue 650 feet south of Thirty-seventh street, with 72x162 feet of ground, east front, has been sold by P. H. McManus to Fauntelroy Matthews, a nominal consideration being given, subject to an incumbrance of $32,000.

Flat Building Sold.

Mr. McManus conveyed in part payment the property in Oakdale avenue, 36 feet west of Seminary avenue, 36x122 feet, south front, with flat improvements, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $6,500.

The twenty-four apartment building in Hutchinson street, 141 feet west of Cicero avenue, with lot 111x125 feet, south front, has been sold by S. M. Smith to Benjamin Hindsill, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $38,000.

Charles M. Andersen has sold to Anna E. Knudson the apartment house property in Magnolia avenue, 80 feet north of Montrose boulevard, with 58x144 feet of ground, west front, for an expressed consideration of $33,000, subject to an incumbrance of $20,700.

Sells Half Interest.

Murray Wolbach has sold to M. A. Benson an undivided half interest in the six apartment building in Sixty-seventh place, 120 feet east of Madison avenue, with lot 51½x134 feet of ground, south front, for a stated consideration of $12,750, subject to an incumbrance of $12,-500. The remaining half interest was conveyed by Mr. Wolbach to H. E. Hawkinson for the same consideration.

Oliver L. Watson has sold to Frank B. Hathaway the twelve apartment building at 2337-43 Warren avenue, near Oakley boulevard, with lot 72x124 feet, for a reported consideration of $22,500, subject to an incumbrance of $10,000. Mr. Watson took in trade fifty scattered lots in Fifty-fourth avenue, between Thirty-first and Thirty-third streets, at a valuation of $12,500 clear. It is stated to be the purpose of Mr. Watson to improve these lots with cottages. William H. Totten was the broker, representing both parties.

Ingleside Avenue Sale.

Lewis M. Mitchell has sold to George Wolfe the new six apartment building in Ingleside avenue, 117 feet south of Fifty-sixth street, with 48x115 feet of ground, east front, for a reported consideration of $20,000. John C. House, with James G. Barsaloux & Co., was the broker.

The Central Trust company of Illinois is trustee in a loan of $45,000, five years, at 6 per cent, to Smith C. Van Alen, secured by the property at the northwest corner of University avenue and Fifty-fifth street, 112½x164 feet, east front, with store and flat improvements.

The property in Waller avenue, fifty feet north of Randolph street, lot 50x171 feet, east front, with brick improvements, has been sold by Margaret M. McConnaughy and others to William G. Huse and others for a stated consideration of $14,000, subject to an incumbrance of $6,500.

Flournoy Street Deal.

Benjamin Helmon has sold to Anna Schuman the property in Flournoy street, 150 feet west of Laflin street, lot 25x162 feet, north front, with improvements, for a stated consideration of $17,000, subject to an incumbrance of $8,000.

Samuel A. Cohn and James M. Lovellette, owners of the Hotel Astor, have leased the ground floor and basement of 184-186 North Clark street to James Roder and Peter Pasras for ten years from May 1, 1915, at $2,700 for the first year, $5,400 a year for the next four years, and $6,000 per year for the next five years. The lessees will remodel the premises for a restaurant business to be known as "The Astor Lunch."

White & Tabor leased this property for Robert W. Williams to Cohn and Lovellette, the present lessors, for ninety-nine years.

Help Wanted with Investment.

ARE YOU THE MAN?

A corporation is about to be formed to manufacture and market by a new principle recently patented, a meritorious device for which there is a big demand, its durability being greater and cost of manufacturing much less than the present principle of manufacture. We can show that sufficient profitable orders can be had warranting such an enterprise.

We want to acquire the services of a man with brains, ability, and experience to act as Treasurer, who can invest $5,000 to $10,000. Also a practical electrician or electrical engineer, with manufacturing experience, qualified to manage and take full charge of the manufacturing department. Must be able to invest a like amount.

We can show the man who can measure up to the requirements who wants to connect with a worth while proposition, a real opportunity with a lucrative salary. All replies will be treated confidential. Dreamers, triflers, and curiosity seekers, don't answer. Address O 351, Tribune.

Keeping in mind the near approach of the Holiday season of dinners, dances, and parties, we take keen interest in presenting this morning

AN IMPORTANT AND TIMELY OFFERING OF

Beautiful Evening Gowns ($40.00 Upward) and Dancing Frocks ($25.00 and Upward)

These Gowns and Frocks are as nearly exclusive as it is possible to find. Being made up from the manufacturers' remaining lengths of beautiful imported materials there are few duplications, and the prices are lower than usual. Every one of them is new. Every model is of the smartest. The range of choice is so wide—in color and design—that it will be easy to express one's individuality.

Women's Fur Trimmed Suits of Broadcloth at $40.00.

With a richness of fabric and a distinction of designing that will establish them in the realm of calling Suits, comes surprise at their modest pricing.

The model is illustrated—a jacket outlined at neck, cuffs and throat with the fur; coat is trimmed with embroidered button-like ornaments. These also adorn the center front of the skirt, which is gathered to a hip yoke at the sides and back; at $40.

Unusual short broadcloth Suits at $45, in black, navy, brown, green and wistaria. Collar and revers of plush of contrasting shades. Edge of collar and cuffs fur trimmed. Skirt new circular flare with yoke. Broadcloth and workmanship of the best quality.

Sixth Floor.

Women's Smart Skirts at Prices Decidedly Special—$7.75 and $9.75

In a season particularly favoring separate Skirts, it is very unusual to find them at savings of such appreciable proportions.

Not only for golf and country tramping, but for the thousand and one occasions when a woman dons a top coat, a Skirt of this sort is indispensable.

The Corduroy Skirt Illustrated —At $9.75.

Skirts of Wear-Defying Poplin—$7.75

Now Is the Ideal Time for Gift Shopping—Our Robe Assortments Being Now at Their Best

Misses' Blanket Dressing Robes, at $3.75 & $3.95

Sixth Floor.

CARSON PIRIE SCOTT & CO.

And Now Interest in the Misses' Apparel Section Enthusiastically Centers in These

Newest Suits for Young Women

Which Are Specially Offered at $27.50, $32.50 and $35

YOUTHFUL in line—in fashioning—in their various modes, spontaneous—of such are these suits designed to meet the most captious style-critic among the fair sorority of young womanhood.

But although such result was sought, not for one moment did we lose sight of the fact that through these collections this store was to present the strongest argument that could possibly be offered those who are as practical as captious. In these, this store for young women was to present suits which in themselves would convince the most critical that splendid value dwells in every fabric and certain service in every seam.

Here at $27.50, $32.50 and at $35 are tailored suits for misses and young women—of beautiful soft serges, of broadcloths, of gabardines, suits in all the fabrics that fashion acknowledges this season—suits in modes that display many a clever original touch doubly fascinating for its newness.

And again—

A serge suit has an underdress of soft striped material, which also forms the collar and cuffs. $27.50.

A broadcloth suit has a velvet vest braided smartly to suggest the military. $35.

A gabardine suit has a very novel belt and collar of fur fabric. $32.50.

Indeed, the variety seems legion, while we don't know which seems to impress one the most, the many delightful styles or the splendid values —at $27.50, $32.50 and $35.

In these frocks soft, supple charmeuse combines with velvet—or silk net fashions them in all the new modes, from the smart coatee styles to the new peasant blouse and short bodice frocks.

Other frocks present the new scalloped blouse effects in velvet and satin combined, and are particularly interesting values at $30.

Men's 'Right Shape Support' shoes for $7

"Right Shape Support" shoes are of vici kid, and exclusively here in Chicago.

They're built to strengthen as well as protect weak feet—this result accomplished by giving each toe room for independent movement, by restraining prominent joints, and by developing the ankle and instep—all of which points make the "Right Shape Support" shoe especially valuable in keeping well feet perfectly healthy. Second floor.
